Uproar Hits de Gaulle Over Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The French press, angered over government claims their opposition to the Israel arms embargo was brought about by Jewish influence, retaliated today with harsh, open criticism of President Charles de Gaulle.

For one of the few times since de Gaulle came to power in 1958 some of the attacks were on a personal level.

Meanwhile, Jewish organizations called for a mass rally to protest the arms embargo and the government decision not to reimburse the $100 million paid in advance by the Israelis.

Informed sources said Foreign Minister Michel Debre, Defense Minister Pierre Messmer and Minister of State Roger Frey all were bitter about de Gaulle's decision.

Information minister Joel Le Theule acknowledged that the embargo had been "much debated" in the country and added: "It is noteworthy that Israeli influence has made itself felt... in the information media."

Addressing a conference of World Jewry, Eshkol said President de Gaulle's embargo on arms shipments "damages the prospects of peace in the Middle East."

Jacques Hebert, a Gaullist member of the National Assembly, said the embargo was "inadmissible."

Meanwhile, Rashid Karami, who promises a shift away from Lebanon's virtual neutrality in the Arab-Israeli struggle, began trying today to form a new government in Beirut.

President Charles Helou asked Karami, six times premier, to replace Premier Abdullah Yafi, who resigned Tuesday under fire because of Israel's destructive commando raid on Beirut's international airport.

Karami, who led the 1958 rebellion that U.S. marines were summoned to quell, heads the Democratic Front, which commands a slight majority in Parliament.

POLE EXECUTED FOR SPYING ACTIVITIES

WARSAW (Reuters)—A 28-year-old Pole, Adam Henryk Kaczmarek, has been executed for selling Polish military secrets to British intelligence contacts, it was announced today.

Polish press reports at the time of his trial June 15 said the secrets were given to British contacts at clandestine meetings in Warsaw apartments.

Fap, the official Polish news agency, announced the execution followed the rejection of his appeal by the military chamber of the Polish Supreme Court and a plea for clemency to the Polish state council.

Kaczmarek, a civilian radio telegraph operator in an unspecified military establishment, was convicted at a four-day trial held mostly behind closed doors.

Wire Guild Strikes AP

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wire Service Guild went on strike against The Associated Press today in a dispute centering on wages and a demand for a form of union shop.

Executives, exempt employees and some Guildsmen who did not join the strike maintained the AP's basic news services. Overseas operations were not affected.

It was the first strike by editorial employees in AP history.

The Guild represents 1,313 editorial employees, photographers, and clerical and other employees throughout the United States.

The union has rejected AP's offer of a three-year contract providing for a $250 weekly minimum for editorial employees, photographers, and certain other employees, beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

SUMMIT TALK GOES ON DESPITE BOMB THREAT

LONDON (AP)—An anonymous caller interrupted proceedings of the 28-country Commonwealth summit talks today with word that a bomb was planted somewhere in the Marlborough House conference headquarters.

Military police immediately informed Prime Minister Wilson, reporters and Commonwealth secretariat officials, and gave them the option of quitting the building or staying.

Wilson consulted his fellow government leaders and they agreed to carry on their meetings.

Military police then initiated their standard procedure for searching every corner of the 18th-century building. They turned up no concealed weapons.

Israel Denies Nuclear Bomb

TEL AVIV (CP-AP)—The Israeli Atomic Energy Commission today denied New York reports that Israel either has a nuclear bomb or will have one soon.

"This is not true," said a commission spokesman.

In New York, NBC News reported Israel "either has a nuclear bomb or will soon have one." It said Israel embarked on a crash program to produce a nuclear weapon two years ago.

The Canadian Press quoted authoritative sources in Tel Aviv in June, 1967, that Israel's next major move would be to make the atom bomb.

The sources said Israel felt it could no longer accept any guarantees for its security from any of the major powers and therefore must build the bomb as protection mainly against the Arab states in the future.

Israeli censors killed the dispatch when CP reporter Dave McIntosh attempted to file it from Tel Aviv. McIntosh filed it later from Cyprus.

Similar reports have circulated from time to time ever since Israel built a nuclear reactor at Dimona in the Negev Desert in 1963. Israel is known to have the technological capacity to produce such a weapon, but there has been no confirmed information that she is using the Dimona reactor for anything but peaceful purposes.

Political circles in Jerusalem called the latest report the product of a "very developed imagination."

JUST FOR RESEARCH

The commission spokesman said Israel's atomic reactor at Dimona is solely for "research and development."

Another centre near Rehovoth, south of Tel Aviv, also is "purely for research," he said.

Political circles said reports that Israel now is an atomic power are "completely unfounded."

Premier Levi Eshkol and former premier David Ben-Gurion have said in the past that Israel will not be the first to introduce atomic weapons to the Middle East. But they added that if another country began production Israel would have the capacity and the scientific potential to enter the race.

NORWEGIANS SEIZE SOVIET FISH BOATS

FLEKKEFJORD (AP)—Six Soviet and East German fishing vessels were seized in military waters off the southern coast of Norway Wednesday night, police in the southern Norwegian town reported.

Police said prize crews boarded four Russian and two East German vessels. Three of the vessels were brought into Flekkefjord harbor and the other three were expected here later today.

Police also reported that two Danish vessels were seized and will be brought into Flekkefjord later.

Police said it was not yet clear why the vessels had violated Norwegian territorial waters.

Renews Pact For One Year

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada will renew its present military commitment to NATO for one year.

He told a press luncheon that the commitment will be renewed when Defence Minister Leo Cadieux attends a meeting of NATO defence ministers in Brussels Jan. 16.

Trudeau added, however, that Canada will not make any long-term commitment to the alliance at this time because it is reviewing policy on whether to pull out of NATO or stay in.

The renewed commitment will endure to January, 1970. Canada has six bomber squadrons and a 5,000-man infantry division in West Germany and 20 warships committed to NATO's Atlantic Command.

Apply Sanctions 'Forever'

Trudeau also said economic sanctions against Rhodesia should be applied "forever—or a little less long than forever."

Trudeau said Canada is "not likely" to become a republic in the next four years. And the parliamentary system of government had the advantage for Canada over the U.S. congressional or presidential system.

Trudeau made a brief speech, familiar to Canadians, about the necessity of minority groups, even the smallest, being heard. (See story page 3)

Then he replied to questions submitted in writing by some of the 500 Commonwealth and foreign correspondents at the luncheon.

Trudeau showed no trace of the "fluffy feeling" which kept him away from the Commonwealth conference. Wednesday.

On Rhodesia, the Canadian leader said it is essential that the regime of Premier Ian Smith be given no cause to believe that sanctions against Rhodesia would not last forever.

He said he is not pessimistic about the future of the Commonwealth.

But there was a danger of it becoming obsessed with certain problems and certain solutions to them.

The Commonwealth would always be one generation behind if it invested all its energies in past or present problems at the expense of the future.

The only common characteristic of the Commonwealth was its commonness, its diversity. And there had to be a Commonwealth spirit for compromise on second-best solutions.

Want to Recognize China

Trudeau repeated that Canada wants to recognize Communist China. He did not say that it will.

He said Canada is becoming more conscious that it has a ringside seat on the Pacific. It wanted to increase trade, cultural exchanges and diplomatic relations with Pacific Asian nations.

No matter how much one disagreed with an opponent, there must be a dialogue with him.

On the Middle East situation, Trudeau said the basic principle should be that frontiers must not be changed by force.

Israel and Arab states might accept a peace imposed by Britain, France, the United States and Russia if they tired of their brinkmanship.

Trudeau said that though slow moving, the United Nations mission headed by Ambassador Gunnar Jarring of Sweden is "the only way out" of the Middle East impasse.

He was asked whether Canada will become a republic during his term of office.

"It depends how long I'm in office," he said at first.

Then he added a Canadian republic is not likely in the next four years. Canadians did not want to become divided on a largely symbolic issue such as the monarchy, though two-thirds of Canadians had no emotional attraction for the monarchy.

Dines with Intellectuals

He looked fit as he left for the high commissioner's residence Wednesday evening for a dinner with some English intellectuals, including professors from Oxford and Cambridge.

"What's the problem?" Trudeau said when asked about his health while on the way to the dinner in fashionable Upper Brook Street in affluent Mayfair.

Aides said he felt he had to attend the dinner because a number of the guests had to come from out of town.

He declined comment on a reporter's suggestion that a number of heads-of-government had come to the conference from out of town and presumably wanted to hear what Trudeau had to say on the world political situation.

Trudeau also cancelled a meeting with Chief Obafemi Awolowo, head of the Nigerian delegation, concerning relief for victims of the Nigeria-Biafra war. The meeting had been scheduled for 7 p.m., one hour before the dinner at the high commissioner's home.

More than 20 of the 28 countries represented at the conference already have spoken, some of them twice. They include Swaziland, Malawi, Lesotho, Jamaica, Sierra Leone and Gambia.

Blizzards, Icy Rain Lash U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—A winter storm lashed into the northeastern United States today and scattered snow and freezing rain from Wisconsin to the middle Atlantic states.

Bitter Arctic cold settled in behind the storm and drove the mercury down to zero or below from Montana into Minnesota.

Blizzard, heavy snow or travellers warnings were in effect for parts of 14 states from Iowa and eastern North Dakota to the middle Atlantic region.

English Fog Causes Havoc

LONDON (AP)—Fog and ice played havoc on British roads Thursday, resulting in at least seven deaths.

More than 100 vehicles were involved in pile-ups on the M-1 expressway out of London and a mother and two children were killed when a truck skidded off a road at Hayes, 15 miles from the capital.

Fog also hit France and caused delays to Paris-bound flights.

32-Foot Waves Buffet Schooner

NEW YORK (CP)—Winds of about 45 miles an hour and 32-foot waves buffeted the Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose II today and hampered a search for a crew member believed to have been swept overboard, the United States Coast Guard reported.

The schooner, a two-masted wooden vessel with auxiliary diesel engines, was carrying 19 persons including a group of Canadian businessmen bound for a vacation cruise in Bermuda.

The Coast Guard, which reported the schooner was "experiencing difficulty" said the seas became worse overnight but slackened slightly after daybreak.

However, a coast guard cutter standing by the schooner was prevented from searching for the missing crew member because of difficulty in manoeuvring in the high seas. A plane flew out to the schooner after daybreak but was not able to search effectively because of poor visibility, the coast guard said. The crew member and two life rafts were lost Wednesday.

Two coast guard cutters had been standing by the schooner about 280 miles southeast of New York but one of them, the McCulloch, had to return to New York because one of its crew members was sick.

The coast guard said a doctor recommended that the man, who was not identified, be brought to a hospital quickly.

The missing crew member was identified as Neil Robitaille, 22, of Yarmouth, N.S.

Among the businessmen on board are Michael L. Davies, general manager of the Kingston Whig-Standard, Gordon N. Fisher, of Toronto, vice-president of Southern Press Ltd., David Osler, a Toronto stockbroker, Lorne A. Flower of Kingston, John Rothwell of Toronto and Martin Yeatman, a member of a Halifax engineering consultant firm.

The schooner was taking water in its engine room. However, the owners, Oland and Sons Ltd. brewery, said in Halifax they had "no indication the schooner itself is in any difficulty."

Donald J. Oland, vice-president of the brewery, said the schooner's skipper, Captain Ellsworth T. Coggins of Dartmouth, N.S., probably will start moving the schooner southwards out of the rough seas.

The captain of the schooner also emphasized to the coast guard that there was no danger of the ship sinking.

There was, however, some "concern" about the ship's safety, as indicated by the fact that a cutter, the Vigilant, was standing by, the coast guard said.

"If necessary we could get the people off quite quickly, a coast guard spokesman said.

The Bluenose II is a copy of the world-famous Nova Scotian fishing and racing schooner. It is used part time as a charter vessel, part time to carry cargo and part time as a public relations vessel. It was loaned to Expo 67 in Montreal for six months in 1967. It was built in 1962.

So we'll stay in NATO a year, if NATO lasts a year.

PROFESSOR HITS HARD AT UVIC EXPANSION

By JOHN SLINGER

A former head of the University of Victoria English department today scored the board of governors for its plans to expand the university.

Prof. Roger Bishop who resigned the administrative post to teach, told the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors annual meeting the expansion plans are "a serious mistake."

He said expansion into "a faceless, mechanical multi-versity" meant hiring numbers of poorly qualified, inexperienced teachers.

He said monster campuses prevent the growth of teacher-student relationships.

He said anyone who cares about the quality of Canadian education should be fighting to prevent such expansion.

It represented a fall, real estate proposition but faculty and students who favor it are "selling their intellectual birthrights."

Right now Uvic seems prepared to make all the mistakes of University of B.C., Berkeley and notorious universities elsewhere, he added.

Prof. Bishop was making the keynote address to the annual meeting at Empress Hotel. His theme was The Student, The Professor and The University Today.

He said the violent situation which has developed in universities during the last five years is not likely to quiet down soon.

He said that although the Uvic campus has been quiet, trouble could be "just around the corner" especially if the university English department refuses to accept a student demand for one-third representation on all faculty committees.

Prof. Bishop used as background for the current crisis "the myths" upon which a society bases its day-by-day progress.

He said: "The tremors in our universities are part of, and a reflection of, the shifting, destruction and reconstruction of myths in our society."

Largest purveyor of new myths, many contrary to our traditional beliefs, were television and other electronic media, through which advertisers present instant cures, instant success and instant happiness.

Imparted to a younger generation is an idea that once it has met certain minimum standards such as

Africans Hit Rhodesia Plan

LONDON (AP) — Six African premiers today called on Britain to abandon her plan for a Rhodesia settlement offered by Prime Minister Harold Wilson aboard HMS Fearless last fall.

The African leaders, backed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, urged Wilson to maintain a policy of strict sanctions on the breakaway regime of Premier Ian Smith.

And they demanded on the third day of the Commonwealth conference that the Wilson government abide by its two-year pledge to withhold the granting of legal independence to Rhodesia until majority African rule is introduced.

The debate on Rhodesia began in the 28-country meeting with a report by Britain's special minister in charge of the Rhodesia problem, George Thomson, who gave an account of recent exchanges with the rebel regime.

Thomson's account included details of Wilson's meeting with Smith aboard Fearless off Gibraltar last October.

At that meeting Wilson submitted proposals that would transfer power to the Smith regime on the basis of a new constitution containing some safeguards for political advancement of the 4,000,000 African now ruled by 250,000 whites.

CRITICIZE THE PLAN

The heads of government of Tanzania, Swaziland, Kenya, Ghana, Uganda and Botswana spoke in succession after Thomson, and in forceful terms criticized the British Fearless plan as inconsistent with previous British commitments.

They argued in general, but also cited specific objections that the British plan would leave effective power in the hands of the white minority.

Conference sources reported the debate took place in an atmosphere of calmness and no displays of passion were observed.

The meeting was marked by questioning of Wilson by the Africans and by Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau.

Wilson was under heavy pressure to defend his position, but a spokesman for the Commonwealth secretariat said the session was held in "a good atmosphere."

John Hartley, chairman of Ghana's delegation, said the Fearless proposals "offend adherents to enlightened democracy."

Under them, he said, it would take at least a generation for the Africans to gain power in Rhodesia. He also attacked the literary qualification for voting and said that, judging by other African states, this would be "a preposterous constitutional innovation."

Oak Bay Student Will Attend Montreal Seminar

Oak Bay senior secondary student Catherine Rhodes will attend a youth seminar on Canadian unity in Montreal next month organized by the Inter-School Clubs Council.

She is one of 50 young people, four of them from B.C., who will take part in the seminar from Feb. 2 to 9. Lee Hummel, seminar chairman, said it will touch on everything from mass communication to sports.

Delegates will stay with families of service club members while in Montreal. The service clubs council is paying all expenses.

Catherine is a Grade 12 student and editor of the school newspaper, "Plastic Press."

Kiwanis Club House Drive Big Success

Oak Bay came out on top in a recent see-who-will-give-the-Kiwanis-the-most-money contest.

More than half — 75 per cent — of Oak Bay residents canvassed donated money to the Kiwanis for additions to the Kiwanis Village.

Second most generous municipality was Saanich, 54 per cent gave, with Victoria, 44 per cent, and Esquimalt, 22 per cent.

Fund organizer Ed Barakett said $36,400 was collected in the capital region in the Dec. 12 blitz sponsored by Kiwanis and helpers.

The money will be used to build a 24-unit addition to Kiwanis Village. The village provides low-rent housing in rooms and cottages to 187 old people.

The addition will cost $200,000 and extra funds will come from bank loans and the government.

"We, of the Kiwanis, wish to thank everyone who gave," said Mr. Barakett.

Java Peak Blows Top

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Three villagers are missing following an eruption by Mount Merapi volcano in central Java, the Indonesian Antara news agency reported today.

The agency said the crater, topped by a plume of smoke two miles high, showered ash over towns within a nine-mile radius. Molten lava poured down its slopes.

Explosions, earth tremors and massive bolts of lightning, followed by torrential rain, were also reported in the area.

MILD NATURE CRAMPS PIERRE'S ROMANCES

LONDON (CP) — Canada's bachelor prime minister said Thursday he does not have much success with women.

Why?

Because, Prime Minister Trudeau said, he has a "very mild nature."

He was asked at a correspondents' luncheon: "It was sometimes said that Mackenzie King, the last bachelor prime minister, would have been a gentler, more approachable man if he had had a wife. Do you ever feel this could apply to you?"

Trudeau said that if there were complaints from friends on this score, these complaints were that their wives and daughters found him too approachable.

He added: "I have a very mild nature and that is why I do not have much success with women."

PROFESSOR

university graduation it is as qualified and competent to deal with any situation as its more experienced elders.

Prof. Bishop said one aspect of the situation is seen in the views of the large numbers of young professors imported to Canada from the United States.

"They have been brought in to deal with the sky-rocketing population of our universities. They have 'substituted' American ways for Canadian academic traditions."

EAGER FOR APPROVAL

These young lecturers are often very unsure of themselves at the beginning, are eager to get their students' approval and so are vulnerable to students who want to assert pressure upon them.

Some results have been elected faculty systems which place a person in charge of a department, demand that he achieve quality, then "refuse him a free hand."

It is getting more difficult, the professor said, to get anyone willing to head a department.

In the last 10 years, Uvic has been under the pressure of expansion to meet the needs of students growing in number from 600 to 5,000.

PRESSURE

It has been placed under greater pressure by the "seizure of power by inexperienced faculty" and now the activist students want representation, he said.

If the provincial government is sincere about improving the quality of education in B.C., it should concentrate on increasing the number of two-year colleges, put more money into bringing Canadian faculty back to Canada and give increased funds to increasing research facilities.

"We do not need money to expand," the present universities.

AMERICAN COLOSSUS

Turning briefly from the local university, Prof. Bishop said he differed with Prime Minister Trudeau's opinion that the French-English problem was paramount in Canada.

He said, "it was the American Colossus," that was the major concern.

All our education is being increasingly controlled from the U.S., he said, through the use of U.S. textbooks, teachers and exposure to U.S. television.

If the situation is not reversed, Canada should give up any ideas of being an independent country and become "the fifty-first state."

'GHOST OF BRITISH EMPIRE' Color Clash Tears Commonwealth Meet

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — A color clash which threatens the harmony of the Commonwealth conference pits white against black and black against brown. It is a mixture of racism, nationalism and Powellism larded with bitterness and suffering.

"A ghost of the British Empire," said one British official in touching on the problem which finds Britain shutting out some non-white British passport holders while some African Commonwealth members try to boot out long-time Asian residents simply because they have not taken out citizenship.

When these now independent African states were British colonies, their people — brown and black — were British subjects. These included Indian and Pakistani traders who had become big shopkeepers in East Africa, including Kenya, Uganda and Zambia.

In time local blacks resented them because, as they saw it, the lifeblood of their economy had passed into the hands of "foreigners."

At the time the African states became independent the British government, apparently attempting to ensure loyalty at least among some local residents, pledged that those who didn't take out local citizenship could retain their British nationality.

RESENTMENT GREW

At that time it was a pledge that bore no hardship. But as Britain's own population became tinted with a rush of browns and blacks to take jobs that local whites wouldn't handle, British resentment of non-whites hardened.

In big industrial areas, black ghettos sprang up, fenced in by antagonistic whites. Britain, with a total population of about 54,000,000, has more than 1,000,000 non-whites. The savage racial battles in the United States added concern in Britain, fanned by such men as Tory MP Enoch Powell, who painted a vision of rivers flowing with blood as a result of "aliens" taking possession of Britain's green and pleasant land.

As racial tensions grew, the Labor government pushed through legislation to enforce laws against discrimination in housing, jobs and public gatherings. But at the same time it started to tighten the screws against non-white immigrants, particularly those who had no firm promises of jobs.

The big clash came last March when Britain announced that non-white British passport holders no longer would have free and easy access to Britain. There would be an annual quota limited to 1,500 heads of families when more than 15,000 were told to get out of Kenya and when it appeared that total Asians to be booted out of East Africa would be more than 60,000.

Both Kenya and India maintained that since Britain had pledged entry to these Asians in Africa, the matter was a British responsibility. The British government said it would take them all eventually but would have to restrict the rate of flow to what the British population could absorb. The government wants India to take some of them back.

It appears likely that some compromise may be worked out whereby Britain would acknowledge prime responsibility for these people but India would at the same time take some of them back, providing that at some future time they would be able to settle in Britain.

Meanwhile, many of these Asian families face an uncertain future, their means of livelihood suddenly snatched from them and their security torn away. Most of them are reported to be eager to come to Britain. Few are willing to return to India and Pakistan which are heavily populated and where living standards are low.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A wind of northeast 80 miles per hour was reported early this morning at Green Island north-west of Prince Rupert as cold Arctic air continued to pour across the northern mainland from the central interior. A deep low pressure area centred over the southern Charlottes will drift very slowly down the B.C. coast during the next 36 hours. This depression will produce a southeasterly flow of cool moist air over southwestern B.C. and will delay the southward motion of the Arctic air. Therefore the cold wave and snow warnings have been cancelled for the lower coast. However, the cold air will remain entrenched over the north coast and the Cariboo and will spread over the southern interior Friday night.

Trudeau Evokes Riel, Gandhi To Plead Case of Malcontents

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, who already has caused Commonwealth conference excitement with his expressed sympathy for London's demonstrators, today put in another plea for protesters in Canada and the world generally today.

Trudeau, citing Louis Riel in 19th-century Canada, told a gathering of international correspondents that the world's politicians should not only tolerate protesters but go out of their way to "dialogue" with them. "If the social structure is a fraud, it will be torn down," the prime minister said during what proved to be some of the most gripping moments of his appearance before a luncheon of the Commonwealth and Foreign Correspondents' Associations.

The Canadian leader Tuesday termed pickets outside Marlborough House of the current conference the opening session a good thing for the Commonwealth.

In reiterating this position today, he warned that to dismiss such pickets as small in number is no answer to them.

"It is the few who become the many," Trudeau said. "Men like Gandhi and Louis Riel lived on."

Protesters at the Commonwealth conference were questioning the delegates' "right to be inside, the legitimacy of our power," he said.

Efforts should be made to have them accept "the basic rules" of society as part of a "frank discussion where reason can be heard and reason can prevail."

Trudeau said Canada and other countries now are the scene of "challenges to the mechanics of government itself."

The picket was "involving himself" whereas the politician traditionally was accustomed to using "some gimmick or other to get re-elected."

But to the protester "the social order was not relevant," Trudeau said.

Listing Quebec separatism, possible discontent in underdeveloped provinces and some feeling among citizens of being remote from government as the three main challenges to Canadian unity, he said Canada has started efforts to turn its parties and Parliament into "vehicles for protest, for dialogue."

This would make them "machinery for almost direct democracy," Trudeau said.

Only efforts of this kind could "make the drop-outs drop in."

He insisted that even the smallest minority now must be heard in Canada and elsewhere.

The Dorchester Hotel gathering proved to be one of the largest press conferences ever held in Britain.

Trudeau made a few initial remarks and then threw the meeting open to questions from the 500 journalists.

COQUITLAM (CP) — Police identified Mrs. Cassie Sawicki, 44, of Vancouver, as the woman killed Wednesday when hit by a truck as she crossed the Lougheed highway here.

Montrealer Champions Brittany

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Vaillant, arrested in France Sunday in connection with a terrorist movement seeking the independence of Brittany from France, is the owner of a travel agency in east-end Montreal.

French police said Wednesday they had discovered a terrorist arsenal and had arrested two Roman Catholic priests in connection with the Front de liberation de la Bretagne—the Brittany Liberation Front.

They said much of their information had come from Vaillant. Vaillant's travel agency is called Voyages transatlantiques internationaux and is located at 410 Sherbrooke St. East.

Its main specialty is organizing trips to Brittany for groups made up of members of the Montreal Breton community.

Vaillant was born in Brittany in 1930 and has been in Canada for 10 years.

VIET CASUALTY LIST DROPS

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. casualties in Vietnam last week were the lowest in 11 weeks, reflecting the continuing lull in the ground war. South Vietnamese and enemy casualties also were considerably less than the week before.

The U.S. command announced today that 101 Americans were killed in action last week and 599 were wounded, the lowest American casualties since the week of Oct. 13-19, when 100 were killed and 589 were wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 150 government troops killed and 602 wounded, a sizable decrease from the 279 killed and 901 wounded the previous week. The two commands reported at least 1,846 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed, compared with 2,135 the week before.

The report for the last week of 1968 brought the total American combat casualties since

Jan. 1, 1961, to 30,644 killed, 192,926 wounded and 1,238 missing or captured; in those eight years, the U.S. command said, at least 431,736 North Vietnamese and Vietnamese have been killed.

Total South Vietnamese casualties for the period have not been disclosed.

In the 7½ months after the preliminary peace talks opened in Paris May 13, a total of 7,693 Americans, 9,020 South Vietnamese military personnel, and 83,150 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were reported killed.

Since a South Vietnamese delegation left for Paris Dec. 7 and the negotiations there bogged down in a dispute over status symbols and procedure, a total of 587 American dead and 821 South Vietnamese military dead have been reported.

Despite more than 100 Southern allied sweeping operations under way throughout South Vietnam, only fleeting and scattered contact with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces was reported again today.

Ex-Priests Should Get Church Help

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Bishop Paul O'Byrne said Wednesday night that the Roman Catholic Church should give more help to men who have left the priesthood.

A participant in a bishops' panel at the Western Conference of Priests, Bishop O'Byrne said: "We're past the stage of not acknowledging that priests do leave and we're past the stage of treating them as inferior. As a matter of fact, we can do much to help them adjust to their new status in life."

Bishop Remi DeRoo of Victoria said former priests can make a contribution to necessary changes in the church and "should be given at least as big a role in the church as laymen have."

The bishops gave a cool reception to suggestions that Roman Catholic priests be allowed to marry.

Q. WHAT IS CONSIDERED THE BEST COLOR IN A DIAMOND?

A. Crystal-clear absence of any color in the body of a diamond is considered the finest quality. This is interior color, not the flashes of rainbow colors called "fire." Value falls as a tinge of yellow deepens the diamond in body color. Members of the American Gem Society use a number of scientific methods to determine the degree of yellow in each stone in order to set a proper value and quality grade. Come in soon and let us explain other pertinent points used by professional jewelers in determining diamond value.

Towns Threatened by Fires

MELBOURNE (AP) — Two towns 80 miles north of Melbourne were threatened today by bushfires that already have resulted in at least 15 deaths and burned out more than 100 homes and 100,000 acres of farmland.

Authorities counted 76 major fires that have burned over summer-dry rangelands around Melbourne so far this week. Dozens of injured persons, some in critical condition with burns, are taxing tiny bush hospitals, normally staffed by a doctor and two part-time orderlies. Ambulances took the more serious cases to Melbourne.

Hundreds of volunteers, fire-fighting equipment and bulldozers poured into Yea, 80 miles north of Melbourne, to cut off a fire burning on a two-mile front toward the town. The force succeeded in channelling the fire around the little town, but not before it burned through the town cemetery.

Similar work was under way at Daylesford, 10 miles south-east of Yea.

Who Will Be the Tailor?

IN HIS PRESS CONFERENCE here this week Mr. S. M. Rothman, president of the Mining Association of British Columbia, presented a convincing picture of the industry's growing importance to the economy of the province and emphasized the vitality now being shown by active mining companies.

The significance of the press conference, however, lay mainly in Mr. Rothman's indication of the course which mining interests may take in the face of Premier Bennett's announced intention to seek greater legislative control over mining practices.

The premier, in his statement last week, was obviously responding to the rising public concern over the manner in which some mining operations, including strip mining, destroy the appearance of the countryside. Mr. Rothman takes the position that mining is at present so closely regulated by law that "there is not much left to regulate except possibly aesthetic appearance."

Quite apart from the fact that aesthetic appearance is important, the argument overlooks such matters as pollution from mine operations and invasion of parks by mining interests. The mining association president presented the familiar and legitimate arguments: industry brings jobs and payrolls to the area concerned, revenue for the government and earnings from fabrication of the raw materials taken from the ground.

His reasoning may be questioned, however, when he adds that development of resources "is not a political problem but a complex economic and social problem requiring a maximum of common sense to find the proper route." It is a political problem of the first order because only through political means can the people of this province exert any control over the effects of industry on their environment.

Mr. Rothman is plausible in his argument that "regulations (concerning surface appearances at mining operations) must be tailor-made for each situation," since blanket controls might be unduly restrictive, or unduly loose, in different regions. But he raises an essential question. Much depends on who is to be the tailor.

It is a matter of very recent history that regulations were tailor-made to suit the requirements of Western Mines in Strathcona Park. The company was sufficiently persuasive in certain quarters to secure for itself government sanction to establish a townsite in the park. At that time the case was made that it would be intolerable to deny workers the right to live, with decent amenities, in a location easily accessible to the mine. Such a necessity was argued by the company right up to the time that Western's employees proved they did not want to live in the park but preferred to commute from a larger community. The townsite idea was abandoned.

The incident created a precedent on which arrangements tailor-made for mining interests should be judged. It underscores the necessity of legislation sufficiently tight to prevent an amenable tailor from cutting the cloth to suit a mining client at the expense of the public. Any new regulations formulated in the coming legislative session must not only appear to give the public protection, but actually provide that protection.

Outlook: Clear and Busy

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S ECONOMY, like that of Canada, is essentially dependent on exports, so that any prediction of future prosperity in this province must be based on forecasts of improvement in the world trade situation. In the view of "nearly 300 officers of leading industry, trade, utility and service establishments" in British Columbia, business in the coming year will surpass that of 1968, and this level will be exceeded even more in 1970. That presupposes a continuing improvement in international markets, and it is good news to hear from business experts through the medium of the annual report of Trade and Commerce Minister Skillings.

Another factor in prosperous growth, of course, is the readiness and ability of the province's industrial establishment to respond to market opportunities — indeed, to create them. In this connection the competitive position of industry is of vital importance, and this is dependent largely on costs of production as exhibited in labor costs, in efficient use of machinery, and in the cost of financing business operations. Back of these, of course, lies the influence of national policy in regard to tariffs and import restrictions which must affect the ability and willingness of other countries to buy our products. In this realm too, apparently, the prospects for the next two years are seen as good.

The government report lays particular stress on the results of 1968 in forestry, mining and fisheries — three of the province's leading industries — and extension of advances into the coming year. There is a need for caution, however, in the almost unanimous prediction of higher prices for both raw materials and products in 1969. This spells inflation, and connotes an additional impediment to foreign trade.

The widespread optimism of the report is welcome. From the speeding wheels of industry and commerce British Columbians will expect to reap a commensurate return from the development of their province. One of these returns should appear in the form of enhanced government revenue from business, and the government will be expected to use it to meet the most pressing needs of the people, which in many respects have been receiving less attention than they merit.

The Districts Have the Say

THE retiring chairman of Vancouver's school board has warned his colleagues that British Columbia's education system is in danger of freezing in static mediocrity. That is a possibility. Such a condition, however, will be determined by the decision of the school districts themselves — not necessarily by the government's action in setting an average provincial level of educational expenditure for a basic program.

Under the present method of school financing, there are specific checks against any inclinations toward extravagance by school boards. The boards have little leeway to increase their budgets by more than 10 per cent over the previous year.

If they wish to spend above that increase, then they must obtain approval from the government, the councils concerned or the ratepayers of the district.

But if the residents are willing to pay more than the permissible 10 per cent for extras — be they special classes, swimming pools or gold doorknobs — the board can budget for the extras, and hope that it can finance them under the market conditions of the day. It won't be as easy as it may have been in former years, but an enterprising school board, capable of enlisting strong support from the taxpayers who elected it, is not necessarily headed inevitably toward mediocrity in its schools.

"... three days have gone by and still not a word of thanks from Allah ..."

BEYOND TRUDEAU'S STYLE

BY BRUCE HUTCHISON

Eventually, Policies Must Emerge

IN ONE of his recurring moods of disenchantment Peter Newman writes from Ottawa that Trudeauism has given way to Trudeauism. But he does not tell us what Trudeauism is, doubtless because he doesn't know. Neither, one suspects, does the prime minister. All that Mr. Newman can say is that the nation's economy will be managed henceforth by the government in a "new technocratic manner" regardless of any creed or ideology. This sounds exciting. It is written in Mr. Newman's usual colorful prose. It must mean something. What on earth does it mean?

Hutchison

According to Mr. Newman, it means at least that the "politics of style" has triumphed over the old-fashioned politics of policy. The nation gave Mr. Trudeau its trust without knowing his policies because "most voters are far more concerned with how a politician handles himself than with his actual positions on national problems."

Are they indeed? No, the bare arithmetic of the last election and events since then deny such a simple analysis. The nature of the Canadian people denies it even more emphatically.

Of course Mr. Trudeau leaped into office overnight because enough voters liked his style and did not ask about his policies, but he won less than half the popular vote and among this minority it is safe to say that most voters were, and remain, interested in policies. A majority was not satisfied with style alone.

Will anyone, knowing the Canadian people, argue that they are not interested, for example, in prices, wages, taxes, unemployment and the cost of mortgages? These problems and others demand policies, not style, to solve them. And the fact that we have only style, so far, with hardly more than the first vague signs of policy, does not mean that we are indifferent to the problems which touch us all rather intimately, where it hurts.

Voters' Faith

On the contrary, Mr. Trudeau was elected and is now invulnerable because the people, or a thin plurality of them, believed that he had policies as well as style, solutions as well as talents and wisdom as well as wit.

This was a good gamble but, as Mr. Trudeau himself saw clearly at the time, the bets on his personal genius, the expectations of a sudden miracle, were overdue. Today, after six months of office, he must see that style will no longer suffice, that policies are required, that problems must be solved.

Actually, though Canada is the most fortunate nation in the world (for reasons much more permanent than the prime minister and his government) not a single problem of importance has yet been solved since the vote last June. Foreign policy, confused by the famous Kingston love-in, remains in abeyance, pending further study. The prospects for a new constitution and a Bill of Rights certainly have not advanced but, I would guess, have receded. The cost of living, the level of taxes, the rate of interest and the volume of unemployment are all higher now than they were on election day.

Try to tell any housewife, taxpayer, borrower or unemployed man that conditions have improved because we now have the blessing of style in government and you will not be popular. Mr. Trudeau says nothing so absurd and because the people still believe that he will produce policies and solutions when he gets around to it, as I am quite sure he will.

Anticipated Pain

We may not enjoy the policies. More likely, we shall resent them if they are sound, the problems being too deep for painless cure. But policies of some sort will certainly emerge out of the labyrinth of royal commissions, task forces, regional desks and all the vast apparatus which Mr. Newman calls Trudeauism. Then, and not until then, we shall see what stands behind the style, the real contents of the shiny, gift-wrapped package.

It would be a mistake, however, to underestimate the importance of style.

FROM WASHINGTON

No Easing of Johnson's Pressure on Israel

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

THE Johnson administration will press hard to the end for a pact between Israel and Jordan because there is no sign that the incoming Republicans will bring fresh leverage to the struggle for settlement in the Middle East. Privately Dean Rusk was grateful for William Scranton's prediction that the Nixon administration will adopt a more "balanced" posture toward the region. The practical effect was to strengthen the State Department's hand in its taut dealings with the Israeli government.

Beneath the surface dialogue between the old and new administrations there is a broad awareness that while the Republicans will gain flexibility from their diffidence toward the political weight of the American Jewish community, they will lack the Democrats' capacity to remonstrate with occasional effect against Israeli intransigence.

There is indeed, as Moshe Dayan often points out, an "Arab mentality." It is a drug-like fanaticism, undisciplined and unwilling to balance the realities against the hatreds. It is a wild resolve that no avenue toward peace shall interfere with the necessity of wiping out Israel.

But there is also an "Israeli mentality" and it is also detrimental to productive negotiation. The persecutions of the past and the unhappy sense of standing alone have engendered a bitterly cynical mistrust which spares no foreign power or international agency and leaves a conviction that only Israelis can be relied on to reflect the interests of Israel.

Egypt's militant soldiers and students cause Premier Nasser to oscillate between acknowledgment of the realities and deference to Arab fanaticism. Similarly in Israel the stress of politics and the anticipations of next fall's elections have left the hawk-and-dove contention unresolved. In neither nation has the political leadership been bold enough to guide public sentiment constructively.

The Democrats appear fated to go out of power in a mood of frustration with Israel. Their persuasions have not softened the victors' stance or produced concessions to make the atmosphere less rigid. They have not even managed to induce the Israelis to sound convincing when they talk of withdrawal from the captured areas after a settlement.

These dealings have been impaired by the Democrats' adherence to a concept of balance. Lyndon Johnson's five points became the core of the UN resolution of November 1967. The State Department refused to support Israel's claim on old Jerusalem or to consider a formal alignment with Israel. The Phantom Jet aircraft were promised only after a long, cautious delay.

Withdrawal Prerequisite

But the Democrats have stayed with Israel on her cardinal point that military withdrawal must come after a settlement. This is a matter on which the Republicans can take another stand although the wisdom and fairness of pressuring Israel to accept the pre-war status quo without any new guarantees of security will be challenged by the Arabs' undisguised preparations for a fourth round.

Only a brush threat to withdraw the privilege of tax exemption from gifts to the United Jewish Appeal or to halt all arms shipments to Israel will yield increased leverage in the dealings between Washington and Jerusalem. Nothing so radical is likely to seem warranted but nothing less radical is likely to make the Israelis responsive to the Republicans.

The retirement of the Johnson administration will intensify Israel's feeling of loneliness at a time when she is losing the contest for world sympathy, and is confused on how to respond to the terrorist attacks.

This could be a crucial point. Israel may become more tractable, more eager to facilitate agreement. Or she may lash out with new vehemence against her hostile neighbors. There can be no transitional pause in the pressures by Washington.

Un-Canadian

The Globe and Mail

When the Royal Commission on National Development in the Arts, Letters and Sciences under the chairmanship of Vincent Massey reported in May, 1951, it eloquently described the fabric of nationhood. It said, "Canada became a national entity because of certain habits of mind and convictions which its people shared and would not surrender. Our country was sustained through difficult times by the power of this spiritual legacy. It will flourish in the future in proportion as we believe in ourselves. It is the intangibles which give a nation not only its essential character but its vitality as well. What may seem unimportant or even irrelevant under the pressure of daily life may well be the thing which endures, which may give a community its power to survive."

It is deeply disturbing, therefore, to learn of the high proportion of Americans who are teaching at Canadian universities, particularly in the fields of sociology and political science. It is a concern not because they are American, but because many of them cannot be expected to have an appreciation of the Canadian fabric. It is a lack they presumably pass on to their students.

Yet, we have reason to be grateful for their presence. Our universities have undergone great expansion and the need to recruit qualified people from American universities to teach in them was imperative. Nevertheless, the scope of the problem must be realized. Politics and sociology are unlike the pure and applied sciences in that they require an understanding of societies and how they operate.

American Context

In the United States there is a huge volume of empirical studies dealing with the American society that has been built up over the past 50 years. Theoretical conclusions based on these studies form the backbone of teaching. These conclusions are reasonable for the American context but it is questionable whether they are reasonable for the Canadian context. Race relations in Halifax may not be analogous to race relations in New York City. Yet American professors have no choice but to rely on these conclusions while teaching here. They have little or no personal experience of Canada. And there has been no significant amount of research done to provide the empirical groundwork against which they can test their theories and acquire knowledge of the Canadian society.

It must limit the comprehension their students have for their own society and encourage them to impose American solutions on Canadian problems.

Dalton Camp's suggestion of using Canada Council grants as vehicles for stimulating more intensive research into Canadian topics is admirable and would serve four main purposes: it would provide the groundwork so badly needed; it would immerse researchers in the Canadian fabric; it would assist in strengthening our graduate schools; and it would encourage Canadians teaching and studying abroad to return. All these come within the function of the Canada Council as visualized by the Royal Commission which recommended its creation.

Why Can't Women Be More Like Us?

By WENDY MICHENER
Saturday Night

There comes a moment in the Canadian film The Ernie Game when Ernie says to his working-girl mistress: "Sometimes I just wish I could meet a real woman."

She replies: "I may not be much of a woman, but you're not a man."

Those words, or some very like them, must have been exchanged by hundreds of thousands of couples in the Western world.

The confrontation is such a classic of our century that the movie, for a moment, seems suddenly plugged into a vast echo chamber of arguments.

When in the world have the sexes been so unhappy with each other or with themselves?

Submit Grievances

In Canada we have the spectacle on the one hand of latter-day suffragettes presenting their grievances to the Royal Commission on the Status of Women and fighting for the right "to be treated, in dignity and worth," as ex-politician Pauline Jewett puts it, "as the equals of men."

And this turns out to mean, mainly, equality in employment, the right to be treated as a man among men.

And on the other hand there is the hippie phenomenon, where young men are persecuted for growing their hair long, wearing decorative clothes, and sitting around talking to people instead of getting a job.

These are privileges long since accorded women, but it now seems that they don't particularly value them.

I suppose that is hardly surprising when you consider that these two protest groups are fighting against the mainstream of a society that is possessed by an underlying dislike of — not women — but the female element, values, principles, whatever.

In England, and in North America especially, society is made in man's image.

Parents are not allowed to leave their children up in the woods to die of exposure, but society quickly teaches them that they are members of the weaker sex with all the inferiority that implies.

Live Emotionally

The Canadian psychiatrist Karl Stern says in his book The Flight From Woman, both men and women in our society are in flight from the female elements — the qualities of empathy, compassion, the ability to take things personally, to live emotionally.

It need hardly be said that while a man may become less human by denying himself his female elements, a woman who does deny her nature is in real trouble. And means real trouble (spelt e-m-a-s-u-l-a-t-i-o-n) for the men in her life.

Masscult says it best again. Remember Annie Get Your Gun? "Anything you can do, I can do better, I can do anything better than you."

That's Annie's response to the proud North American male, so sure of his worth, so proud of his penis. In the end

Canada lost one of its most talented young writers last week with the sudden death in Toronto of Wendy Michener. Best known for her trenchant and witty film reviews in Macleans and The Globe and Mail, she also contributed perceptive articles to Saturday Night. This is a condensed version of her last one in the January edition.

she learns her lesson and wins the man by deliberately missing the bull's-eye, thereby establishing a pattern of guilt, of hurtful self-denial.

The same tricks are practised by career women who manage to infiltrate the sacred professional world of men.

You won't find a sleeker, trimmer, more glamorous and professionally feminine bunch of women anywhere in the world than your really successful, powerful, well-paid New York careerists.

They are model "females," a neat solution to the problem of how to look less threatening as they compete, while sticking to the male code of professional ethics, especially its taboo on "weakness."

While the professional women have learned that all

they have to do is miss the bull's-eye from time to time, and make sure that their appearance is very easy on the eye, the defeminized wife has learned other rules.

I'm thinking specifically of "the company wife," since the companies men have built have come to demand not only that the man suppress his female elements (and so give up any true personal and private life based on his own individual nature), but that his wife do so also, lest she corrupt him and split his loyalties.

As interpreted in the Toronto Star by Sidney Katz, one "career-damaging" plot that management consultants watch for is the wife refusing to move to another city (the man on the way up, to wherever, must automatically give up the right to choose what environment suits him personally and will prove most beneficial to his family).

Oddly enough, many wives are reluctant to move, though it's common knowledge that women are the ones who want more money.

A management consultant, E. A. Butler, told Katz that husbands should tell their wives that if they want nice clothes, a comfortable home and a fancy car, then they must be prepared to move about.

The World Might End With a Bang

By Alan M. Kriegsman

If Jean-Luc Godard is right about the world, the stew-pot may get us before the H-bomb has a chance.

In "Weekend," the peripatetic French director's recent color flick, the protagonists end up as the captives of a band of hippie guerrillas who are killing left and right for the sheer joy of it.

One of the victims, a young woman, is stripped, sexually assaulted, stuffed with raw eggs and fish, and then neatly chopped and boiled, presumably to become the entrée for supper that evening. More distressing than the horror itself is the impassive, matter-of-fact way it is perpetrated.

It is disconcerting but true that Godard's record as a seer in these matters is remarkably good. The youthful Maoist revolutionaries in his earlier "La Chinoise" plot an uprising that entails the burning of the Sorbonne and the Louvre. Not too many moons after the filming of "La Chinoise" life imitated art. The students of Paris might have been following a Godard script.

"Weekend" is potent partly because of its shock value, and partly, perhaps, because the film medium grabs one these days in a way no other seems able to.

Sitting in the darkened cavern of a movie theatre, one beholds the screen images flitting before the windows of the mind as if they were an involuntary hallucination, originating somewhere within one's own psyche, as personal and inescapable as delirium.

The nightmarish "Weekend" taps the dream roots of film as only the work of a master can. But it also sums up all the antipodal qualities of Godard's art.

"Weekend" shuttles erratically between raw, artistic documentary and the most arty kind of manipulation; between obscurantism and devastating clarity; between flagrant self-indulgence and pinpoint control.

There is a plot, of sorts, though Godard often seems to be doing his best to keep you from following it.

A young married couple, consumed by mutual loathing which they relieve in secret affairs, sets out on a weekend auto trip to the girl's father, to get him to alter his will in their favor.

He dies, however, before they reach the sanatorium, so they murder his widow and sole legatee, trying to make it look like an accident. Then they themselves fall victim to the hippie anarchists.

The meat of the film is in the connective tissue: the girl's disturbing recital of a three-way orgy, accompanied by droning, swelling music that blots out dialogue like a dizzy spell; various Bonnie-and-Clyde shoot-em-ups; the world's longest, most ludicrous bumper-to-bumper traffic jam, that the camera traverses car-by-car to its termination in a gory collision, and sundry images of fire, carnage and bestiality.

In Godard's view, T. S. Eliot may be wrong about the day of judgment after all.

Today's youth is fed up with whimpering, and the world may well end with a bang, bang, bang! Whoever is right, "Weekend" is jolting stuff.

The Opportunity Is There But We May Muff It Again

The Economist

As 1968 passed into history, few were sorry to see it go. Its most disappointing feature may not yet be fully appreciated. It was a year of timorous reaction, and it has come at precisely the wrong time. This does not mean that 1968 was a year of major worldwide tragedy, presaging bitter black ruin for all mankind. No mad Hitler stalks the international stage, and nobody is predicting a 1930s-type world depression.

But the mere fact that those two reassurances sound so obvious and trite points up again the maddening story of how easy are the opportunities that we are miffing. The most determined New Year resolution for the ordinary man in 1969 should be not to allow politicians and public servants everywhere to con him into the counter-revolution of falling expectations. In all the developed and truly developing countries, the management of a modern state ought today to be an unprecedentedly simple job.

On the economic plane, a technical, educational and managerial revolution has proffered to our generation the scope for the most decisive surge in mankind's long rise from unending toil to the threshold of comfort and leisure.

This is not a matter of dreaming about cybernetics. It is a matter of accomplishing — and, in advanced countries, regularly accomplished — fact.

Among the dozen or so richest countries of the world, it is now usual to secure a regular economic growth rate of somewhere around 4 per cent; the only rich countries which are failing to achieve this are those like Britain, whose governments are making some readily analysable economic mistakes.

Among the dozen or so next richest nations — countries like Italy, Japan, some of the East European Communist states, Spain, Mexico — extraordinary economic growth is in practice easier still; merely by copying what is done in successful advanced countries, it seems a simple task there to double standards of living in little more than a decade.

The lifting of present backward nations onto the same path will be a matter of education (sometimes difficult, education including things like birth control) and the provision of capital; but the known mechanism for achievement is there, and it is entirely reasonable to hope that in the next generation the Indians will be imitating today's Japan's much as the Japanese have been imitating (and in some respects have already surpassed) the richer West.

But it is worth huzzing that, possibly for the first time in history, none of the great rich nations of the world today either is ruled by an ambitious warlord or looks remotely likely to be ruled by one in the near future: the Russians could go daft and pick a bad one, but more likely they will not.

Among the governors of the great rich powers, who have the capability to destroy the world, there is luckily a strong consensus of opinion in favor of not destroying it.

The basic reason for this more sober state of affairs, compared with the heydays of Prussia and other warrior states of the past, is almost certainly economic.

The peoples of the great world powers now have a standard of living to enjoy, and they intend to go on enjoying it.

The calculation that this is the deciding factor is supported by the sadness that Kaiser Wilhelm and Mussolini will strut as national leaders — some of the small poor nations of black Africa, and Arab, while in one great poor nation — Communist China, and most worryingly — the population still obediently chants the child-like slogans of a plainly mad dictator. But the proletariats of the great rich nations have become respectable bourgeois.

The next major question has always been: what sort of bourgeois societies will the governing structures of these countries represent?

There have been two such in history: the confident bourgeois, and the mean and defensive bourgeois. In this age of almost limitless possibility for human and social and economic advance, all hopes have deserved to be pinned on the former.

The development one has constantly prayed against is a growth of the zereba mentality among modern politicians or electorates: the reaction that "here, in this changing world, is some particular thing which is changing too fast for my conservative ideas of comfort, so I will put up the shutters around or against it."

The tragedy of 1968 is that such shutters came slamming down in frightening profusion.

Obviously, the most evil example was the invasion of Czechoslovakia by the Soviet Union and her colonies, because "Dubeck was going too far." Beside that invasion, all other instances of black reaction pale.

But there has also been a disturbing trend towards a defensive protectionism in the west, largely for an accidental reason.

Nineteen sixty-eight started with sober men apparently seriously fearing that a new 1948 year of revolutions might be upon us, as fairly ridiculous student riots spread from country to country, and as the world was told to apprehend riotous bloodbaths in the cities of the United States "when the hot summer comes."

In the event, except for two weeks in France, the student riots proved to have nil support among the population at large; and in the American continent the most-remembered black power demonstration was the wearing of some unauthorised clothing on the victors' rostrum at the Olympic games.

In Rome, Pope Paul made his contribution to the year of reaction with his encyclical against contraception.

But it is in the economic field that world statesmen have combined most obstinately and energetically in that spirit of a chorus from one of Mr. T. S. Eliot's plays: "We must insist that things are what we have always taken them to be."

During 1968 market movements set in to suggest the case for a rise in the price of gold, and then of the German mark. The reaction of the outgoing American government to the first movement was to say that it must be presumed never to have taken place, that the price of gold was more likely to go down than up, and that the matter was now one of prestige.

The reaction of the German government to the second movement was to say that it would be resisted at all costs, especially as they rightly hoped that other people would be silly enough to bear the chief initial costs for them.

Both disequilibria have therefore been left in being, and Britain and other countries enter the New Year enforcing economic policies of competitive deflation, or the presumption that rigidly fixed exchange rates should be maintained a bit longer while everybody decently pretends that the disequilibria do not exist.

An actual majority of big countries now seems to be aiming for lower growth rates in the new year than in the old one, partly for this reason.

Since the execution of their policies tends to be as inefficient as the formation of them, this competitive deflation fortunately may not be successfully carried through.

But in an educated community of nations, in an age with such opportunities as the present, it is appalling that this counter-revolution of falling expectations should set in.

It is not caused by any slowing in the rate of accumulation of man's knowledge, or productive capacity, or technical innovation: it does not need to take place.

Bugs Have Anti-Freeze Too For Protection from Winter

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

numbers of pests but since beneficial creatures, including those which help to control the number of pests, will also be reduced in numbers, populations will soon build up again.

As usual the situation is much more complex than it would appear. Living things vary greatly in their methods of spending the winter, in their tolerance of cold and consequently in their rates of survival.

With the onset of chilly weather some insects seek shelter beneath piles of litter, or under anything that will give some protection.

Here they can remain inactive and reasonable safe until living conditions are more favorable; a blanket of snow gives added protection since it acts as an effective insulator.

Other insects including wasps and certain moths and flies search out a dry place such as in a wood pile, a tree cavity or an open building.

The moths and flies simply wedge themselves into a crack or cling to a rough surface in the darkest corner; the wasps, invariably queens which are the only surviving individuals from last season's colonies, fasten themselves into position by locking their jaws onto the wood's surface. Here they hibernate reasonably dry but quite unprotected against low temperatures.

Certain species winter-over as eggs and these are usually very resistant to cold. A well-known example is the egg-mass of the tent caterpillar which is laid in the form of a band encircling a twig.

It is completely exposed to the weather but is waterproofed and well insulated by a frothy coat which gives it a characteristic shiny appearance.

Eggs of other species may be secreted in the bark of trees or under fallen leaves where they are relatively safe from freezing but perhaps not from the probing search of nuthatches, chickadees and tree-creepers.

Spider eggs are commonly enclosed in silken sacks fastened to some support in a dry retreat. Some egg-sacks are insulated by a lining of fluffy material much like cotton batting in texture but made of silk.

The reason why these and other exposed forms of life are not destroyed by cold is that they are provided with a natural anti-freeze.

Ordinarily the body juices of both plants and animals are water solutions, which, if frozen will rupture the living cells and cause death.

In those species which have to withstand cold these vital liquids are changed into a gel which can solidify when frozen without doing any harm. The process is reversed in spring; the gel becomes a liquid again and life resumes.

However the system is not 100 per cent perfect. The organism must have some warning of impending cold since the switch-over takes a little time.

A sudden drop in temperature can catch many creatures unprepared. Moreover this natural "anti-freeze" is good only within certain limits; extremely cold weather can be fatal at times,

Dear Dr. Carl: Will the unusually cold weather we have had so far this winter have any effect on garden pests?

Can we expect to have the usual number of earwigs, slugs and plant lice next season?

Gardeners and others are always hopeful that freezing weather will kill off undesirable creatures but unfortunately nature is not so discriminating. Under severe conditions of cold, heat, drought, famine, etc., losses are heavier than usual among any population of plants and animals.

The weak ones or those that are unable to adjust simply perish; the principle of "survival of the fittest" comes into full effect, but of course it applies to all forms whether they are "good" or "bad" from man's viewpoint.

Thus it is probably safe to assume that our abnormally cold winter will have some initial effect in cutting down

Law Faculty at Uvic Advocated by Senate

By AL WHITE

The University of Victoria may, within three years, have the second law school in British Columbia.

The Uvic senate (academic governing body) Wednesday night approved a report calling for establishment of a law school after 1970 and sent it to the board of governors for further consideration.

Presented to the senate by Ronald Cheffins, head of the department of political science at Uvic, the report stated there is a definite need for another law school in B.C. and that Victoria is the logical place for it.

A special committee study conducted for more than two years by Mr. Cheffins showed that the University of B.C.—which has the province's only law school—cannot keep up with demand for facilities.

SHARP INCREASE

Recently amended enrolment figures for the UBC school show that many more students than anticipated are seeking training and will exceed the optimum enrolment of 700 set by the school.

"The question is no longer whether there is a need for a second law school, but how soon a second law school can be established and, in addition, existing facilities immeasurably improved," Mr. Cheffins said in his report.

Ontario, with a population three times that of B.C., has six law schools, he said.

"It is our view that the establishment of a law faculty would contribute significantly towards a better university and a better community."

"It would be hoped that the professional law teachers attached to the proposed faculty would not only make a notable contribution to the life of the teaching community at the University of Victoria but would also interact in a mutually stimulating manner with members of the local bar," Mr. Cheffins said.

PLAY LEADING ROLE

He added, "a number of prominent Canadian law teachers have played a leading role both in the educational and political life in this country, and it would be hoped that this might similarly take place in Victoria."

Mr. Cheffins called law "applied philosophy" and said a nation's legal system is "almost a perfect mirror of that nation's standard of living."

"It is our view that, just as law is an integral part of the social process, so the teaching of law must be an integral part of the educational offerings of a mature academic institution."

Law training in Canada follows a three-year program preceded by three or four years of general university studies. The Uvic school would follow established course patterns and use much the same teaching and library facilities.

A survey of university deans and heads of law schools across North America found complete support for such schools.

"Not a single university official suggested any disadvantages from the establishment of a law faculty on their campus," Mr. Cheffins said.

"The city of Victoria offers certain advantages as a centre for the establishment of a law faculty."

"Since it is the provincial capital, there is available a large number of key governmental personnel who could provide or assist in the provision of unique experiences as part of the law school curriculum."

Discussions with the deputy attorney-general have indicated the province would "be glad to assist" in setting up a course on the legislative process. There is only one such course taught at a Canadian law school now, Mr. Cheffins said.

In addition to government assistance, he added that members of the local bar "who have established themselves as leading legal writers and practitioners in a variety of fields" could offer their talents.

HAVE SOME PERSONNEL

There are already persons on the Uvic campus qualified to teach courses in the faculty, Mr. Cheffins, for one, with the law school at McGill University in Montreal before joining the Uvic faculty.

Regarding the need for a second school in the province, Mr. Cheffins said UBC officials had originally opposed the proposal.

But first-year enrolment in law at UBC this year was 236, compared with the estimate of 260, and threatened to rise to 975 by 1973-74.

In September, UBC set a limit of 700 students for the school. The B.C. section of the Canadian Bar Association also expressed support for a second law school in October.

Several courses applicable to law studies are already taught at Uvic and there exist the makings of a law library, Mr. Cheffins said.

STUDY SUPPORTED

An additional report by Bob Cosburn, president of the pre-law society at Uvic, supported the study.

There are presently about 80 students taking courses at Uvic who plan to study law and many of these could carry on studying in Victoria, Mr. Cosburn said.

During the discussion of the report the question of priorities to be given projected additions to the university came up.

Both schools of nursing and schools of social welfare have been approved and deferred for lack of funds. A committee studying the social welfare school was just recently reactivated.

Senate decided to consider priorities at a later date, after approving the law school in principle to get the organizing process under way.

Formation of the school must be approved by the board of governors and go through discussion with the university and the B.C. Bar Association.

Costs for the first year of the school were estimated by Mr. Cheffins at $100,500, with revenues of $30,000 from tuition fees, from 60 students.

The initial cost would include salaries for a dean of law, a professor, associate professor and assistant professor, a law librarian, office staff and supplies.

Projected costs for the second and third years of the faculty—with expansion in size—would be $148,500 and $177,000, respectively.

Little Hope For Pension Boost Seen

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of thousands of retired federal employees have been told again they are not going to receive a pension increase in the foreseeable future, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Hubert Lecours, commenting in an interview following a meeting of leaders of the Federal Superannuates National Association with Treasury Board President Charles Drury, said: "We had a frank and open discussion with Mr. Drury but he said he cannot promise us a yes or a no. We interpret this as meaning we are not going to get an increase in the foreseeable future."

There are about 34,000 retired federal employees and 17,000 widows drawing pensions and an additional number of other dependents. Recent statistics show that 289 retired employees and 1,654 widows draw less than $20 a month from the federal pension fund.

Lecours, a Quebec regional vice-president of the association, said Drury said a decision on pension increases must await "budget considerations."

The association is seeking a $500-a-month increase and wants pensions to be tied to the cost of living. A joint Senate-Commons committee recommended pension increases for retired federal employees in January, 1967.

At March 31, 1968, there was $2,875,823,276 in the federal superannuation fund.

Also in the association party that met the minister were John S. Forsyth, Ottawa, national president; Fred Whitehouse, Victoria, B.C., association founder and national secretary-treasurer; and Albert Gagne, Hull, another Quebec regional vice-president.

Quebec's Shaky 'Anglophones'

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
MONTREAL (CP) — English-speaking Quebecers have a double duty of defending their own rights at home and those of French-Canadians elsewhere.

Self-interest, to mention only one thing, dictates that Quebec's "Anglophones" should use their influence throughout Canada on behalf of French-Canadian minorities and be equally robust—and direct—in defending their own rights before the Quebec government.

These were the findings of a series of interviews in which various figures in both linguistic groups advocated a sort of revolution of thinking and a change in attitude toward the federal and provincial governments.

One French-Canadian authority with countrywide connections said, however, the unhappy fact is that Anglophones outside Quebec now show greater understanding of French Quebec than Anglophones here, who tend to be "insecure."

The interviews were mostly held following a school crisis in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard and before the nationalist uproar that accompanied Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's introduction of legislation to protect English-language education rights.

In the subsequent illness of Mr. Bertrand, the government sent the legislation to committee for study but pledged that it will come again before the full legislature—newly named the Quebec National Assembly—this year.

One Good Outcome

Laurier LaPierre, director of the McGill University's French Canada Studies Program, deplored the St. Leonard action in which a Roman Catholic school board curtailed English-language teaching in its bilingual primary system.

"Is it necessary that we

New Policies Would Avoid Indian Riots

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet minister responsible for coming up with new federal policy on Indians said here violence could break out among them this year unless the government begins to act soon on their grievances.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio, said in an interview that the recent row over collection of custom duties at Cornwall, Ont., "could have been the spark that ignited outbreaks across the country."

Mr. Andras said the Cornwall Indians believed a treaty exempted them from paying custom duties. He said there are many other cases "where there were clear-cut violations of treaties or where Indians believed treaties have been violated."

Mr. Andras said talks between the government and Indians on a new Indian Act had made Indians more aware of their problems and might contribute to any outbreaks of violence that could result from government inaction.

visit all the injustices of this generation on the backs of children?" Mr. LaPierre demanded. "The Vietnam and Biafra wars are being fought on the backs of children and I'm damned if in my own country I am going to see national issues fought out on the backs of children."

Yet there was one good outcome of the St. Leonard affair in that the non-French population threw aside old self-restraints and howled loud and long in public.

Says Mr. LaPierre: "English-speaking Quebecers have participated in the life of the province by supporting arts and matters of that kind. But they should participate more in the way of such men as Professors Frank Scott and Charles Taylor."

"English-speakers should be careful about the members of Parliament they elect. By and large they elect asses to the provincial House, with a couple of exceptions. They must bear in mind that such participation is necessary. I think they should stand on their own two feet."

"I'm happy over the St. Leonard incident in the sense that it means the end of passivity of the English-speaking Quebecers. I hope we'll see them marching, protesting, generally carrying out civil disobedience and all the rest of it."

Link Minorities

Mr. LaPierre, famed as a former television host and now national vice-president of the New Democratic Party, said English Quebec's economically dominant group has a dismal, selfish collective political heritage.

This was particularly true during the "imense scandal" of the authoritarian regime of Premier Maurice Duplessis in the 1940s and 1950s, said the man who was defeated as an NDP candidate in the 1968 federal election.

"But now I think there should be more English-speaking people who are ready to come out and be prepared to defend not only their own rights but French-speaking rights across the country."

McGill's Vice-Principal Michael K. Oliver, research director for the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, proposed in a separate interview some kind of linkup between Quebec's anglophone minority and French-Canadian minorities in other provinces.

"We all have an interest in getting from the provincial governments maximum respect for educational rights," he said.

"The English-language group here looks instinctively to the federal government as its saviour. I'm not sure how wise that's going to be."

"We've got to develop a better strategy in regard to the politics of this province. It's a shocking thing that we don't have a greater representation in the provincial and municipal civil service, that our legislature representation tends to be quite weak."

Quality of Ideas

Only eight of the Quebec house's 10 members are classed as English-speaking, most of them in the Opposition Liberal party.

The anglophones, it is often said, are Canadians first and Quebecers second while the tendency of many francophones—Prime Minister Trudeau notwithstanding—is the other way around.

Liberal George Marler, Opposition leader in the dying days of Quebec's upper house and who earlier served as minister in the Lesage government of the early 1960s, said the "Anglo-Saxons" will probably never enjoy representation commensurate with their numbers.

But influence in politics depended not only on numerical representation but on the quality of ideas presented so that anglophones can still wield influence.

Mr. Marler, whose family has been here 160 years, maintained that the more extreme manifestations of Quebec nationalism—such as the St. Jean Baptiste Day riot witnessed by Pierre Elliott Trudeau last June—worry English-Canadians outside Quebec more than those here.

Sees Insecurity

This was extremely serious in that it tended to deter investment from outside Quebec. The impact of such incidents, however, can be better put in perspective by French-Canadians than by English-speaking Quebecers.

Outsiders were more convinced by expressions of confidence in the future of Canada when they were made by French-Canadian than when they were made by Quebec anglophones.

Mr. Marler saw it as significant, incidentally, that when the Quebec Chambre de Commerce issued a brief rejecting separatism, nationalists attacked the authors of the document rather than the ideas proclaimed.

Mr. LaPierre said it has been his experience that anglophones outside of Quebec "have a much greater facility for understanding and are better attuned to our problems because they don't have anything to protect. They are not insecure."

"The English-speaking Quebecer is insecure and he argues from his insecurity. I find this despicable. I don't think one should be insecure in one's own country."

Quebec's anglophones would find it difficult or impossible to be interpreters of French Canada to the rest of the country partly because of their traditional educational system, founded on a "ghetto existence."

Critical of McGill

"The accent that existed for several years on Parisian French—among those who learned to speak French at all—was a manifestation of superiority thinking that was passed on from father to son."

"I'm not saying French-Canadian schools aren't ghettos either—I think in many respects they are.... Institutions have failed miserably. Take McGill. It has come a long way, but it only discovered French Canada when it began to plant bombs."

The long silence of Quebec's anglophones on wrongs done to French-Canadians made a striking contrast with separatist leader Rene Levesque's defence of English-speaking rights in the St. Leonard controversy. Mr. LaPierre declared:

"A guy like Rene Levesque, whose political future may have depended on backing the French viewpoint, did not do so at that time just the same. He had a sense of justice...."

"Sometimes we ask ourselves if we're being suckers."

Critics Unanswered Over Arthritis Cure

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Joseph Chayen has declined to comment on skepticism raised by some medical experts that his research team had made a breakthrough that could eventually lead to a cure for rheumatoid arthritis.

A spokesman for the Arthritis and Rheumatism Council said: "I would not say skepticism is the correct reaction to the latest research carried out by Dr. Chayen and his team at the Kennedy Institute of Rheumatology. We think it is interesting and exciting and we are hopeful it will lead to a cure for the disease."

"Of course, so far, the experiments have been carried out in a laboratory and it is a big jump from test-tubes to human guinea-pigs but we hope to start tests on human patients soon.

"These will be carried out on hundreds of people and we hope to be able to announce results within a reasonable time."

The spokesman was referring to a new theory being tested by the institute that arthritis might be caused by an excess of hydrogen in the cellular sacs of a joint. This excess weakens the sac walls allowing enzymes to escape which then attack the cartilage, or the cushioning material round bones, resulting in joint-distortion and pain.

Fang the Hamster Now Immortalized

Bottle-Happy Rodent Inspired City Writer

A local author's story in the January edition of Jack and Jill magazine was prompted by a story which appeared in the Times 17 months ago.

Mrs. M. A. Martkow, 2772 Van Tilburg Crescent, who writes under the pen name of Vikki Grasse, read a Times story Aug. 10, 1967, recounting the misadventures of Fang the hamster.

Fang, owned by Brock McLeod, 3014 Craigowan Rd., was found trapped in a milk bottle after he had been missing for two months.

It was such an unusual story that Mrs. Bartkow decided to write a children's tale about Fang's plight.

She clipped the Times photo of Fang inside the milk bottle and sent it, along with an outline of her story, to Curtis Publishing in Philadelphia. They liked the idea and told her to write it.

"I'm sure it was the Times photo that sold the story for me," said Mrs. Bartkow. "It was very good."

At last report Fang was up to his old tricks. He wandered off from the McLeod residence a few months ago. Mrs. Bartkow thinks he may turn up inside a milk bottle any day.

'Budget Can Balance'

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Walter E. Harris, president of Victoria and Grey Trust Co., said Wednesday there is no reason the Liberal government cannot balance the national budget this year or next at the latest.

"This is the government's first and most important duty," he told the company's annual shareholders' meeting. Mr. Harris, was finance minister in the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent in the 1950s. His 1956-57 budget was Canada's last to balance.

He said if the budget is not balanced this year "our present quite unjustified interest costs will be perpetuated and the whole money mechanism will be thrown out of balance."

"I believe that governments and individuals cannot continue to pay the current interest rates without consequences of a serious nature," he said citing Monday's slump on the New York Stock Exchange as support for this belief.

"No economy can survive very long with borrowing rates at the present level. It is better to endure a little austerity now."

Victoria and Grey took over the assets of British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford, left in a shaky financial position following the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. in the summer of 1965.

Victoria and Grey's net profit of $1.8 million or $1.12 a share for the year ended Oct. 31, 1967, was up from $1.67 million or $1.01 a share the preceding year. Dividends to shareholders in 1967 totalled $1.07 million up nearly $26,000 over 1967.

The company's assets under administration increased by nearly $50 million over 1967, totalling $383.32 million at Oct. 31, 1967.

Alberta Oil Output

CALGARY (CP) — Crude oil production in Alberta averaged 746,932 barrels a day during the week ended Dec. 30, the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board says in a report.

Production in the previous week was 764,952 barrels a day. Daily production in December was expected to be 767,001 barrels a day compared with 652,742 barrels a day in December, 1967.

"Possibly what we should do is not to fix exchange rates and leave national levels of exchange free to move," Coleman said. "Rather, we should leave exchange rates free to move and fix national levels for exchange reserves."

He said inflexibility now threatens to destroy the present international monetary system.

Banker Recommends Free Exchange Rate

MONTREAL (UPI) — One of Canada's leading bankers today called for a "fresh look" at the world's monetary relations and an international conference to consider new rules governing foreign exchange.

John H. Coleman, executive vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, told the bank's 100th annual general meeting that 1968 would go down in the history of international monetary relations as "the year of crisis and co-operation."

He said that while a full-scale "Bretton Woods conference" would lead to serious difficulties, a meeting of the major nations, or "mini Bretton Woods," might well be called to consider new rules for the international exchange system.

Coleman spoke as chairman of the meeting in the absence of Royal Bank chairman and president W. Earle McLaughlin, who is ill.

"Possibly what we should do is not to fix exchange rates and leave national levels of exchange free to move," Coleman said. "Rather, we should leave exchange rates free to move and fix national levels for exchange reserves."

He said inflexibility now threatens to destroy the present international monetary system.

Johnson Aid Asked To End Ship Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Shipping employers have appealed to President Johnson for aid in ending the 20-day dock strike which has tied up more than 275 cargo ships in ports from Maine to Texas.

An industry spokesman, estimating that the cost of the walkout nationally will pass the $300,000,000 mark today, said Wednesday Johnson has been asked to refer the dispute to Congress with recommendations for compulsory arbitration.

A telegram sent to the president by the New York Shipping Association pledged industry-wide compliance with any decision reached by a "responsible tribunal."

Okanagan Mines

Saul Rothman, president of the Mining Association of British Columbia, said Wednesday the central Okanagan area has a strong future in mining. Sales revenue from area mining totalled $7.82 million in 1967, compared with $5 million in 1965.

Asbestos Corp.

W. W. Oughtred, president of Asbestos Corp. Ltd., said directors are not in a position to make any recommendation to shareholders regarding an offer by Canadair Ltd. to buy 1 million of the common shares at $30 each.

Mr. Oughtred said, however, that individual directors of Asbestos Corp. present at Tuesday's meeting "indicated that they proposed to support the offer by accepting it to the extent of approximately one-half of their personal shareholdings."

Hudson Bay Mining

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. said its domestic price of copper will increase Friday from 45 to 48 cents per pound delivered.

The U.S. price will increase from 42 to 45 cents (U.S.) per pound.

The overseas price will remain unchanged at the London Metal Exchange.

Air Charge Up

Effective Jan. 15, Air Canada will raise the minimum charge on general commodity shipments to $10 or the charge of 50 pounds, whichever is greater, from the present minimum of $5 or the charge for 25 pounds.

General commodity shipments is a term which covers everything too large to be sent air express, such as clothing, sports equipment or small machinery.

Electrohome Ltd.

Net profit of Electrohome Ltd., which manufactures television sets and appliances at Kitchener, was slightly more than $800,000 or $1.45 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, C. A. Pollock, president, said today.

This is more than double last year's earnings of $390,600 or 53 cents a share.

Mr. Pollock also said sales reached a record $35 million, about 19 per cent higher than 1967.

Douglas Aircraft

Douglas Aircraft of Canada Ltd. started production today on wing components for DC-10 jetliners, a contract which is expected to add 4,000 men to its Toronto work force for a total 7,500 by 1971.

A company spokesman said Wednesday the firm's plant at Malton near Toronto will do the work on 155-foot wings. Most of the $15 million aircraft will be built in California.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA — Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/4 for cheques, $1.06 1/2 for cash, $1.05 1/2 for silver. Sales were $1.07 1/4 for cheques and $1.07 1/2 for cash.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 1/4.

NEW YORK (CP) — The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 20 1/4 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was down 1/2 at $2.36 1/2.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Property Taxes Explained

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

(This is a service provided by The Times and by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

At this time of year real estate property owners receive property notices showing the assessed values of their land and buildings which form the basis upon which property taxes are calculated.

The amounts in these notices usually indicate an increase over the amounts for the preceding year because in most areas property does tend to rise in value. But this does not necessarily mean that the property tax will increase.

Theoretically, if the total funds to be raised by property tax were to remain unchanged and if each piece of property in the city (municipality, town, etc.) were to increase in value as all other property in that same city, then there would be no upward change in the tax upon any property.

This never occurs in practice because it seems inevitable that the costs of civic government are bound to rise every year and the changing value of each piece of property seldom coincides with the average overall increase.

The significant figure for a property owner is the difference between the change in his property value and the change in the total value of all property on the assessment roll. If there has been a 5 per cent increase in the assessed value of a particular piece of property and a 10 per cent increase in the assessed value of the total roll then that owner's share of the total tax bill would be smaller; or, if the ratios were the other way around his share would be larger.

It does not automatically follow that a smaller share of the total tax will mean a lower amount of tax. It may be a smaller share of a larger amount of total tax, and, so, be an increase for the tax on that particular piece of property but not as much increase as upon the other property in the area.

The tax itself is determined by the "mill rate" which is simply the ratio of the total tax revenue required in proportion to the total assessed values of all properties in the area.

The mill rate is established by the persons elected to civic office when they have calculated the total amount of tax required to meet the expenditures as estimated in the budget. This mill rate is expressed as an amount per $1,000 of assessed value so that a mill rate of 30 upon an assessment of $10,000 would produce a tax of $300.

In some provinces legislation by senior government regulates the amount by which assessments or mill rates may be increased. This may present budget balancing problems for civic officials when costs are rising faster than the permitted increase in the basis or application of taxes. For any one piece of property the arithmetic is relatively simple but the calculations required to preserve the proper equity between all property owners are extremely complex.

Although at this time it is not practical for a property owner to determine the effect of any change in assessment values upon the eventual amount of his property tax he must, nevertheless, decide whether or not he has any grounds to appeal for a reduction in the assessment. Such an appeal must be based upon the value of the property and not upon the amount of the tax.

Ruling Paves Way

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court ruling Wednesday cleared the way for Ontario horseplayers to place bets without going to the track by having paid agents deliver their bets to the parimutuel windows.

The ruling makes possible establishment of off-track parimutuel brokerage firms.

Mr. Justice Walter R. Schroeder upheld the decision of a Welland, Ont., magistrate who last February dismissed book-making charges against two Welland men who operated such a brokerage firm.

The Crown has 60 days to appeal Mr. Justice Schroeder's decision to the Supreme Court of Canada, but Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday he was "content" with the decision and has no plans to appeal.

Robert Gruhl, 36, and his employee, Howard Brennan, 37, operated the off-track parimutuel office in Welland for three days before the attorney-general department closed it in July, 1967.

EXPECTING RUSH

Mr. Gruhl, who advertised that he would take bets to the racetrack at Fort Erie for a fee, said following Wednesday's decision that he hopes to establish the province's first off-track betting service.

"However," he said in an interview, "if it's a gold mine, I won't be alone."

In upholding the decision of Welland Magistrate Joseph Gardner, Mr. Justice Schroeder said there was "no essential distinction" between the Gruhl case and a case dismissed against a Welland taxi-driver who took money to the track for persons unable to get there.

The Appeal Court ruled that no bets were made on the premises and that Mr. Gruhl and Mr. Brennan were acting as agents when they placed bets for their clients.

The men charged 10 per cent of the value of the bet placed for the service and the minimum fee was 50 cents.

REACT TO RULING

The ruling drew reaction from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and officials of the Jockey Club Ltd., which holds thoroughbred racing at Greenwood and Woodbine tracks in Toronto and Port Hope and operates harness tracks at Greenwood, Mohawk Raceway, near Campbellville, Ont., and Garden City Raceway, near St. Catharines.

Mr. Wishart said he would not appeal the decision and added that the reason for the Ontario Supreme Court action was not so much to press for a conviction as to clarify regulations dealing with messengers who carry bets to a racetrack.

"This man was not a bookmaker," Mr. Wishart said in an interview. "He was only acting as a messenger and did not keep the money that was given him to bet. As far as I'm concerned, the matter rests. I'm content."

John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club, termed the decision "very interesting."

Mr. Mooney said the Jockey Club directors will "take a good look at what it means to us."

Meanwhile, Mr. Gruhl said he will set up a high-volume business, placing employees in towns with tracks who will receive information by telephone and lay bets for customers.

Als' Line Coach Moves to Atlanta

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference have gained a running back and lost their offense line coach.

Lincoln Minor, sensational 19-year-old, 230-pound running back from New Mexico State University who dropped out of school after his freshman year, has been signed.

Leaving Alouettes is Bob Griffin, who has accepted a job with Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

It is being described as "a friendly exhibition," but Victoria Cougars' game with NorWest Caps in the North Shore Community Centre on Friday could prove to be a thought-saver.

Mainly, the favors have been usage of NorWest

CHECK THAT BREAK!

Uvic Clipped By Maplettes

Both teams showed signs of rust after a three-week Christmas break, but Maplettes hit form "first and fastest" to edge University of Victoria Vikettes 35-31 Wednesday night at Uvic.

This isn't to say, however, that Maplettes will be counting on easy victories in the remaining three meetings with their Victoria rivals in the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League.

The Howie Tooby-coached Vikettes, twice recovering from large deficits, threatened down to the final whistle.

Maplettes shrugged off the effects of the long layoff first by jumping into an 11-1 lead. Vikettes bounced back to narrow the margin to 14-12 at one stage in the first half.

Maplettes pumped in the final five points before the half to restore a good lead. Again Vikettes rallied. Maplettes then ran in eight consecutive points and held off Uvic's remaining threats the rest of the way.

UBC NEXT

Mary Coutts sparked the winners with 13 points, a figure matched by Uvic's Heather Witzel. Jean Robertson dropped in 12 points for Vikettes.

Both teams play UBC Thunderettes at the weekend. Uvic hosts UBC Saturday at 6 p.m. while the visitors face Maplettes at 11 a.m. Sunday at Central Junior High School.

And then both Victoria teams tangle again on Tuesday at Uvic in round No. 2 of their cross-town feud.

Vikettes: 31—Jean Robertson 12, Heather Witzel 13, Rose Witzel, Peggy Robinson, Gail Vaughan, Barb Tribe 5, Maureen Wills, Lyn Haggard, Jeanine McMillan, Marcia McIntyre 4.

Maplettes (35)—Mary Coutts 13, Doreen Lusk 4, Arlene Wallin 4, Diana Brown 4, Marilyn Johnston 3, Judy Bourne, Gail Bonner, Irene Smith 2, Sylvia Campbell 4, Marg Foreman 2, Renate Krueger.

Chinese Cagers Bow

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Western Washington State College defeated a Republic of China basketball team 64-55 on Wednesday as the winners out-rebounded the Chinese 60 to 25.

Western never was threatened.

Like tenacious terriers, Vancouver-area teams keep snapping at the heels of Victoria Chinooks.

It was IGA Grocers' turn Wednesday. IGA nipped Killarney 74-73 to move into sole possession of second place, two points behind Victoria, in Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League activity here.

Grocers have a chance to join Chinooks tonight, meeting last-place CYO Saints.

Moe Turner's Chinooks will face another "snapper" — third-place North Shore Mountaineers — in a weekend series at Victoria's Central High gym.

Killarney was on top 42-34 at the half, but couldn't withstand a strong closing drive by Grocers. At one point in the final quarter, Grocers held a 69-60 advantage.

Dave Marshall, top man for Grocers with 21 points, scored the winning point on a free shot that made the score 74-71.

Rod Noble had 18 points for the winners, as did Frnz Krutter for Killarney.

VICTORIA — P. W. L. T. F. A. Pts.

Overtime Shot Carries Esquimalt Into Final

FOUR-TEAM TOURNAMENT AT OAK BAY

Oak Bay Senior High School plays host to a girls' basketball tournament Friday and Saturday. Nanaimo, Clarendon and Hillside of Vancouver will compete with Oak Bay. Nanaimo takes on Clarendon in the opener at 7 p.m. Friday followed by a Hillside-Oak Bay meeting at 8:30. On Saturday, losers clash at 7 and winners at 8:30 p.m.

PRO BASKETBALL

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION
Detroit 104, Boston 113.
New York 115, Milwaukee 101.
Atlanta 111, Philadelphia 112.

Ray Gregoire slammed in the goal which earned CFB Esquimalt a trip to the Canadian Armed Forces hockey championship on the strength of a 6-5 overtime victory over Comox at Esquimalt Sports Centre Wednesday.

It was the third successive overtime game in the Zone I playoffs determining the winner.

Both Comox and Chilliwack scored 4-2 and 6-2 victories, respectively, over the new champions during the first games of round-robin play Monday.

On Tuesday, both Comox and Esquimalt scored 4-3 overtime victories over Chilliwack to eliminate the 1968 Canadian champions.

Gregoire's goal came at 6:48 of the extra period. Esquimalt trailed three times and led twice during the seven-game.

Esquimalt opened scoring in the first period with a tally by Len Desjardins during the first minute of play only to have Lou White and Paul Godin put Comox ahead later.

Desjardins scored again in the second to even the count.

Dave Stones tied the score again at 3-3 after Jack Hamilton had connected for Comox in the second, and then put Esquimalt ahead early in the third.

Al Roquie and Mike Stephen sent Comox ahead again before Tony Zeller forced the extra time on a play with Gregoire and George Ede at 11:14.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Dick Hall, 177, Boston, stopped Jimmy Rosette, 173½, San Diego, 2; Gil Gallardo, 132, San Diego, stopped Manuel Fuentes, 133, Hermosillo, Mexico, 4.

Rancho Park Course Well-Liked by Arnie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — US Open champion Lee Trevino was ready to shoot for the works today as play began for a $100,000 purse in the Los Angeles open golf tournament.

Along with Trevino were such greats as Billy Casper, 1968 winner of the event, and three-time winner Arnold Palmer.

The setting is the 6,827-yard par 36-55-71 Rancho Park course where Palmer scored his victory in 1963 and successive wins in 1966 and 1967.

Canadians entered in the tournament are George Knudson of Toronto, Wayne Vollmer and Bob Cox Jr. of Vancouver.

The players hoped for better weather than Wednesday's for the pro-amateur round. It was cold and cloudy.

A year ago Trevino, yet to hit the headlines by winning the National Open, tied for eighth and earned a respectable $2,950 for four days of labor. The personable Mexican-American went on to pocket $132,127 for the year.

Trevino had a 72 in the pro-am, while Palmer shot a 69. Casper had a costly shot out of bounds and finished with a 73.

Veteran Gene Littler, whose first triumph in a professional tournament was in this 1955 event, had the low score of 65, worth $500.

Of the Canadians, only Knudson played in the pro-am and he did not turn in a card.

Don't Count On Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — The chairman of the board of Oakland's professional soccer team denied Wednesday he had promised to enter a new league.

The North American Soccer League said in Atlanta Tuesday that Oakland would be represented in the revamped league, which succeeds the 17-team league that competed last year. "I made no commitments at the meeting in Atlanta," said Joseph I. O'Neill, Jr. He added that he would discuss the situation with his partners in San Francisco, but said he "doubted" the team would enter the league, as it is now planned.

Sheffield Side Upsets Leeds

LONDON (Reuters) — Sheffield Wednesday upset Leeds United in a 2-0 victory over Second-Division rival Crystal Palace to earn a lucrative date against Arsenal, the new cup favorites.

Sheffield, losing finalists in 1966, fought back from being a goal down to become the first team this season to beat the Inter-Cities Fairs champions at home.

Winger Albert Johansson gave Leeds a seventh-minute lead, but then Bobby Woodall edged Sheffield ahead with goals in the 35th and 48th minutes and John Ritchie rounded off the scoring seven minutes from time.

Sheffield now meets Second-Division Birmingham City in the fourth round Jan. 25.

Kettering Town's challenge as the only non-league club left in the cup ended when it was beaten 2-1 in a replay against Third-Division Bristol Rovers. Ray Treacy, Charlton Athletic

Ancient Culture Blends With New

LONDON (CP) — The Japanese, renowned alike for their artistic and industrial skill, now have put the two together in an attempt to evolve a new art form expressing the age of plastics and electronics.

The result, as seen in an avant-garde gallery here, is a long way from willow-pattern prints. Canadians will have a chance to sample the experiment when it moves to Vancouver Art Gallery next month. The exhibition, Fluorescent Chrysanthemum, takes its title from the fact that many Japanese artists work with fluorescent plastics and paints, while the chrysanthemum is the traditional imperial flower of Japan.

More of a happening than a straight art show, it includes sculptures, graphics, mobiles, electronic music and flashing light formations—everything, in fact, but paintings. The visitor is riveted by such curiosities as a miniature pair of shoes in a cage which change color between white and blue depending on the angle of vision and a tiny fountain made of glass tubes which jets foam into the air.

It all seemed to baffle the London art critics. One who liked it was Norbert Lynton of The Guardian, who described it as "very entertaining" but expressed disappointment that few of the objects seemed particularly Japanese, or even Oriental.

Nigel Gosling of The Observer saw it as a blend of traditional Japanese austerity and a "playful engagement with current metropolitan fantasies ... an ancient culture coming to terms with a young one."

The show includes the work of 61 artists, designers and composers, and is sponsored by two Tokyo galleries which specialize in contemporary Japanese art.

'Full-Time Fireman—Your First Need'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A veteran fire protection officer said today there is no good reason why the Sidney and North Saanich volunteer fire department should have a paid chief.

Chief Al Beasley of View Royal, said he is against the practice in principle.

Appointment of a paid chief is one of the issues involved in the Sidney-North Saanich fire department controversy which flared up in December due to the resignation of volunteer Chief Hugh Honey.

Firemen decided to resign as volunteers Feb. 1 if the chief was not employed on a full-time basis. They also want voting powers on the municipal fire committee.

"Paid chiefs are not necessary," said Mr. Beasley. "If 99 per cent of the men are volunteers there is no reason why the chief should be paid. It's better for morale.

"A more practical approach to improve the efficiency of a volunteer force was to hire a full-time fireman to maintain the fire equipment and to work the pump truck," he said.

"That's all a volunteer force needs," he said. "That's what we have in View Royal."

Chief Beasley, who has served 21 years as head of the View Royal department, is regarded as an authority on organizing and administering volunteer forces.

The controversy is being watched with keen interest by volunteer fire fighting forces in the capital region. There are six—Sidney North Saanich, Central Saanich, View Royal, Colwood, Langford and Metchosis.

The forces are responsible for providing fire protection for 18,000 people.

The other demand by the north peninsula firemen, representation on the municipal fire committee with the right to vote, is regarded as an equally important issue in the controversy.

It may eventually be the basis for settling the dispute as some members are prepared to drop the request for a paid fire chief in favor of voting rights.

Under the present set-up, senior volunteer force officials attend fire committee meetings, discuss the business on hand, but have no vote on matters concerning their department. Only aldermen can vote and make recommendations to council.

Under the Municipal Act this could be rectified by council appointing a "standing" committee. It would be composed of aldermen and firemen. All members would have voting rights.

Such a committee has to be appointed by council—not by the mayor who sets up regular council committees.

A spokesman for the department of municipal affairs said the department encourages the appointment of standing committees—not only for fire protection but for other services.

"But most municipalities don't seem to get around to appointing them," he said. "It's rather disappointing."

He said such committees enabled more people to participate and to take an interest in municipal affairs.

"A committee composed of aldermen and experts can also save council a lot of time and work," he added.

Chief Beasley favors the appointment of such committees for fire protection.

"I see no reason why a citizen's group should not have voting powers on a fire committee," he said. "They are more acquainted with the problem of fire protection than aldermen. Their suggestions are an asset to the community."

The chief pointed out that the volunteers not only put out fires, but run ambulances and carry out other services for the community.

"The trouble is few people take an interest in their affairs," he said. "They don't even turn up for annual meetings."

A DAILY ENCOUNTER WITH ADVENTURE, GOOD TIMES

DUNCAN — Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Flett is one of the few people still living who can recall the big day the first Esquimalt and Nanaimo train steamed into Duncan with Sir John A. MacDonald and a group of major and minor celebrities aboard.

"They sure were surprised to find such a big crowd waiting for them," Mrs. Flett said. "Especially since it was almost decided that the railway station was going to be located at Soanemo."

Mrs. Flett is recovering in Cowichan District Hospital from a hip injury and a touch of flu that upset plans to celebrate her 95th birthday at home.

"The only reason they built the station on W. C. Duncan's farm was because the farmer at Soanemo wanted more money for his land," she said.

What a day that was. Old John A. himself... and coal baron Bob Dunsmuir and his stovepipe hat. He raised it to the crowd as they shoved off and shouted above the noise: "You'll get your station here."

"Every available person, white and Indian—must have been 2,000 or more—was there that day," Mrs. Flett said. With that kind of representation, they had to build the station here.

With that over with, Sir John and the E and N rattled on to Shawnigan Lake to hammer in the last spike. It was Aug. 13, 1886.

Along time ago to recall, but bright-eyed, clear-headed, and with a handshake that would put a longshoreman to shame, Mrs. Flett reminisced some more about those early days.

... 'bearish' times

She was born in California of Welsh parents. She would have been born in the Cowichan Valley along with all the other Evans brood (her father was longtime MLA John N. Evans) but her mother suddenly developed a new fear of Indians and returned to the Sunshine state.

Seems her mother had had a bad scare crossing the Plains with a wagon train that had been attacked and many people had been killed. However, mother Evans came back to B.C. when Mary Elizabeth was going on five. Mary Elizabeth wasn't afraid of Indians.

"Indians were my playmates as I grew up," she said. She attended school in the ancient brown building that now houses the Scouts at the corner of Indian and Maple Bay roads.

There were no bridges across the Cowichan River so she was ferried across daily by an Indian in his canoe. Life was a daily encounter with adventure. Like coming face to face with bears.

"We looked at each other for a while. Then he went and I went—different ways."

The big annual event was to go to the fairgrounds at Maple Bay. It took four hours in the oxen-pulled wagon from the homestead. You could trim off two hours if you got a ride in a wagon pulled by horses. That was speed.

But time wasn't important. Still, girls grew up fast. She married John W. Flett on Oct. 10, 1893 and they had three children, all living: Arnold in Victoria, Mable in Duncan and Alfred in Nanaimo.

This is only her second trip to hospital in 95 years but it is not her most memorable experience with the medical profession. That has to be the time she acted as nurse and worried—parent while the doctor took out Alfred's tonsils on the kitchen table.

Mrs. Flett is not too much impressed with man's progress in this age of whizzing back and forth to the moon. What can you say about a hospital where you can't even open the window to get some fresh air? But people and things were less complicated back then and that's what's really different.

"Sure we worked hard, but in the early days people here in the valley all seemed like one big family. We all helped each other."

Protection For Area Assured

Sidney council Wednesday moved to ensure that fire protection services will continue in the area after Jan. 31.

It gave first and second readings to an emergency bylaw which states the volunteer fire department is to continue to function until an agreement is reached between firemen and North Saanich and Sidney councils.

The firemen earlier had submitted their resignations, effective at the end of this month.

Chief Hugh Loney said while the bylaw does not compel the men to continue as firemen, they would observe it until an agreement is reached.

AGREE TO BYLAW

"We agreed to the bylaw," he said. The bylaw provides that if it passed it will become effective unless the resignations are rescinded, and will remain in force only until the dispute is settled.

It means that the firemen will continue to provide fire protection to 6,000 people in the municipality of North Saanich and Sidney. Chief Loney who resigned on Jan. 1, will continue as acting chief.

So far no headway has been made in settling the dispute. The volunteers are asking that Chief Loney be appointed a paid chief of the department.

They also want voting rights for their representatives on the municipal fire committee.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

'Pleasure Becomes a Sin In Rest of Province'

NANAIMO — Calling it "an archaic instrument, long outdated, long due for change," Liberal candidate Eric Winch Wednesday called for sweeping revision of the Lord's Day Act.

One of three candidates seeking the Nanaimo-Cowichan Islands seat in the Feb. 10 by-election, Mr. Winch made the statement to the Nanaimo Kiwanis Club meeting.

He said he wasn't calling for a wide-open Sunday.

"I am suggesting, however, that Sunday could and should be a day in keeping with modern times."

A former district magistrate, Mr. Winch said: "It's a little ridiculous when you realize that you can go to a football game on Sunday in Vancouver but that in the rest of B.C. the pleasure becomes a sin."

And, he added, "if we expect people to respect the law, then the law must take into consideration the desires of the community."

Saturday, at 8 p.m. in the Sooke community hall, Mr. Winch will appear in the first of a number of all-candidates meetings in the campaign for the seat left vacant by the summer death of veteran New Democratic Party MP Colin Cameron.

Other candidates are T. C. Douglas, national leader of the NDP, and Dr. Magnus Ver-brugge, the Progressive Conservative candidate.

LAKE COWICHAN — Results of an arbitration hearing between Lake Cowichan school board and the Teachers' Association, District 66, has brought the basic increase for teachers to an average of 7.91 per cent.

The increase, with a $100 differential, brings the salary scale in line with Cowichan School District 65.

Administrator and secretary of School District 66, R. J. Kimak, said this award increases payroll costs by 4 per cent.

DUNCAN — Stanley Gordon Campbell, of no fixed address, has been sentenced to 90 days at Oakalla prison farm after pleading guilty in magistrate's court on a charge of false pretences.

Court was told Campbell obtained tires, battery and gasoline valued in excess of $100 from Jim's E.A. Service on June 2 by using a credit card issued to an M. G. Brooks.

Campbell told court he was currently on bail from Vancouver on a similar charge. He said he had a heart condition and a Vancouver heart specialist had given him only six months to live.

"I have an extensive record, but I have never done any personal harm to anyone," he told Magistrate Lance Heard.

COWICHAN BAY — The fire department here will get a new truck costing $19,000 early in February, Clarence Ross, chairman of Cowichan Bay fire improvement district, said Wednesday.

Final reading to the necessary bylaw was given in December. A total of about $4,000 was accumulated in a trust fund set up at the time the improvement district was established in 1967. The balance will be borrowed from the government and repaid in 10 years.

The 1969 six-ton Ford from Silver Lines Fire Equipment Ltd. of Vancouver will replace a 1938 pumper unit the department obtained from the Oak Bay fire department 10 years ago.

TOFINO — Rev. Father T. L. Mackey, O.M.I., principal of Christie's residential school since 1964, has been promoted co-director of the Indian Apostolate for Vancouver Island.

He will continue to work for the integration of Indian children into local schools and for the welfare of Indians generally.

Father Mackey is particularly involved with the new Indian hostel to be built within the next two years on a site purchased by the Indian Affairs Department about three miles from Tofino.

Indian children from many parts of the West Coast of Vancouver Island will be housed and cared for at the hostel and will be integrated into the schools of school district No. 79 Ucluelet-Tofino.

During his term as principal of Christie's residential school, Father Mackey has been in charge of all the Oblate missions on the west coast of Vancouver Island, including the Holy Family Church, Ucluelet, and St. Francis of Assisi Church, Tofino.

In spite of ill health during the past year, he has worked untiringly for Indian welfare. He will be succeeded as principal of Christie's school by Rev. Father H. O'Connor, O.M.I., formerly acting principal.

PERMIT VALUES DOWN

NORTH COWICHAN — The total value of building permits issued in 1968 was $2,801,696, down from 1967's total of $3,300,479, village clerk A. Vandecasteyen said today.

December permits totalled $142,000, a drop of $84,100 from the same month in 1967. Seven new residences accounted for $128,000 and repairs to four residences amounted to $13,000.

There were 113 housing starts recorded in 1968 compared with 93 in 1967.

Village Facing Economic Strain

LAKE COWICHAN — This area is facing its worst economic situation in 10 or 15 years, village clerk Bill Chappell said Wednesday.

"We've got 25 vacant houses now and people are continuing to move out since the Hilcrest Lumber Company closed at Mesachie Lake," he said.

Mr. Chappell said the homes at Mesachie were quickly filled by loggers and workers from other nearby areas and also by some workers who commuted as far away as Sooke.

"Young couples can get in there by renting or low down payments," he said. "Our problem in Lake Cowichan is we can't get NHA mortgages and officials won't consider us because they say we must show a need, even ahead of sewers and other considerations.

"You can hardly blame them. What need have we to show with all those vacancies?"

The homes ranged from "cabins to two beautiful houses right on the river." One house belonged to a druggist, the other to a lawyer, both of whom have left the village.

"We need more people here," Mr. Chappell said, "but it seems people who work around here would rather live in Mesachie or Duncan."

He said another factor may be the precipitation. "Duncan gets about 25 inches a year. We get about 100 inches."

Bottle Aid Sought

Don't throw away the empty bottles you've accumulated over the holiday season. The Boy Scouts need them.

Five of 10 Victoria District Boy Scout and Cub groups will canvass Greater Victoria homes Saturday in their annual bottle drive.

The Don Kyle Choir will also be looking for bottles on the Saanich Peninsula from Royal Oak to the Sidney area. They are trying to raise $8,000 for a choir trip to Quebec next summer.

Bergerson Rites Held

DUNCAN — Funeral services were held today for Alfred Bergerson, 81, of Lake Cowichan, who died Jan. 4.

Born in Aas, Norway, Mr. Bergerson came to Canada 57 years ago and homesteaded in Saskatchewan. He moved to Lake Cowichan in 1950.

A member of Kontiki Lodge, Sons of Norway, he was also president of the Old Age Pensioners' Association, Lake Cowichan branch.

Mr. Bergerson was honored in 1958 when he returned to Norway to receive, on their Independence Day ceremonies, a medal for organizing the first boys' band in Oslo.

He is survived by one son and seven daughters. Interment at Mountain Cemetery followed services at First Funeral Chapel conducted by Rev. Ross Connal.

Smith Heads Region Board

DUNCAN — Director Alex Smith of North Oyster beat out Alderman John Cannon of North Cowichan Wednesday night to become new chairman of Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

The election was necessary because of the resignation of former chairman George Whitaker from North Cowichan council which automatically disqualified him from membership in the regional board.

New vice-chairman is director Ken McKinnon of Cowichan Bay. He defeated Al Anderson from the unorganized area of Lake Cowichan, and Alderman James Saunders of Duncan.

Mr. Whitaker thanked directors for their co-operation and expressed satisfaction that the board was continuing to follow up their protest over the provincial government's refusal to guarantee regional debentures.

A number of other replies from other regional districts supporting the request for government guarantees have been received. In other business, a resolution was passed asking that the attorney-general consider province-wide control of firecrackers.

Noted Guitarist Thrills Audience With Virtuosity

By BERYL PROUDMAN

The controlled delicacy and artistry with which Oscar Ghiglia played his recital of classical guitar music in the McPherson Playhouse Wednesday night must have reassured many who had begun to fear that raucous twangings and electronic amplification were inseparable from music for the guitar.

Remarkable for the restraint with which he performed miracles of dexterity, the guitarist set careful dynamic limitations on his playing and so compelled the audience to listen with close unfidgeting attention.

Composed, yet relaxed, Mr. Ghiglia awaited the complete silence he required before beginning to play and between each piece he tuned his instrument almost without audible sound.

NO FLOURISHING

There were no extravagant flourishes and even the most uninhibited of the Spanish numbers was played with controlled sensitivity.

Albeniz' Zambra Granadina was captivating with its dark chords, well-defined rhythm and the quietest pianissimo imaginable.

Turina's stirringly Spanish Fantasia Sevillana was played with classic precision even to the characteristic emphasizing knock-on-wood touches.

The first half of the program closed with an arresting sonata by Manuel Ponce which the composer had dedicated to Andres Segovia under whom Oscar Ghiglia studied.

Mr. Ghiglia's own transcription of a Bach Fugue in D Major was exciting in that the interwoven lines were kept interestingly distinct by the total variety of the guitar.

The large number of young people who listened so attentively and thronged round the artist after the performance shows how popular the guitar has become in the last few years and many people look forward to hearing Mr. Ghiglia again when he appears with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra Sunday and Monday.

E & N Appeals $22,000 Taxes

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co. has filed an appeal in British Columbia Supreme Court against a tax levy of $22,000 on two pieces of property.

The appeal, against the provincial government, named Attorney-General Leslie Peterson as defendant in the action.

Basis for appeal is that the railway, a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, feels it is not liable for taxes under provisions of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Land Belt Tax Act.

Transplant Computer Planned by Russia

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet surgeons, whose only heart transplant patient died of complications, will use computers in choosing donors and planning post-operative care in future transplants, a leading physician said today.

The computer will help determine the best time for the transplant and will evaluate the condition of the recipient and the donor, Prof. Alexander Vishnevsky wrote in Pravda, the newspaper of the Communist party.

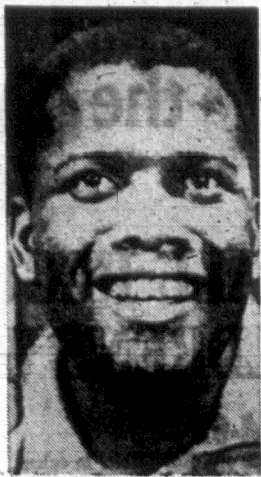

The only announced attempt to transplant a human heart in the Soviet Union ended in the death of the recipient last November, 33 hours after the operation. A Soviet newspaper announced Jan. 1 that five other patients are awaiting heart transplants, but nothing further has been said of them.

Vishnevsky predicted computers will help solve the problem of tissue rejection in heart transplant operations. Computers also could be used to diagnose diseases of the blood, lungs and central nervous system.

He said a computer used in his research institute made accurate diagnoses in 90 to 92 per cent of all cases. It was most effective in dealing with complex cases of heart failure.

Vishnevsky also called for the creation of an international electronic medical archive which would carry coded case histories on punched cards.

Drug Seminar For Teachers Will Be Held

Prompted by "grave concern" over increasing use of drugs in B.C., the provincial government is asking each local school board to send a representative to a two-day seminar on the problem.

Education Minister Donald Brocks said Wednesday the government wants to help public school personnel learn how to handle the situation among young people in the province.

Describing the problem as "the use and abuse of drugs," the minister said an educational program, while not the only answer, was an important step towards a solution.

DATE OF SEMINAR

The seminar will be held in Burnaby Feb. 27 and 28. Its aim will be to assist schools develop programs to fit their local areas.

Papers will be presented by invited specialists and workshops will study educational materials available.

Mr. Brocks said he particularly appreciated assistance from the provincial trustees' and teachers' associations who are co-sponsoring the seminar with the department.

Following hearings last session by the legislature's social welfare and education committee, a report was presented calling for a soft approach to first-offence marijuana users.

The report suggested a program of research, education and treatment for users. The committee recommended the study be continued this year.

Study Shows Drug Use Frequent By Toronto High School Students

TORONTO (CP) — School trustees have called for a massive drug education program after a survey released Wednesday showed drug use among students in Toronto public high schools is at "serious levels."

The report, issued by the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation after a five-month study, said 9.5 per cent of the 6,447 students surveyed admitted they had used tranquilizers at least once.

William Ross, former chairman of the Toronto board of education, said an intensive school program should be initiated to warn students of the dangers of drugs. The program, he said, should concentrate especially on drugs such as methedrine and morphine.

Alan Archer, chairman of the North York board of education, said he was "shocked and dismayed" by the findings of the survey, but George Cartwright, chairman of the East York board of education said the report should not be taken too literally.

"I think the figures are not really as high as the survey indicates," he said. "Young people, when given a survey, sometimes have fun with it and exaggerate or play around."

DEFENDS THE SURVEY

Dr. Reginald Smart, psychologist in charge of the report, said it was the most thorough survey of its type ever undertaken in North America.

Education Minister William Davis came under criticism by Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, for not having introduced instruction on the effects of drugs, alcohol and tobacco into the province's high schools.

Mr. Nixon said steps should be taken to have teachers trained by the addiction research foundation to pass the knowledge on to students. He also demanded the use of educational television channels to inform parents.

The survey also showed that 7.3 per cent of the students had used stimulants, 6.7 per cent marijuana, 5.7 per cent glue, 4.6 per cent hallucinogenic drugs, including LSD, 3.3 per cent barbiturates, and 1.9 per cent had tried opiates such as codeine and morphine.

The highest incidence of use is among Grade 9 students with 10.8 per cent admitting they had used marijuana, 9.4 per cent glue and 3.9 per cent LSD. Three per cent of Grade 9 students admitted they had used opiates. Boys were shown to be heavier users than girls, except with tranquilizers where 10.4 per cent of the girls have used them compared with 8.1 per cent of boys.

CIGARETTE HIJACKERS OUTWITTED BY DRIVER

LONDON (Reuters)—The driver of a truck carrying $104,000 worth of cigarettes outwitted a gang of hijackers today by ramming the bandits' pickup truck then throwing his own ignition keys away. The hijackers, left with no means of carrying away the cigarettes, walked away empty-handed.

Educational TV Launches Part-Time Network in U.S.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — National Educational Television launched, with a marked lack of fireworks, an experimental venture that might be called a part-time network.

For the next six months, under substantial grants from the Ford Foundation and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting plus reduced rates by the telephone company, NET will broadcast simultaneously to some 130 stations for two hours on five nights a week.

NET, with its Ford Foundation grant, has been sending programs on these stations on a once-a-week basis since last season.

The expanded project started Monday night with a discussion program taped in Hong Kong involving four journalists analysing the situation in Southeast Asia. Discussion shows are common on television these days and more to the point was the second hour, a film showing starving Biafrans, caught in a power struggle.

The program was raggedly edited and indifferently filmed. It included interviews with leaders of Biafra explaining their war for self-determination, thin long interviews with Nigerian leaders propounding their views.

GRIM PICTURE

But the heart of the program was the material showing small children so thin that every bone showed; and resigned and frightened older people.

Representatives of church groups explained with frustration their inability to provide enough food for refugees and displaced families—one skinny meal a day was the limit.

Educational stations are high-minded, worthy and concerned, but it does seem that a little showmanship in programming would help.

Commercial network viewers have a legitimate gripe about the timing of U.S. television's only two prime-time news shows. CBS has long turned over a Tuesday night hour to its news division, and this season the 10-11 p.m. period consists of a magazine-format show called 60 Minutes every other week.

Now NBC has come along with its new monthly magazine-format show called First Tuesday and dropped it into a time period in direct conflict. NBC, however, is a two-hour show, pre-empting its feature movie rerun.

Viewers who catch the NBC premiere tonight will find an interview with Dr. Philip Blalberg, the survivor of an early heart transplant, and another with Rita Hayworth. CBS at about the same time will have Otto Skorzeny, an SS (elite corps) colonel under Hitler, telling how he engineered the escape of Benito Mussolini from Italian protective custody in 1943. There will also be an interview with Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jury selection apparently will not start until Monday in the Sirhan-Bishara Sirhan trial on charges of murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Defence motions took up most of Wednesday, as they did Tuesday's opening session, and defence counsel prepared more for submission today.

However, Grant B. Cooper, one of three defence lawyers, said the defence and prosecution had agreed—after a closed session in the chamber of Judge Herbert V. Walker—to begin questioning prospective jurors no later than Monday.

The trial had its first witness Wednesday—an expert on juries. William Q. Goodwin, the Los Angeles County jury commissioner, testified on how prospective jurors are selected.

Cooper argued that the list of prospective jurors should be set aside on the grounds of not comprising "a true cross-section of the community."

Cooper presented motions to set aside the jury list and to quash the indictment.

Judge Walker, as Wednesday's session ended, left rulings on both in abeyance until later in the proceedings.

U.S. SCIENTISTS HURL CHALLENGE

No Little Green Men from Outer Space

From Reuters-AP
WASHINGTON (CP) — A top-level group of American scientists today challenged theories that flying saucers are spacecrafts from distant planets.

A $500,000 report commissioned by the U.S. Air Force said a two-year investigation uncovered no evidence that flying saucers, or unidentified flying objects (UFOs), were of extraterrestrial origin.

The 1,485-page report was endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences which said there seemed to be no reason to doubt its conclusions without evidence more convincing than now available.

But it seemed certain to set off a new furor from groups which claim the air force tried to suppress information suggesting UFOs might be real and be a threat to U.S. security.

None of the scientists involved in the investigation is a government official or employee.

The report suggested dropping further investigations. "Our general conclusion is that nothing has come from the study of UFOs in the last 21 years that has added to scientific knowledge," the report said. "Further extensive study of UFOs probably cannot be justified" at this point in the interest of science.

The scientists, headed by Colorado's Dr. Edward U. Condon, acknowledged their conclusions are bound to stir new controversy among flying saucer-believers as well as other dedicated scientists who want to keep an open mind on the matter.

One of the several flying saucer groups—the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena—scheduled a Friday news conference to discuss the "Scientific Study of Unidentified Flying Objects." The group charged last May the Condon study lacked impartiality.

Among the study's major points:

— "No direct evidence whatever of a convincing nature now exists for the claim that any UFOs represent spacecraft visiting earth from another civilization."

— About 90 per cent of all UFO reports "prove to be quite plausibly related to ordinary objects" such as planes, satellites, balloons, street lights, beacons, clouds or other natural phenomena.

— Defence needs probably could be carried out "without the continuance" of the air force's Project Blue Book which has investigated UFO reports since 1947, but this is a matter for the defence department to decide.

— Suggestions by some people that the government possesses extraterrestrial spacecraft and has their crews in secret captivity are "fantastic nonsense."

— Allegations the government has attempted an official cover-up of the flying saucer matter have "no factual basis whatever."

— Some public school students are being "educationally harmed by absorbing unsound and erroneous" reading materials on UFOs, and "we strongly recommend" teachers stop giving them credit for reading saucer books and articles.

The scientists presented 35 cases where UFOs were photographed, or appeared to have been.

Nine were said to give evidence of "probably fabrication," seven were classified as natural or man-made phenomena and 12 provide insufficient data for analysis.

None proved to be "real objects with high strangeness."

Since the air force's Project Blue Book began investigating "flying saucers" in 1947, there have been 12,097 UFO sightings, 697 of which remain "unidentified."

The report covered case studies of 59 UFO reports, recounted the history of UFO sightings, looked at UFO study programs in foreign countries and focused on 20 years of past U.S. study of UFO phenomena.

UFO reports around the world vary so greatly, the report said, "it is impossible" to relate them to a single explanation.

Arthur Mayse

About this time last year, I confided to a friend that we'd very much like to take in Expo 70 at Osaka.

"Then you'd better start saving," he said. "For a start here's that quarter I owe you."

We put the coin away, and settled down to save like fury. The months passed with their ups and downs, their income and outgo. Then, on a morning of this present grey January, we decided to check our Expo stake.

It consisted of the original, slightly tarnished two-bits; but being optimistic by nature, we haven't abandoned hope. Obviously, though, we need a definite target to shoot at. With this in mind, I dropped in at Blaney's Travel Service Ltd. on lower Douglas to pick up some facts and figures.

Several fugitives from our stern Victoria winter were arranging trips to warm places, but experienced Orient traveller Andrew Blaney spared time to brief me.

Asia's first world exposition — "Progress and Harmony for Mankind" its theme and the cherry blossom its symbol — is already pulling in enquiries at the rate of 30 to 40 calls a day.

Any number of tours are being laid-on, I learned, and the prospective traveller to Expo 70 will have a wide range of options. Even so, early registration is advisable.

Andy Blaney sped another escapist on his way to Aca-pulco, then returned with folders and rate-sheets. The traveller with time and inclination for a sea voyage can choose between two lines — American President from San Francisco, or P and O from Vancouver.

Existing rates from Vancouver, return fare, tourist, range from $747 to $936 in Canadian funds, depending on whether you choose direct or roundabout route. First class passage splices from $896 to a breathtaking $3,492 for the equivalent of a royal suite. If your leisure and funds run to it, stopovers at such way-points as Australia or New Zealand can be arranged.

Remembering that lone quarter, I explained to Mr. Blaney that travel on the grand scale might be a little too rich for our blood.

He then turned cheerfully to the all-inclusive CPA and Japan Airlines tours for which most Victoria pilgrims to Expo 70 are expected to sign up.

The one I yearned over covers four days at Expo, visits to various Japanese cities, and generous stops at Hong Kong and Honolulu. Time, 23 days. Cost, exclusive of some land meals, $1,275 from Victoria.

It is worth noting that four days at Expo is the limit set by Japan through its travel bureau for a single visit. This is to ensure a brisk turnover of rooms and suites. Accommodation threatens to be tight, and to prevent possible extortion attempts, strictly policed rates must be pre-paid at this end of the trip.

That's another reason why the package tour will be popular. A passport is essential. So are inoculations against smallpox and cholera. Also urged is a "TABT" shot against typhoid (two varieties) and tetanus.

That last struck me as rather grim, but Mr. Blaney disposed of the shots as mere precautions. He likes Japan, and finds that the Japanese resemble Victorians in that they're never too busy to listen and assist. English is Japan's second language, and if in doubt at Expo 70, one need only consult one of numerous policemen who will be wearing linguist armbands.

A fine scenic country with a temperate summer climate much like ours, my informant concluded. He then produced more folders, and suggested that though Expo 70 will run on to Sept. 13 from its March 15 opening, a nice time to go would be in spring when the cherry blossom's out.

I couldn't agree more heartily. There is still that lrisome little matter of finances. However, we've now added a second quarter to our Expo fund, in hopes that the two will get busy and multiply.

WEATHER WARNING REMAINS

Snow, Cold Wave Here on Friday

The Victoria weather office is sticking to its Wednesday prediction — colder weather and a generous snowfall before the week-end.

Skies will be cloudy this evening with showers occurring in lower levels and snow flurries at higher elevations.

But sometime Friday an ominous weather system which is now just south of the Queen Charlottes, will arrive over Vancouver Island.

Temperatures which will hover tonight and early Friday in the 34 to 38 level (colder at higher elevations) will drop sharply as cold mainland air follows the area of low pressure.

This is a strong indication "we're going to get it" said a weather official.

VANCOUVER REPORTS

Reports by some other news sources, suggesting an easing of the earlier promised bad weather were based on Vancouver weather office reports and were not specifically directed to Victoria, the local official said.

Vancouver got four to eight inches of snow Wednesday following a mainland storm warning which was withdrawn later.

There were two inches of new snow at Nanaimo overnight and also at Comox.

Port Alberni got seven inches, bringing the total on the ground to 23 inches.

The Malahat received three inches of new snow overnight and police were again advising that snow tires or chains are necessary for Malahat traffic.

SEVERAL WEEKS BEHIND

Anticipation of a new wave of wintery weather leaves area plumbers unenthusiastic. A spokesman for the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association, Mike Griffin, said local plumbers are still several weeks behind repair jobs caused by the Boxing Day freeze.

He said emergency jobs were completed and "nobody's suffering" but many ruptured pipes in warehouses are still to be repaired.

A spokesman for Shell Fuel Oils said their distributors were still far behind schedule in home deliveries following the post-Christmas emergency period. They also were worried about another rush.

"District garbage collection also is still behind schedule in most areas although extra crews are on the job in some cases."

Seattle Man Still at Large; Jumped off Truck

A 21-year-old man who escaped from Wilkinson Road prison farm Wednesday afternoon was still at large at press time today.

Allen Samuel Johnson, of Seattle, was serving 21 days for impaired driving. He was convicted at Sidney and had been in prison for only a few days.

The man was being transported back to the institution with a work group when he jumped off the back of a truck and ran away, officials said.

He is described as five feet, 11 inches, black hair, brown eyes and wearing a yellow waterproof jacket. He was last seen on Interurban Rd. heading for the highway. A search with a police dog failed to find him.

His date of release from prison was to be Jan. 23.

PROVINCE WON'T CERTIFY HOSPITAL CLAIMS

Flu 'Symbol' Denied Victorians

By PETE LOUDON

The newest status symbol—the phrase "I've got Hong Kong flu"—is still being denied Victorians.

Reports were circulated earlier today that two cases of Hong Kong flu were "definitely diagnosed" during the past month at St. Joseph's Hospital.

But the provincial health department has refused certification.

Before anyone can have Hong Kong flu he must pass rigorous blood and throat swab tests in the provincial health department laboratory in Vancouver. It's the only lab in the province with staff and equipment suited to the tests.

To date only one set of TUSOCK MOTHS by the thousands are reared by the Federal Forestry Laboratory on Burnside as research scientists probe for ways to control the pesky creatures which eat Douglas Fir needles.

Lab technician Pat Olsen keeps an eye on a brood here. Eggs are refrigerated and later hatched for experiments.

The federal laboratory works for provincial governments and industry in battling hazards to forests. While three billion cubic feet of timber were harvested in Canada last year, insects, disease and fire destroyed another two billion cubic feet.

A new building adjoining the federal forest research laboratory on Burnside Road was officially opened today by regional director Ray Lejeune.

The new facilities will provide accommodation for six fully equipped laboratories and 11 offices for forest insect and disease survey personnel. The building is designed as a preparatory unit for four experimental greenhouses.

"This building," said Mr. Lejeune, "will enable us to supply suitable facilities for the additional staff employed since the erection of the main laboratory in 1965."

Until now, many of the 186 research scientists, technicians, administration and service personnel have been forced to double up on laboratory and office space.

Lecture Series On Town Planning

A prominent urban planner will start a University of Victoria lecture series on city development Friday at noon.

Dr. Arthur Grey, chairman of the department of urban planning at the University of Washington, will speak on "Anticipating the Future of Cities."

The lecture will be open to the public and is to be held at 12:30 in Room 112 of the Cornett (social sciences) Building. Several more lectures will develop the theme of urban growth through the spring term.

But it will not move on all, or even most of them, at once for fear of gutting the construction trade market and driving the cost of building up.

THIRD WING

The government keeps a tight rein on school building by passing on projects at the sketch plan stage, again before working drawings are prepared, and finally before jobs are allowed to go to tender.

The department of education has granted this latter approval

City Drops Pre-Budget Competition

Victoria city council has decided to abandon its traditional but often interminable pre-budget discussions at the committee level.

In the past various council committees have stretched detailed budget talks over several weeks as they approved or vetoed requests from department heads.

This year a select committee comprised of city manager Dennis Young, comptroller James Bramley and the department head and committee chairman involved, will do all the preliminary spadework.

The first time full council will see the budget for 1969 will be in its completed form some time in April.

TIME CONSUMING

The major switch in budget discussion policy was recommended early in 1968 by Mr. Bramley who noted that the prolonged discussions often proved too time consuming and too arduous for the working alderman.

Mayor Hugh Stephen and council have approved the procedural change.

"For some years now our approach to the development of our current budget has taken the form of a preparation of individual departmental estimates in isolation from the broad priorities of the community and the ability of the city to finance them," Mayor Stephen said.

"The requests of individual departments have been compared financially to the expenditures of previous years and have been placed before the various standing committees without prior co-ordination."

COMPETITION

The mayor said that such a method introduced a competitive attitude to departmental estimates as each department head made a bid for a favorite project under his jurisdiction.

He added that the result was that budget talks often degenerated into an atmosphere of "I'll give up this item if my pet project can remain."

Fire Department Gets Ambulance Contract

You Can Walk, Jog, Swim or Pedal A Shiny Silver Spoon

By BOB MITCHELL

The Victoria branch of the YM-YWCA has extended a challenge to this community to get into shape, and is offering a silver teaspoon to anyone who can meet certain standards of physical fitness.

Fitness 69 was outlined Wednesday by Y physical director Art Burgess. It's the hard way to win a silver teaspoon, harder than buying a tank of gasoline, but it may be salvation for local armchair athletes from a health standpoint.

Participants will compete against themselves in one of four activities: swimming, walking, jogging or cycling. In order to qualify for a prize you have to log a prescribed number of miles in your chosen event within six months.

JOG 100 MILES

For example, if you decide to run, you'll be setting your sights on jogging 100 miles (about four miles a week), during the next six months.

If you decide to swim, you'll have to splash 25 miles; if cycling is your bag, then you can look forward to pedalling 750 miles; and walkers will have to stride off 250 miles.

Fitness 69 is an expanded version of the Centennial Mile which was sponsored by the Y two years ago on a nationwide basis. Victoria had the highest per capita participation in Canada during the 1967 event, Burgess said, and due to popular demand it is being revived and revamped in 1969 by local Y organizers.

The program will become effective next Monday, Jan. 13. If you want to get in on the action, it will cost you a dollar to register. Just drop in to the YM-YWCA building at Quadra and Broughton where you can pay your fee and pick up a performance card.

HONOR SYSTEM

From then on it's up to you to run, walk, swim or pedal the miles, tallying the daily or weekly distances yourself. The honor system will be used, Mr. Burgess said, and the Y will make individual participants responsible for the success of Fitness 69.

However, organizers have stipulated a maximum and minimum distances to be covered by participants during a given outing. A runner should go at least one-half mile, but not more than three miles at a time; you can swim up to one mile, but not less than one-eighth of a mile; walk at least one mile, but not more than ten; and cycle a minimum of two miles, but not over 20.

KEY FACTOR

"Duration" was the key factor in determining the distances to be covered in each activity, the physical director said. For example, it takes about the same amount of time and energy to swim one-quarter of a mile as it does to run one mile.

Likewise, running a mile is roughly equivalent to pushing a bicycle four miles.

The most available swimming pools in Victoria are at the Y and the Crystal Garden.

There are also pools at Royal Roads, HMS Naden and in Colwood.

Running courses with distances marked off have been provided by the Y at the following parks: Camarvan,

ART BURGESS
... six-month limit

Windsor, Reynolds, Hampton and Bullen.

Cyclists are advised to connect a speedometer to their machine.

The walking event was included mainly for the benefit of middle-aged and elderly persons who may not be up to the more strenuous activities, Mr. Burgess added.

WOMEN WELCOME

If Fitness 69 sounds somewhat masculine in portent, the physical director would like to stress that women are more than welcome to take part. He takes pride in pointing out that in 1967, during the Centennial fitness program, the fastest mile clocked on the Y's rooftop track was a 6:42 performance by a local woman school teacher, Bis Whitby.

He also underlines the incentive value of tokens of achievement, such as the silver teaspoons he will be awarding six months hence:

"I used to think businessmen were too blasé to care about getting a crest for being able to swim a hundred yards, but I changed my mind when I saw how much pride they took in wearing their crest on their jacket."

Service To Start In Spring

Victoria city's fire department will move back into the emergency ambulance service business this spring.

Estimated cost of the move has been set at $184,416 of which $6,000 will be spent on equipment.

The decision to hire eight extra men to provide round-the-clock emergency service was made at a full council committee meeting this morning.

Four private firms bid for the job in addition to the second low bid from the fire department.

Tenders were called in December after Garden City Ambulance, the firm now operating the emergency service, informed the city that it was in grave financial difficulty.

The private company has been operating the service for 18 months and has a further 18 months to go on the old contract. But it informed the city some weeks ago it would require substantial financial aid to avoid bankruptcy.

FIRM WAS WARNED

The plight of the company came as no surprise to city officials who had warned at the time Garden City submitted its first and winning bid that the tender was too low to be realistic.

The company insisted that it could run the operation and make a profit.

Garden City was low bidder again on the re-tender call, but said city manager Dennis Young, "their current bid is no more realistic than the previous one, even though their total cost is almost 100 per cent higher."

Garden City came in at $173,750 as compared with the minimum cost from the fire department of $178,416 plus the $6,000 for a new ambulance.

Other bids were from CPS Service, a new company not in the ambulance business but willing to purchase equipment and hire staff if successful with its tender, at $215,540.

Victoria Ambulance Service asked $270,000 for the job and Capital City Ambulance $313,431.

COST CHALLENGED

While all aldermen agreed that the fire department should get the contract and its eight extra men Ald. Clyde Savage challenged the estimated annual cost of $178,416.

"I don't think that is a realistic figure at all," he said. "I'm in favor of the fire department doing the job, but I think we may as well face the fact that it is going to cost a lot more than stated here."

The city manager said the cost estimate was based on union pay rates plus all fringe benefits for eight men.

Train Wreck Cancels Show

Showing of a three-hour silent film, "Tolerance," by the Uvic student film society tonight has been cancelled because of a train wreck.

Society director Stein Gudmundsen said today the CNR had advised him delivery of the film has been delayed by a derailment at Chase Wednesday.

The 1916 film will now be shown next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the university's MacLaurin auditorium.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you give me the latest population figures for these cities: Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver? I refer to the metropolitan area.—N. W.

A. The following figures are listed in the McGraw Hill Canadian Almanac, 1968: Ottawa, 396,000; Hamilton, 283,345; Windsor, 187,418; Montreal, 2,436,817; Toronto, 1,825,099; Winnipeg, 499,218; Edmonton, 361,230; Calgary, 335,806; Vancouver, 282,266.

Q. Where can I get the address for the Ontario apprenticeship board?—P.W.

A. Write to J. D. Burge, Manpower Services Division, 74 Victoria St., Toronto 18, Ontario.

Anyone wishing a question answered in the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Prior to his appointment, Capt. Carle was chief personnel officer at Canadian Forces Base, Halifax.

Mathilda Hears Wonderful News

By PENNY SAVER

"Penny, Penny, the most wonderful thing has happened!" Never have I seen Mathilda so excited! She came bursting through every room in the house, neatly missing the one I was in. She found me at last (but only because there were no more wrong rooms left to look in) and waved a piece of paper in front of my face. It was a letter from her daughter saying she and her family were going to move. Mathilda's daughter Norma, is married to a doctor who has spent the past five years working at a clinic somewhere in South America. "He's been studying all sorts of diseases and the native cures," Mathilda explained once, "While the clinic hasn't found any new miracle drugs, they have discovered one or two things that have helped forward the work of major researchers." It seems that the people who sponsor the clinic agree with this view for they have asked Norma's husband to join their research team at a large American university. For Norma this will mean setting up a new household in "civilization," quite a task since the couple sold most of their goods before going to the clinic.

House-Warming Gift

Even though it will be weeks before she can send it, Mathilda had to rush right down to buy a house-warming gift for Norma. With her usual luck, she walked right into a store that was having a January sale. "I like that one, I'll take it," she cried, still nervous with excitement. The saleswoman smiled. "That decanter set is regularly $25.95 but right now it is selling for $19." Mathilda didn't even hear, but I asked and learned that the discount prices will continue until early February.

At the same price as the decanter set Mathilda bought is one in a pattern of purple diamonds outlined in gold. This set includes six long-stemmed glasses and a tall, thin decanter with a long glass stirring rod. The decanter has no handle. The top is rippled and pinched in to make two pouring lips, one on each side. There were several decanter sets in different styles at varying prices, most keeping to the purple and gold theme.

"You would sell these at the regular price, surely," I commented while the saleswoman was wrapping. "Why discount them?" "So there will be room for new stock," she answered sensibly. There is a discount on many items in this particular store right now including most of the mugs and all the colored glass items. These latter, which are quite diverse, regularly sell between $5.95 and $12.95 and are now priced between $3.95 and $8.95.

Turkey On a Plate

I was rather taken with some plates that were displayed on the walls. These were cake-size plates in white printed over in a turkey design. A five-pointed star in a dark sepia brown runs around the edge of each plate forming a deep frame for the turkey who is mostly sepia himself. His broad breast is tinted blue, his head red and his beak yellow. A smear of green shows he is standing on grass. The design resembles an old engraving in style, and these plates make great wall decorations as well as attractive dishes. The regular price is $1.95 but the remaining stock will sell for $1.25.

Also on the sale list is Spanish jewelry. Brooches in this line that regularly sell from between $2.50 to $2.95 are now selling from between $1 to $1.95. This jewelry features a raised paisley-ish pattern in gold against a black background. Highlights on the pieces are often picked out in silver or a color. The brooches include many animal shapes such as a prancing horse (or is it a ram?), an elephant balancing on a ball, a dog, a peacock or a butterfly.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know the name of the store we visited.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Lobster Whirligigs

One can (5 ounces) lobster
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Pastry for 1-crust pie
½ cup grated Cheddar
cheese

Drain lobster and remove cartilage. Chop finely or mash in a blender. Add mayonnaise and mustard, mix well. Combine pastry and cheese. Between sheets of waxed paper, roll to a rectangle 8x12 inches and about ¼-inch thick. Remove top-sheet of waxed paper. Spread pastry with lobster mixture. Beginning with the long side, roll up as for jelly roll, lifting waxed paper slightly with each turn. Seal edge. Wrap roll in waxed paper and chill for at least one hour. When firm, cut into ¾-inch slices. Place about 2 inches apart on a lightly greased baking sheet and bake at 400 degrees F. until pastry is cooked and edges lightly browned. This will take 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 3½ dozen.

"Hostile Little Enemies" Should Be Given a Choice

By NANCY L. ROSS

The scene is the family breakfast table. Mother says to her four-year-old, "Bruce, would you like orange juice or tomato juice today?" The child replies instantly, orange juice. As mother takes the orange juice out of the refrigerator, Bruce decides he wants tomato juice instead.

Rather than get annoyed, the mother should realize that to a four-year-old mind a miracle has happened: an adult has reacted to something he said. Because children's hostility toward their parents is often caused by their dependence on them, their hostility can be diminished by making the children more independent, by giving them a choice in what affects their young lives.

So says Dr. Halm Ginott, author of "Between Parent and Child." Dr. Ginott, a graduate of Columbia, has conducted workshops in child psychotherapy and parent guidance here and abroad.

Parents, says Ginott, should stop treating their children like friends because they are really hostile enemies.

"Have you ever wondered why children and grandparents get along so well? It's because they have a common enemy."

Ginott refers back to the breakfast table. Although there are 10 brands of cereal on the shelf, the child wants another one.

The "goody-goody" mother, curriers and all, would jump in the car, drive to the store for the cereal and thus make the child a tyrant.

Another mother would scold "Why is it you always want what we don't have? Millions of children around the world don't have enough to eat. Now stop complaining and eat your cereal."

The correct response, says Dr. Ginott, is to agree with the child that it would be nice to have his cereal today and say you are making a note to get some just for him. Grant the child in fantasy what you cannot give him in reality, he says.

Another of the psychologist's axioms is never to argue with another person's experience because it may create destructive conflicts.

A child says the soup is too salty. Should a mother tell him it's not, she has tasted it and to shut up and eat, the child, Ginott says, will grow up not knowing whether to trust his own taste buds or his mother. Instead, she ought to reply, "Oh, so you find it salty?"

Chances are the child merely wanted to register his own point of view and having done so, will eat the soup, says Dr. Ginott.

"Receptive silence" and

"active listening", punctuated by emotional grunts "Oh, I see" — are recommended.

Ginott says a parent never should attack a child's dignity or personality when criticizing him. The parent should talk only about the situation and a remedy.

For example, when a child spills his milk, the mother may scold, "How many times have I told you to be careful? You are getting worse than your little brother." The father may added, "You always were a clumsy child; you'll never change."

Once the child is cast to this mold, he probably won't change, the doctor says. Instead, the parent should hand the child a sponge and give him the responsibility of cleaning up the mess, he says. (The Washington Post Co.)

Adele Simpson Fans Women of Taste Who Like Her Youthful Designs

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

The ins began the calm, well-thought-out fashions of Adele Simpson. Her fans are well-off women of taste who want to look youthful but pretty, and never want their clothes to be mistaken for those cheap little "youth" things found in Greenwich Village boutiques. It's a very good Simpson collection, based, as always, on Miss Simpson's consciousness of travel. It opens, for example, with a four-part wardrobe which can all be worn rather than taking up suitcase room. It consists of black pants and shaped coat, plus a wrap skirt over a print dress which matches a print head scarf.

The theme stated here continues throughout, with many of the coats in casual bathrobe style, and jumpers added which are done in suspender looks. While liking the red, white and blue which is everywhere for spring, Miss Simpson sees grey as still going strong, in checked cotton suits or coat-dresses with flat pleating and white collars. Although well inside the current trends, Miss Simpson steers clear of the common midriff insets in favor of wide elasticized belts with hooked buckling. Her suits more often have very long, fitted jackets rather than boleros, over pleated skirts which show only a few inches below the coat-like jacket. Dresses have swirl skirts, white collars and a touch of hardware, such as side clasps. In cocktail dresses, chiffons and organzas, charm in muted beiges and greys, polka dots and quiet abstract prints.

a young duo, Beverly Moyer and Bill De Natale, at a different price level from that of Simpson, and theirs is a way of dressing well, in the current mode, at a young price.

They begin with costumes in red, white and blue checks or plaids, the little navy wool dresses having white collars and rope belts ending in glitter balls. Then come cocktail dresses in skimmer, coat-dress, and panel-pleat silhouettes, with band collars, velvet sashes, glitter buttons or jeweled bibs, often with little bolero jackets.

Long evening dresses feature small, high bodices, with the skirt flaring out from beneath the bodice. They are in crepe, sometimes with contrast beaded midriffs, as in a green crepe with white, or a beaded bolero. Pants appear in a black and white panel costume of dress over pants, and a bow to Orientalism is made in a pale blue and white brocade caftan with white and silver embroidery down the front.

Following these two interpreters of the current mode came Chester Weinberg, who hasn't usually been one of those leading to the farthermost pasture of fashion. Not so this spring. He has come up with one of his strongest collections, carrying a definite theme throughout in a manner to make a woman go crazy deciding which of all those goodies she will choose when she wants every last one of them.

Shape is the strong thing here. It is nearly a pure princess, cleanly fitted and flared, with nothing "casual" about it, but it is done in separates. A sleeveless beige coat goes over a cream shirt-sleeved dress with the longest of inset midriffs crossed by a narrow belt, and a crisply pleated skirt. This theme is repeated with variations, such as a plaid coat whose black sleeves look as if they belong to the sleeveless dress beneath, or a pants suit which looks dressy enough for even an anti-pants woman to love.

(A Fashion League Feature)

The spring season will see the combination of red, white and blue high on the popularity poll of fashion. Adele Simpson uses these colors in the outfit shown here, with red jersey for the polo coat, which is lined in the same navy and white plaid silk that forms the shirt-dress and matching signature scarf.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Stick to the Beauty Routine,

You cannot believe it unless you have seen it happen—the great difference a woman can make in her appearance in just eight weeks if she sticks to a beauty routine for that long.

Many times in my classes I have had the satisfaction of watching my pupils improve almost miraculously. I have seen bulges turn into lovely curves, fatigue give way to pep, and self-confidence take the place of self-consciousness. I have seen complexions improve, hair take on sheen and daily life become more vibrant as a result.

This is the fourth day of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan. Those of you who have been following the series this week have discovered what your ideal weight is, have weighed and measured yourselves, and I hope you have been enjoying some of the reducing menus I have been publishing each day.

I seem to be formula-minded this week. Guess what this one means! FIMEO equals YW. The meaning is much simpler than the formula appears. It is, "Food intake minus energy output equals your weight." The whole technique of reducing is just as understandable as that. There is nothing mysterious about it.

CONSISTENCY COUNTS

If you eat more food than your body needs for heat and energy, the surplus is stored as fat. If you eat less food than your body requires, the fat reserves are called upon and you lose weight. The most successful reducers increase their physical activity and cut down on their food intake. A little of each adds up to an important total if this is done consistently.

How to spend your allowable calories is a bit more complex. All foods are fattening if you eat enough of them. There are some items which are so high in calorie count and so low in health value that you cannot afford them often, and then only in small amounts if you wish to lose weight and stay well and pretty.

Next week I will help you plan your own reducing menus. In the meantime follow the menus I am giving you or count your calories. Here are today's menus.

BREAKFAST

One orange; 1 soft-boiled egg, mixed with 1 piece of toasted whole wheat bread, crumbled, and buttered with 1 tsp. butter or margarine; sprinkle with paprika and black pepper; 1 glass skim milk; black coffee if desired.

LUNCH

Shrimp cocktail: 10 canned shrimp drained; mixed with 2 oz. yogurt; ¼ cucumber, peeled and chopped; seasoned with parsley, lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste; serve chilled; 1 slice whole wheat bread with 1 tsp. butter; 1 cup V-8 juice.

DINNER

Korean Beef Marinade: 4 ox. lean chuck steak, cubed; marinate in 2 tbs. soy sauce, ¼ tbs. oil, ¼ tbs. sesame seeds, ¼ chopped onion, ½ clove garlic, minced; broil briefly with ½ green pepper, cut in chunks, 5 mushrooms, 1 tomato, quartered; serve with ½ cup steamed boiled white rice. Dessert: ½ cup jellied low-cal gingerale. (1 tbs. plain gelatine, 2 cups low-cal gingerale.)

BEDTIME SNACK

Eight oz. skim milk. Total calories 1,195.

All you have to do to join my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short) is to follow the articles appearing in this newspaper. However if you have missed some of them or would like to have the course in a booklet you may want my "Bip Kit." This includes complete directions, exercises, a calorie chart, and a "fun" wall chart on which you can see your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. If you want this send 25 cents, plus 15 cents for postage and handling, and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Soak away tension

Just pour a ½ lb. package of Cow Brand Baking Soda into a tub of warm water. Lie back lazily and relax. Excellent for relieving sunburn, hives and itching skin.

Young Woman Helps RCMP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jean Moss, 23, dyed her hair dark brown, donned a pair of faded jeans and, along with John Grady, 22, began haunting the hippie areas here. DEAR ABBY...

Let the Punishment Fit the Crime

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last week I asked my mom if I could go to a party and she said yes. My girl friend's mom promised to drive us there, and mom promised to drive us back.

Well, today my mom asked me to help her take down the Christmas decorations, so I took down a few things and then I got tired so I sat down to rest for a while. Then I went off and forgot all about it, and besides I just wasn't in the mood to do much of anything.

In a while my mother came in and very politely told me that I wasn't going to the party. Do you think this was fair punishment for what I did? My mother PROMISED, and she went back on her word.

Now my girl friend is mad at me because it spoiled all her plans for the party.

My mom reads your column, so I wish you would put this in with what you think of mothers who go back on their promises. Thank you. PUNISHED.

DEAR PUNISHED: The punishment should fit the "crime." Your mother should have ordered you to "get in the mood" for a little manual labor, like cleaning out the basement or garage.

DEAR ABBY: What can you give a man who has everything? WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: If I were with the Internal Revenue Department I'd give him an AUDIT!

DEAR ABBY: Tell that 44-year-old woman who cried her eyes out and blamed her husband when she discovered she was pregnant, that she should dry her tears and thank God.

I was 46 when the same thing happened to me. I'll admit, I was terribly upset at first (shame on me!) but I had no choice, so I finally faced it with a smile. Abby, I had dentures and my hair was nearly white when I carried that child but now I can truthfully say that it was the most marvellous thing that could ever have happened to my husband and me. Our late baby has been the joy of our lives.

I think there could be a hereditary factor involved with late babies as my brother was nearly 66 when he fathered twins. And my own mother was 48 and Dad was 65 when I was born. SAN DIEGO.

Confidential to Val: Good question: But don't believe everything you see in print. Many famous people could sue for defamation of character but do not because they know that one cannot wrestle with a skunk without emerging from the encounter smelling the worse for it.

New Sewing Machine Demands Practice

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer: My husband bought me a beautiful new sewing machine for Christmas and gave it to me a month ago so I have had time to use it a little. I could cry. I just don't like it as well as the one I traded in. What would you suggest I do in order to be at ease with it as I was with my old one?—Mrs. B. K.

Dear Mrs. B. K.: This is often what happens when we replace anything we have used for years and become completely familiar with. I would suggest that anyone with a new machine practise as much as possible on straight sewing before making a garment with it. In other words, make some quick project such as new curtains, bedspreads, or anything you have thought of that would require straight sewing. When you become used to handling the speed, simple mechanisms, etc., it will be much easier to adjust to the detailed stitching you use for making clothes. Unfortunately, a new sewing machine will not automatically make you a better seamstress. My own machine, which I wouldn't part with for anything, is about 20 years old. I'm sure you'll love your new sewing machine, but you will have to get used to it and all its gadgets first!

Care for Plants Now

By HILDA BEASTALL

Plants wintering in coldframes will need special care now.

Assuming that covers were on during recent heavy snow and rain, most plants likely to be kept in a coldframe will be quite unharmed.

However, they should have ventilation at all times when temperatures are above 28 degrees or so.

One method of raising glass frame covers evenly all around is by using blocks of wood at each corner for the covers to rest upon.

To prevent wind from moving the loose covers, lay a heavy piece of wood diagonally across them.

Depending on the kinds of plants in the frame, they may even need a little watering at this time. But be sparing of moisture in winter.

Hilda

It is better to have soil rather dry around small shrub cuttings even though they have rooted. With temperatures around 30 there is little root activity.

The same applies to chrysanthemum stools (roots).

While in storage, have them barely damp. We don't want them to start sending up their new shoots until well along in March. That will be time enough to take cuttings of all outdoor, early season chrysanthemums.

Look over the plants carefully. Remove fallen or wilted leaves and stems to prevent spreading fungus diseases, and look for slugs hiding beneath flats, pots or roots.

On milder nights, they come out foraging for tender shoots.

If a coldframe is sheltering a winter crop of lettuce, onions, and perhaps peas and broad bean plants, ventilation will be just as important, but close the frame each day around mid-afternoon.

Conservation of slight warmth in the soil will be beneficial to these hardy plants being grown in winter.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prize? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sally Livingood, age 12, of Huntington Beach, California, for her question:

Does a skunk have to refill his spray?

The amount of odoriferous liquid in a skunk's spraying equipment is limited. He seems to sense this, for he never uses it unless he is very provoked. His spraying apparatus contains enough for about six shots. After this, it takes him a little while to manufacture another round of ammunition.

The skunk's musky spray is created in two special glands, about as big as a pair of pigeon eggs. They are located at the base of his bushy tail and kept filled with ammunition, primed and ready to shoot at all times. The first shot may spray about three drops of the oily, yellowish liquid for a distance of 10 feet. The breeze may carry its ghastly odor a distance of half a mile or more. A second and third shot may be required and these are almost as severe as the first. This is usually sufficient to subdue the most provoking enemy, after which the skunk goes peacefully away.

But perhaps once in his lifetime, Mr. Skunk may have to defend himself against a formidable foe. Four, five and six shots may be fired to ensure his safety. By this time, his spraying apparatus is empty. He must retreat or go down in defeat. Extra hungry pumas have been known to withstand the skunk's defensive chemical weapon and subdue him, but most other creatures, large and small, are eager to admit defeat right after the first shot.

Most creatures of the woods know the black and white striped skunk by sight and leave him strictly alone. This gives the handsome fellow an air of great self-confidence. He strolls through the woods like a bold monarch of all he surveys. He does not, however, take advantage of his superior weapons to intimidate his neighbors. He never shoots off his foul-smelling spray unless scared or very provoked.

Aims Accurately

When tormented beyond his patience, he turns to face his foe. He stamps his front paws and though almost voiceless, he utters a low warning growl. His bushy tail is arched over his back with the tip dangling, and on rare occasions he adds an extra warning by standing on his front legs like an acrobat. No animal in his right mind stays around for more of this diplomacy. If he does, the next move is swift and sudden. In a flash, the skunk swings around with his rear end toward his foe. The tip of his tail stiffens and a shot is squirted from one or both barrels. The aim is deadly accurate and the spray of burning acid catches the enemy full in the face, blinding or blurring his vision. Meantime the skunk strolls grandly away from the fray.

The musky spray disperses through the air in fine droplets. It clings to the fur of the vanquished enemy for weeks to come. But the skunk himself remains fragrant. The knowing creature is much too smart to let any of that revolting chemical foul his own fur. Often he manoeuvres his foe with his back to the wind. In any case, Mr. Skunk prefers to walk toward breezes that are not bearing his revolting chemical spray across the countryside.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Linda Shigematsu, age 13, of San Francisco, Calif., for her question:

Which of our senses gets the most use?

There is no doubt that the average person makes the most use of his or her eyesight. At least 90 per cent of the items that come to your attention are first captured by the sense of sight. Human vision is highly talented. It can see colors and adjust itself to dim and bright lights. But its greatest talents lie in the links it has with the human brain. Sight information is relayed by special nerves to a special brain centre. There it is interpreted and given meaning. Countless specks of visual data are assembled and evaluated to show such things as distance. Reason is applied to give added value to the scenery. This enables you to recognize a picture and follow a TV show. Cats and dogs cannot make much sense of TV or pictures—and they cannot see anything in colors.

Though the eyes get the most use, the other senses are almost, if not quite, as important. One reason for this is the marvellous organization of the human brain. The brain centres of all the senses work together, cross-check and supplement their data. When the scent of a flower reaches your nose, your eyes help to locate the source. When you stumble, your balancing organs flash a warning and your eyes rush to the rescue by showing what can be done to set you right side up.

Students Have 'Lovely Time' Creating Grim Film on Society

OTTAWA (CP)—Six words flash on a movie screen: "And we're having a lovely time."

Fashion-model faces zoom in close-up, artificial-in-full-color still photographs. A world of glowing luxury is conveyed by the rich, slow background music.

More photographs, more tempo.

Then the black-and-white picture of a hungry little child guzzling food from a bowl flashes by. There are more and more of them, starkly contrasting with color pictures of Canadian children playing in the snow.

A black-and-white mouth smiling sweetly in a close-up is topped an instant later by a small girl's terrible, sad eyes.

The film, made last year by an experimental Grade 12 English class studying film techniques, is a rapid-fire six minutes of social criticism.

It was chosen as one of the top 15 films in the student film festival held in Toronto last summer by the Ontario education department. Both the National Film Board and CARE of Canada have expressed interest in using it but copyright problems must be settled first.

RELEASING 'STILLS'

"I think that it's actually a tremendous little film," said Mike Sproule, audio-visual coordinator for the Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board. "The techniques are quite new and it's a good example of how students given professional help can work."

Burns MacDonald, a moving force behind his class' project, talked about it in an interview at Algonquin Community College where he now is studying commercial art.

The students wished to do as good a job as possible with their limited resources, he said, so they decided to use still photographs as a basis for the film and to have only music in the background.

The class could not have succeeded on its $200 student-council budget without "astounding outside help, especially from Dominion-Wide Photographs Ltd. motion picture division in Ottawa."

"There were about 30 people in our class and almost everyone had a job for the film," articulate, 18-year-old Burns said.

"We went through the entire National Archives stills library for the First and Second World wars. We had people who went through magazines looking for pictures."

Some Vietnam war photographs had been used in the film.

"But we did not want to attack the Vietnamese war or any specific policy of any country."

"We wanted to make people aware of apathy in the world to mass violence and poverty."

"We thought that people had built up a kind of fantasy—that inside a lot of people were not really aware of things going on in the world. We didn't want to preach but to make them aware."

"We started off using shots of models and slow jazz. Gradually we got more into black-and-white CARE of Canada pictures and the music dropped. Then we went into the war section."

On the screen, red-coated guards in bearskin hats march jauntily from Parliament Hill to stirring band music. In the next second muddy soldiers in trenches fight a grim battle, stripped of color and pageantry.

The massive gold braid on a Hussar's uniform flips into a shot of a corpse decorated by his machine-gun bandolier.

The mushroom cloud of a nuclear blast bursts blood red. More suffering children and dead.

And we're having a lovely time.

Computer to Counsel Student on Courses

OTTAWA (CP)—Picture a Grade 9 student pulling up a chair in front of a keyboard computer in the school guidance office.

He punches his code number and "asks" an electronic guidance counsellor which stream of education best suits him.

Within five years just such a system will operate here, freeing human guidance counsellors from some of the more menial guidance tasks.

The project, being done by Gerald Halpern and his research office at the city's Collegiate Institute Board, has received a $6,000 grant from the manpower and immigration department.

The system would benefit the department's job counsellors as well as the school guidance counsellors.

The project also ties in with a "success probability" study started in the high school in 1968.

Last September the research office administered a series of scholastic aptitude tests as well as interest and counselling surveys to all Grade 9 students. These students will be re-examined during each high school year and each new Grade 9 class will undergo the same analysis.

The purpose is to try to predict how many students drop out of high school, and why, as well as which students will do well.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Victoria Had Confederates During American Civil War

Some historians say that the U.S. Civil War began Jan. 9, 1861, when Confederates from the south fired on the federal steamer Star of the West. Others claim that the war began April 12 when Confederates attacked Fort Sumpter. In any case the war had a great effect on Canada and helped to bring about Confederation. It is a little confusing that the Confederates in the U.S. wanted to break up the Union, but Confederation meant the unity of the British North American colonies.

Canada and British Columbia became havens of refuge for Confederate troops and spies during the U.S. Civil War. They established active bases at Montreal, Toronto, and Victoria. One group tried to capture U.S. warships on the Great Lakes, but was defeated. Another group working out of Toronto planned to set New York hotels on fire hoping that the entire city would burn.

In 1864, when Confederation delegates were meeting at Quebec, a party of Southerners, operating from Montreal, invaded Vermont and shot up the town of St. Albans. This nearly led to a U.S. army attacking Canada, and the Confederation delegates speeded their work for mutual defence.

During the Civil War the wife of Jefferson Davis president of the Confederate states, lived in Montreal with their two children. Davis joined them in Montreal after serving a term in prison and was given a great ovation July 18, 1867, when he appeared at a benefit concert organized by the Southern Relief Organization. The orchestra played Dixie and people shouted "We shall live to see the South a nation again."

The New York Herald was so angry that it urged the U.S. government to annex Canada. By the end of the Civil War, the northern army was the strongest in the world, and there is little doubt that it could have captured Canada easily if it had been unopposed.

Other events Jan. 9: 1613—Champlain published a book containing maps of Canada.

1666—Governor Courcelles left Quebec to attack Iroquois.

1760—Nova Scotia Indians began peace negotiations with British.

1786—First meeting of Legislature of New Brunswick at Saint John.

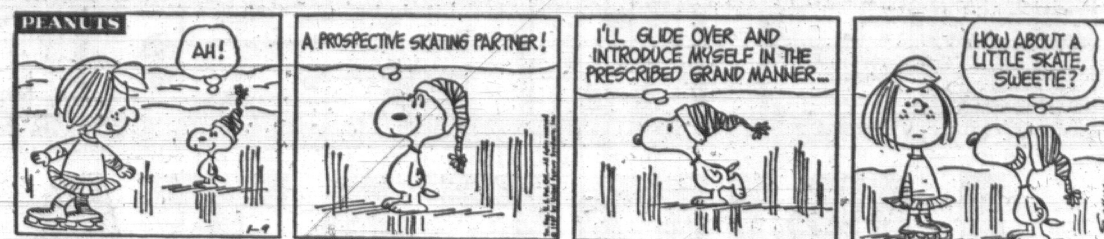

1808—Grenadier Guard from Britain landed at Halifax to defend U.S. attack.

1885—International bridge opened at Sault Ste. Marie.

1927—Fire in Montreal theatre killed 76 children.

1964—Mountain slide at Hope, B.C., took four lives. (Copyright, 1969, Toronto Star Syndicate)

Suspected Killer of FBI Agents Surrenders Meekly in Attic

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man charged with slaying two agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation surrendered meekly in the attic of an apartment house Wednesday night, climaxing an intense house-to-house manhunt in the capital.

The capture of Billie Austin Bryant, 28, an auto repairman and prison escapee, came less than seven hours after the agents who sought to question him about a bank robbery were found dead in the hallway of his estranged wife's home.

The slain agents were Anthony Palmisano, 26, and Edwin Woodruffe, 27, the first Negro to die in the line of duty with the FBI.

The slayings followed by less than two hours the armed hold-up of a suburban Maryland savings and loan company.

BRYANT
... prison escapee.

A teller had reported Bryant's name to police, saying she recognized him as a former customer.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Bryant, sought since he escaped from the nearby Lorton Reformatory in Virginia last August, was arraigned before a U.S. commissioner on two counts of murder and held without bail until a hearing Jan. 23.

The agents were the 22nd and 23rd to be killed on duty in the history of the bureau. Only once before—in 1934—were two agents killed at the same time.

Bryant escaped from Lorton Reformatory Aug. 29, when he crashed a car through a chain link fence. He had served less than a year of an 18- to 54-year sentence for robbery.

Derailed Cars Finally Cleared From Highway

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—The Trans-Canada Highway was reopened late Wednesday night and the last tipped car was moved from the Canadian Pacific Railway main line, blocked by derailment Monday.

That left only the Canadian National Railway main line still closed in this area. It was blocked by a derailment Wednesday, but was expected to be reopened this morning.

Crews dragged a butane tank car from the highway, 40 miles east of here Wednesday night. It had plunged down from the CPR track above and burst into flame. The fire finally burned itself out.

The CNR line was blocked 70 miles northeast of here by derailment of 11 potash cars and 11 grain cars from the prairies. Passengers were ferried by air past the derailment Wednesday.

The CNR's eastbound Super-Continental left Vancouver late Wednesday night and the company hoped the track would be clear by the time the passenger train reached the derailment site today.

CPR crews righted another derailed butane car Wednesday night and began clearing up the track. Traffic was to resume with the first freight passing through the area early today.

BYELECTIONS THREAT TO MANITOBA PREMIER

WINNIPEG (CP)—The balance of power in the Manitoba legislature could be tipped Thursday, Feb. 20, in four bye-elections, Premier Walter Weir announced Wednesday night. He needs a win in two to hang on to the slender majority the Progressive Conservatives achieved in the 1966 general election.

Present standings in the 37-seat legislature are 28 Conservatives, 13 Liberals, 11 New Democrats, one Social Creditor and four vacant.

Shorter Week Plea By Postmen Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—A bid by the 12,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada to delay the scheduled Feb. 1 start of five-day-a-week home delivery has been rejected by post office officials.

Union President Roger Decarie released copies of a telegram he sent Postmaster-General Eric Kierans Wednesday seeking to delay the reduction from six-day delivery "by at least a month" to allow time for negotiations.

This prompted a department statement later Wednesday which said the "initial reaction" by officials is that no delay is necessary.

"Hiring in post offices was stopped as of Oct. 1, 1968, to allow for normal attrition and expansion to absorb employees displaced by the five-day delivery week when implemented on Feb. 1, 1969," it said.

Decarie said the delay is needed "in order that the union and the department come to definite mutual agreements regarding the lines to be followed in the implementation of this new work week in order that no letter carrier be dismissed."

WAS TOO AFFECTIONATE AT 80 YEARS!

CHICAGO (AP)—A 60-year-old woman was granted a divorce Wednesday after she testified in court that her 80-year-old husband was too affectionate. Betty Simons and her husband, Abraham, were married in 1905. She charged him with mental cruelty.

End 'Humiliation' Says Separatist

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, says that only a sovereign Quebec would end a current threat to the province's French way of life.

A break from Canada would end "the humiliating and eternal state of anxiety" of a people "eternally unsure" of themselves, he says in an interview with La Presse.

Mr. Levesque says independence would mean "one country, a people at home."

He was the third and last of three Quebec political leaders who answered questions in a special series in the Montreal French-language daily.

The series began Tuesday with questions answered in writing by Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and continued Wednesday in an interview with Liberal Leader Jean Lesage.

"There would be a psychological alteration" with the people of a sovereign Quebec, Mr. Levesque says in today's edition. "Our language and our cultural values would have the certainty of living."

'MUST REVERSE TREND'

Quebec was the only example of a majority being assimilated by the minority, in this case by English-language business and culture. It had to be reversed.

Quebec must also "think of itself from the point of view of culture and language." The province was too involved in "the Canadian ambivalence."

Multi-Tier Government Set Up in Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The new Czech Socialist Republic government led by Premier Stanislav Razl was sworn into office in Prague Castle today.

The new Czech government completes Czechoslovakia's three-government federal setup. Razl's cabinet joins that of Slovak Republic Premier Stefan Sadosky and Federal Premier Oldrich Cernik.

Prague radio said Razl and his ministers were sworn in by Cestmir Cisar, chairman of the Czech National Council.

This morning the presidium of the old National Assembly under reformist Czech leader Josef Smrkovsky met to plan the first joint session of the federal parliament at the end of the month.

Progressives have campaigned hard for Smrkovsky's nomination as president of the federal parliament.

But the Communist party presidium, in a resolution Tuesday, backed Slovak demands for a representative in a key federal job and nominated Petr Colotka as parliamentary leader. Colotka is a Slovak federal deputy premier.

CONSIDER PROPOSAL

Leaders of the 900,000-strong Metal Workers Union, which threatened to strike if Smrkovsky did not get the post, today will discuss the party's proposal to nominate Colotka.

The party resolution proposed Smrkovsky be first deputy president of the parliamentary presidium. He is also a candidate for head of one of parliament's two equal houses, the Chamber of the People.

Smrkovsky earlier this week said he would accept the decision of competent bodies on his political future and disengaged himself from a big campaign to place him at the head of parliament.

His move annoyed some reformists here who saw their drive on his behalf as a rallying point against further concession program launched a year ago and which led to the Aug. 20 Warsaw Pact invasion.

Layman to Continue Picketing of Church

REGINA (CP) — John Kippely 37-year-old Regina teacher, said Wednesday he will picket weekly, "for as long as I think necessary," the local church that dismissed him as a lay theologian.

Mr. Kippely said he had dropped a damage suit against Christ the King Roman Catholic Church. His statement of claim, filed six months ago and naming as defendants the church, its pastor and the president of its parish council, had alleged a breach of the contract under which he was hired.

Mr. Kippely had asked for unspecified damages in the claim.

He told a news conference that in dropping the suit he was putting the matter back in the church where it had always belonged.

Mr. Kippely said he and members of his family would continue to carry signs outside the church, directly across the street from his home, for 10 minutes prior to each of three Sunday masses.

They first picketed the building Dec. 29 in 35-below-zero weather with signs reading "seven months—too long," due process" and "justice."

Mr. Kippely said he believes he still has not received his due in his dismissal from the $1,000-a-month lay theologian's job he started in September, 1967.

EARLY EFFORTS FAILED

"The only reason I went to the court in the first place is that all our appeals last June came to naught."

Rev. Emmett Mooney, the church's pastor, and Bernard Murphy, parish council president, filed a statement of defence denying the allegations made in Mr. Kippely's suit.

Body-Strewn Corridor Marks Refugees' Escape

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A young Cuban refugee who braved killer dogs and machine-gun fire to reach the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo said Wednesday about 1,000 persons have been killed in the last year trying to cross the fence to freedom.

The 18-year-old youth was one of 87 refugees who dashed into the base Monday morning in what is believed the largest mass escape from the Castro regime.

However, for every two persons who made it across the fence Monday, one stayed behind, he said.

"It was horrible for the ones who didn't make it," said the youth, who wouldn't give his name. "I saw the guards shoot three of the prisoners at close range. They just tumbled over."

Eighty members of the group arrived in Miami Wednesday aboard two U.S. Navy planes.

FELL TWO GUARDS

One of the men said three members of the group were cut down by machine-gun bullets and a woman was torn apart by dogs let loose by Cuban guards who patrol around the naval base.

The man, who also declined to give his name for fear his relatives in Cuba would be harmed, said two guards were felled by escapees' bullets.

Transported to Miami were 46 men, 13 women and 21 children. Seven remained at the naval base.

One of the leaders said the escape began early Monday when the group stole a truck in Havana and began a 600-mile westward journey to the base, picking up passengers as they went. By the time they reached the base, more than 120 were crammed into the truck.

"We parked the truck about 600 metres from the base and ran for it," said one of the men. "The men carried the children... and a lot of those who didn't make it were women and children."

He estimated about 30 members of the group failed to get across the base's barbed wire fence.

"We ran like rabbits and fell over each other when the guards began firing," said a slim youth. "Then they turned loose about a dozen dogs. I think they were Russian dogs, big, black dogs."

"Most of us were near the base when the shooting started," he said. "Once inside I looked back and saw the guards keep others from entering."

"Shootings there are not unusual," said the 18-year-old. "About 1,000 persons must have lost their lives in the past year trying to get inside."

In Washington, the navy refused to discuss the incident, which is the normal policy. Hundreds of Cuban workers used to cross daily to jobs on Guantanamo but six years ago the Cuban Army stopped the crossings and cleared a wide swath of brush away from the chain-link fence girding the base.

Cuban machine-gun posts now surround the perimeter.

Strange History Of Potsdam Tray Enters Will Case

A silver tray, inscribed with German heraldry and said to have been smuggled out of Germany under a man's coat, was produced in B.C. Supreme Court here Wednesday.

It belonged to Victoria millionaire Allan Douglas Ford, whose second will is being contested by his son, John Douglas Ford of Melbourne, Australia. Mr. Ford died here Oct. 26, 1967, at the age of 94.

Robert W. Phipps, former manager of the Royal Trust Company in Victoria, said Mr. Allan Ford wove "a sinister story" around the tray and said the man who brought it out of Germany on his back was in danger of his life.

"He mentioned James Hawthornthwaite (former Socialist MLA for Nanaimo) in this connection and later said that 'Big Jim' was murdered in connection with the tray."

Victoria lawyer Donald G. Cameron, appearing for Mr. Ford Jr., said the death certificate indicated Mr. Hawthornthwaite died in Victoria from heart failure on Nov. 1, 1926.

(The Victoria Times of that date said he was running around the ballroom as a constitutional when he collapsed and died.)

TWICE TOLD TALE

Mr. Phipps said the story of the Potsdam tray (as Mr. Ford called it) "grew better" every time he heard it.

"I realized Mr. Ford was building a story around the tray as he did around many of his possessions."

D. M. Gordon, appearing for the Royal Trust Company, produced a 1916 bill of sale indicating that Mr. Ford bought the tray in Victoria with other silver and cutlery from Ada von Albenlev, wife of Bodo von Albenlev. James Hawthornthwaite acted as agent.

Opposite the item "I tray" on the bill of sale was written the word "Potsdam."

Mr. Ford Jr. claims his father was "not of sound mind, memory and understanding" when he made a second will in 1958 leaving an estate to the value of $1,152,792.

He left $50,000 to Mr. Ford Jr. and the remaining $1,102,792 to local charities. Mr. Ford asks that an earlier will, made in 1933, be recognized as valid.

Under this will, Mr. Ford would receive the residue of the estate after the execution of two codicils.

CATHEDRAL ENRICHED

These would enrich Christ Church Cathedral by $200,000 and give $150,000 to what was described as the Family Welfare and Children's Aid Society.

Christ Church Cathedral is allied with John Ford in the action to have the earlier will recognized, and is represented in court by Hugh L. Henderson.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Cameron, Mr. Phipps said Mr. Ford Sr. set great value on the Potsdam tray and once said he intended to bequeath it to the British Museum.

"There is no doubt he was inclined to embellish a story, but I must say his fantasies didn't extend into his business life."

Mr. Phipps was asked if Mr. Ford had any fantasy concerning his son's legitimacy.

WITNESS RELUCTANT

"There was something working in his mind that had come up fairly recently. I was reluctant to accept this as I always thought of Mr. Ford as his son. During our earlier association, he never brought up this possibility."

"Were you unimpressed by his remarks?" asked Mr. Cameron.

"I was very loath to be impressed by them," Mr. Phipps replied.

Mr. Gordon said that in the will of 1933 there were 35 references to "my son."

"I wouldn't know how many, but there were certainly many references to my son," Mr. Phipps replied.

Mr. Phipps said documents showed that Mr. Ford was married in 1908. In one of his letters he said "I don't consider myself bound by vows, only by love."

LOOKED FOR ADVICE

Mr. Phipps said Mr. Ford looked to him for advice about various charities he might help but "had a mind of his own" as regards what he should leave to them.

"I never suggested a charity unless he asked about it specifically," Mr. Phipps said. "He had his own ideas and instigated most of the bequests. But he did discuss various charities with me."

"I made very few suggestions to him. He had his own ideas."

Mr. Phipps said he first heard about the Potsdam tray when it was deposited in the vaults of the Royal Trust Company in 1963.

STORED IN VAULT

Mr. Phipps said he suggested the tray should be out in the vaults because Mr. Ford said it was "so valuable."

Mr. Cameron: "How valuable did he indicate it was?"

Mr. Phipps: "He did not indicate. It was valuable in his mind. He never indicated its value in dollars and cents."

Mr. Phipps said he heard that Mr. Ford had attempted to sell the tray to an antique dealer and someone had suggested it might be worth $100,000.

Subsequently, Mr. Phipps identified photographs of the late Mr. Ford, but could not identify a photo of his wife and child, taken before they left Victoria for Australia. (Mr. Ford Jr. was then five years old).

Mr. Phipps said he could not remember seeing any photos of Mrs. Ford or her son when he visited the house.

He said he examined the contents of about 10 steamer trunks in Mr. Ford's office in the Yarrow Building. His house at 1012 Terrace was insured for $25,000 and its contents for $25,000.

The hearing continued today.

Before the Magistrate

Three men facing charges of robbery with violence said "it's a bum beef" to police when they were arrested, central magistrates court was told Wednesday.

Det. Angus Monroe was testifying in the trial of Michael MacIsaac, 30, Roger Frenette, 42, and Rudolphe Girouard, 41, no addresses available.

They are accused of taking $17 from Lorne Derkoch, 22, of 405 Thetis Crescent Thursday. The trial is to conclude Tuesday.

Monroe said he and Det. Lorne Shandley arrested the three men at different places early Friday. All had been drinking.

Earlier Sgt. Napoleon Bouchard said he conducted a line-up at the police station which included two of the accused, Girouard and MacIsaac, and five other persons.

He said the others were people picked up off the street just after midnight Thursday.

He said the eight persons were identified by a number hung on a string around their necks and stood in a line in a room on the second floor of the police station. He said the two accused were identified by someone in an adjoining room. He said he was not aware who was viewing the line-up.

Bouchard said the other persons in the line-up were generally of a similar age and size as the accused. He said Frenette was not in the line-up.

John Bell, a waiter at a beer parlour where the robbery is alleged to have taken place, said he saw the three accused drinking with Derkoch on Thursday night. He said Derkoch first drank by himself and later joined the accused.

At about 10 p.m., he said, Derkoch spoke to him and then phoned the police who arrived shortly after.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Derkoch was not available to testify Wednesday as he was in hospital.

Mr. Birkett opposed the setting of bail for the three men and then asked it be set at $10,000 each. Magistrate J. A. Byers set bail at $5,000.

Court heard the three accused were from out of town, had no roots in the community and were unemployed.

Trial for Gerald Harvey, facing five charges following an incident at AJ's nightclub No. 14, was set for Feb. 10. He is represented by a lawyer from Vancouver and the case will be heard by Magistrate William Ostler who is currently on holidays.

Magistrate Byers said he thought he better not hear the case as he had already heard the evidence Tuesday in the case of another man charged in the same incident.

"In fact I think I could write a judgment now," he said.

Evidence was heard from one RCMP constable in the case of a man charged with trafficking in marijuana.

Const. John G. O'Neill testified in the trial of Charles Rowland, 26, of no fixed address. Another officer, Const. Mike Onischuk was too ill to take the stand court was told. The case is to continue Jan. 16.

O'Neill said he met Onischuk in his room at a hotel Sept. 10 and searched him, finding no drugs.

He said he observed him enter the Youth Centre on Broad Street and took up an observation post from a building across the street. With binoculars, he said, he could observe Onischuk meet the accused and a girl inside the building.

There appeared to be a conversation and then all three left the building walking towards Centennial Square and later met again in front of the Centre.

O'Neill said he met Onischuk back in the hotel room and was given a match box containing a green plant-like material which he later took to the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver.

He tendered the substance and a certificate of analysis to the court.

He said Onischuk was working under his instructions as an undercover agent at the time.

Ernest Massick, of Cobble Hill, was fined $100 for driving while under a licence suspension Nov. 29.

John W. Bennett, 31, 607 Wilson, was fined $50 for possessing a stolen revolver.

Const. Edward James told the court the gun, a Smith and Wesson .38, was taken from a car parked on Courtenay Street Jan. 4. He said he spoke to the accused Tuesday who admitted having the gun in his possession and who showed him where he had hid it, in some bushes on Cordova Bay Road near Mt. Douglas Park.

He said Bennett told him he had purchased the gun for $14 in a night club, was drunk at the time and didn't know why he had done it.

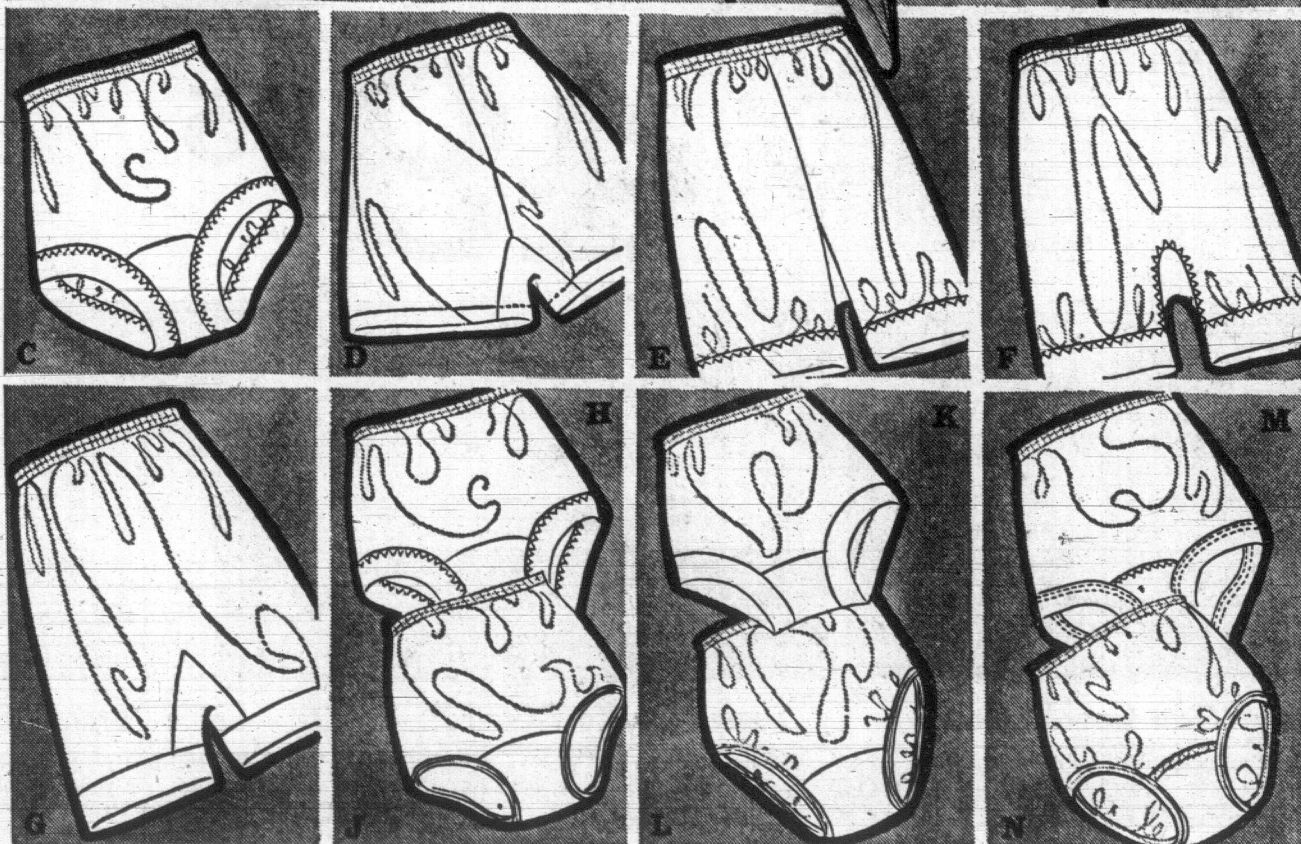

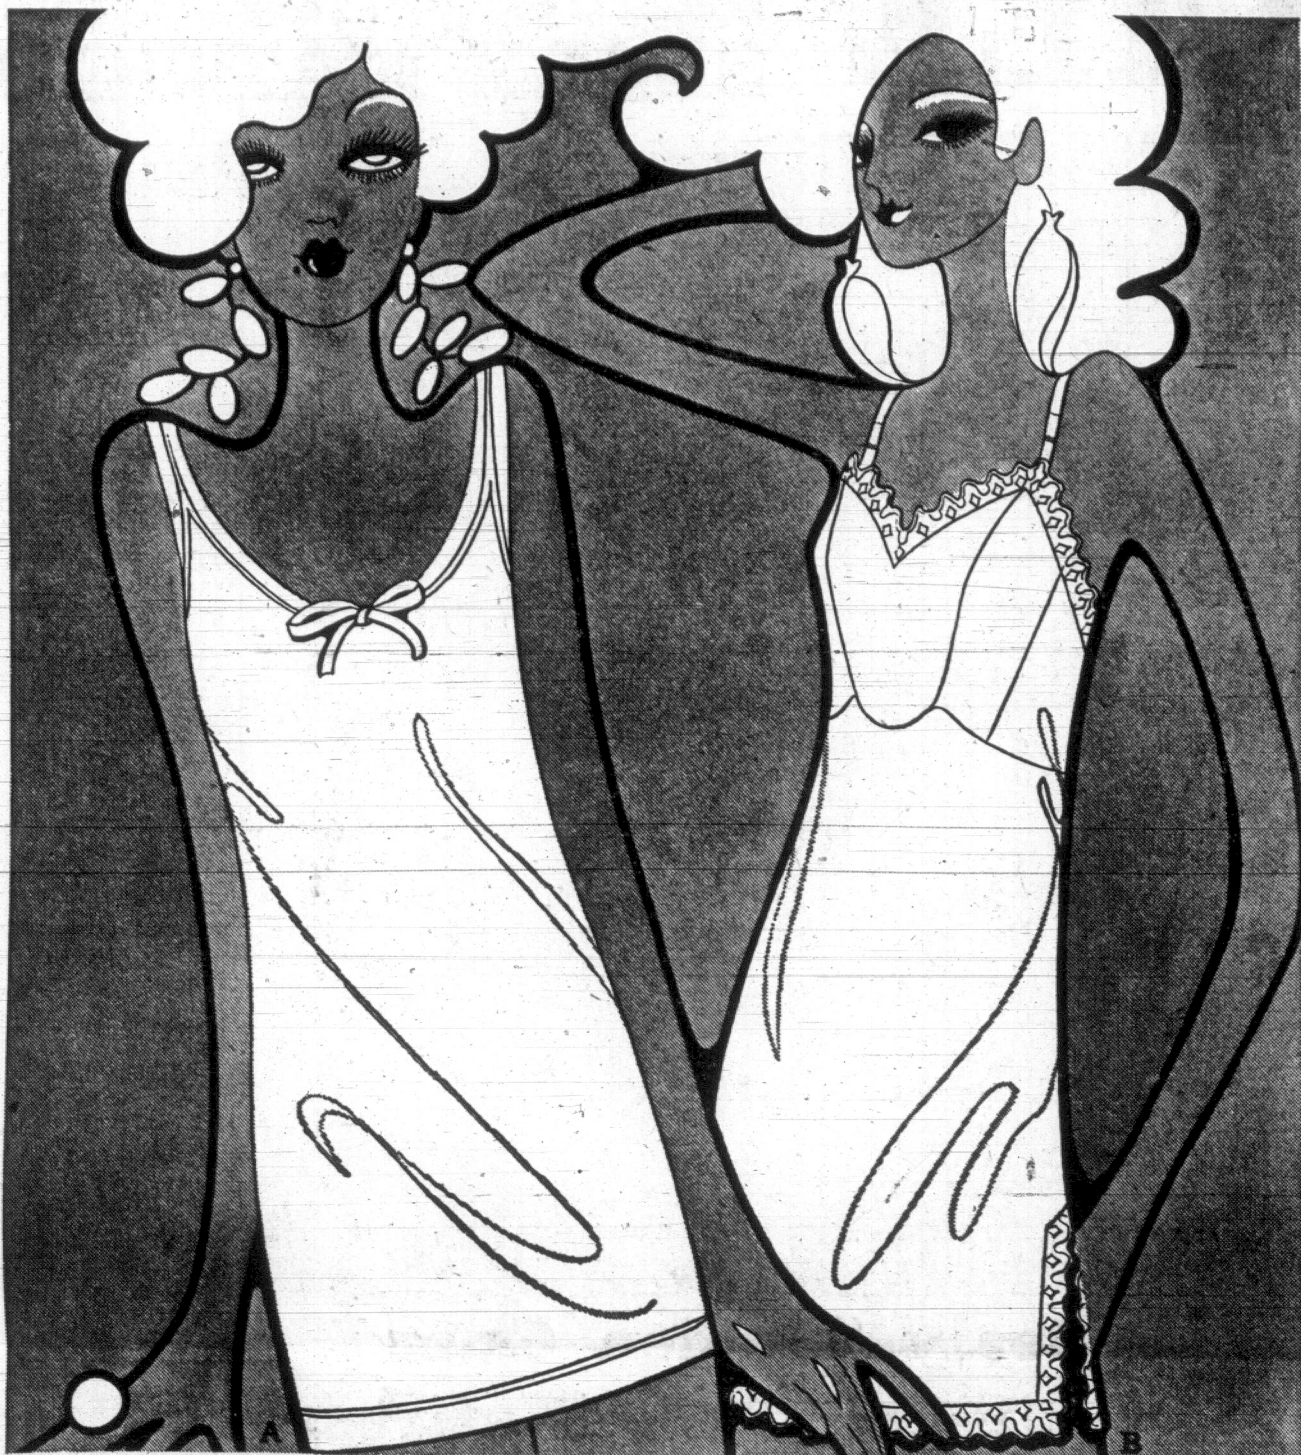

Emil Sorensen, of Duncan, was jailed for six weeks on his second conviction for impaired driving. The offense occurred Oct. 25 and he had a previous conviction in September of last year.

Island Mining Worth $13.3 M

Mining means more than $13 million a year to the economy of Vancouver Island, according to the first survey on B.C. mining by the Mining Association of B.C.

With revenue in 1967 estimated at $294.6 million, mining in the province as a whole is growing so fast it is reckoned the industry will be worth $500 million in 1970 and double to more than $1 billion by 1980.

The estimates are exclusive of the petroleum and coal segments of sub-surface development, covering only metal mining and asbestos, where growth is put at 14 per cent a year.

Sales revenue on Vancouver Island in 1967 totalled $13.39 million, nearly double the 1965 figure of $6.8 million.

Metal mining—through such operations as Western Mines at Buttle Lake, Cowichan Copper Mine at Jordan River, Coast Copper Mines near Port Hardy and Zeballos Iron Mines on Esperanza Inlet—accounted for 4.6 per cent of the total provincial metal mining revenue in 1967.

The industry spent $15 million on capital improvements in the 10 years between 1958 and 1967, while wages and salaries for the 657 employees and contract workers came to $5.3 million.

Close to $100 million in capital expenditures is expected to be spent in B.C. mining this year.

LABOR GROUP ASKS RENTAL ON BROAD ST.

The Victoria Labour Council intends writing Mayor Hugh Stephen to ask whether Eaton's is being charged rent for the use of Broad Street.

The street between the store's two buildings is still closed to auto traffic, council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan told delegates at a meeting Wednesday night.

The idea was to facilitate pedestrian traffic during the Christmas shopping rush but this is long past, he added.

"We feel public claims are superior to that of a private corporation."

Council delegates approved an executive recommendation to query the mayor on the matter.

Local union representatives pledged Wednesday night to put the pressure on stores doing business with a local film processing firm involved in "a stinker of a little strike."

Two of three employees at Hy-Fidelity Photos Ltd., 750 Discovery, have been on strike since Nov. 20, teamsters representative Jim Scott of Vancouver told a meeting of the Victoria Labour Council Wednesday night.

He read a list of about 35 firms, including most of the major stores, who are still doing business with the firm and council delegates, who represent 70 unions with 13,000 members, agreed to let the offending companies know how they feel about it.

Mr. Scott said the firm is the Victoria operation for Mortifee Munshaw of Vancouver where the teamsters are also the bargaining agents.

SYMPATHY STRIKE

A sympathy strike at the Vancouver plant was ended by injunction after 1½ days, he added. So the union effort must be made in Victoria.

Local pickets intend following the struck firm's delivery vans and picketing outside each store where they stop.

Mr. Scott told the council the firm is offering 40 to 50 cents an hour less than the pay for Vancouver employees "and we just can't see it."

Hy-Fidelity laid off six employees just before a strike vote could be taken, he said. Of the three remaining, two women voted in favor of a strike and one man voted against. He is still on the job.

In other business, delegates were told trade unionists must get into the political arena, rather than continue ranting about political ills.

LOCKS UP BARN

The labor movement is locking the barn after the horse is gone in continuing to condemn the government's new mediation commission and the labor leaders who are taking part in it, said Neil Hindle of the Boiler-makers' Union.

How many delegates were active politically or even in the labor movement beyond sitting at the occasional meeting? he asked.

Unionists owed it to themselves to keep informed, said carpenters' representative Larry Tickner, and use the political weapon to abolish the "master-slave relationship" in society.

"The housing crisis is 100 years old and when this meeting is over it will still be there because society is motivated not for people but for the cash register."

E. T. Staley, president of the B.C. Federation of Labour, told the meeting the federation would move as quickly as possible on a council call for a meeting with Mines Minister Richter to press for controls of strip mining.

Freedomites Ask Lessons In Russian

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP) — Sons of Freedom Doukhobors from a settlement near this community 60 miles east of Vancouver asked Wednesday that their children be instructed in Russian or French in local schools.

A delegation of five Freedomites from the settlement of 200 made the request in a letter to Sigfried Bartel, Agassiz school board chairman. He referred them to provincial education authorities.

At the same time, Mr. Bartel asked them to allow 45 children to return to school. Parents have kept the children out of local schools since mid-December in a protest against the federal government.

Settlement leaders are protesting alleged refusal of the government to allow Stefan Sorokin, the Freedomites spiritual leader, to visit Canada. Ottawa and Sorokin have said there has been no such refusal.

The Freedomites said in the letter they can not accept English schools.

The letter quoted Sorokin, now living in Uruguay, as saying the children should go to school but "must be taught not for Canadian nationalism but for the Doukhobors themselves."

U.S. Sub Here For Three Days

An American submarine, the Ss Blueback, will arrive at Esquimalt Monday for a three-day visit.

A Canadian Forces spokesman today described the lay-over as "a routine recreation and liberty period" for the 77 officers and men of the Barbicel class sub.

DID U.S. BREAK BOMB TREATY?

WASHINGTON (WP) — Small amounts of radioactivity released by a U.S. underground atomic test last month apparently found their way to Canada, raising the possibility that the United States inadvertently violated the 1962 test-ban treaty.

The test-ban treaty prohibits nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in the oceans and in outer space. It also forbids underground tests "if such explosions cause radioactive debris to be present outside the territorial limits" of the testing country.

CRATERING TEST

Ironically, the radioactive debris that landed in Canada apparently came from a shot known as schooner, which was conducted Dec. 8 as part of the plowshare program for peaceful uses of atomic explosives.

Schooner was a cratering experiment done by the Atomic Energy Commission, to see what kind of hole could be dug with an atomic explosive.

The explosive was equivalent to 35,000 tons of TNT and was set off at the AEC's Nevada test site, about 150 miles north of Las Vegas. The explosion dug a crater 800 feet across and 290 feet deep in the desert floor.

On Dec. 13, five days after the shot, radiation levels at four Canadian sampling stations rose from 10 to 20 times what they are normally. The radioactive levels at these four stations stayed high for two days, returning to normal background levels on Dec. 15.

The four stations in Canada which experienced these changes were near Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto, all in the eastern part of Canada. None of the 14 sampling stations located in western Canada showed any rise in radiation levels on those dates.

DRAMATIC APOLLO 8 CLOSE-UP highlights the eerie, foreboding ruggedness of the moon's surface. An unusual feature of the large crater, Goclenius, foreground, is the prominent rills that cross its rim. Behind Goclenius, which is 40 miles in diameter, and also bearing high-sounding names, are the three clustered craters, Magelhaens, Magelhaens A and Columbo A. (CP Photo.)

Uproar Hits de Gaulle Over Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The French press, angered over government claims their opposition to the Israeli arms embargo was brought about by Jewish influence, retaliated today with harsh, open criticism of President Charles de Gaulle.

For one of the few times since de Gaulle came to power in 1958, some of the attacks were on a personal level.

Meanwhile, Jewish organizations called for a mass rally to protest the arms embargo and the government decision not to reimburse the $100 million paid in advance by the Israelis.

Informed sources said Foreign Minister Michel Debre, Defence Minister Pierre Messmer and Minister of State Roger Frey all were bitter about de Gaulle's decision.

Information minister Joel le Theule acknowledged that the embargo had been "much debated" in the country and added: "It is noteworthy that Israeli influence has made itself felt... in the information media." One prominent member of France's 550,000-member Jewish community termed this statement "veiled anti-Semitism."

"INADMISSIBLE" Jacques Hebert, a Gaullist member of the National Assembly, said the embargo was "inadmissible."

Meanwhile, Rashid Karami, who promises a shift away from Lebanon's virtual neutrality in the Arab-Israeli struggle, began trying today to form a new government in Beirut.

President Charles Helou asked Karami, six times premier, to replace Premier Abdul-Yafi, who resigned Tuesday under fire because of Israel's destructive commando raid on Beirut's international airport.

Karami, who led the 1958 rebellion that U.S. marines were summoned to quell, heads the Democratic Front, which commands a slight majority in Parliament.

Sources close to Karami said he would try to form a coalition government, but he is expected to have difficulty because leaders of Lebanon's Christian political parties prefer continuation of the previous ambiguous policy of virtual neutrality rather than a harder line against Israel.

Included in his party's platform are support of the Palestinian, commandos and their cause, compulsory military service and adherence by Lebanon to Arab policies.

REJECTS FRANCE In Jerusalem, meanwhile, Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol rejected France as a Middle East peace-maker.

Addressing a conference of World Jewry, Eshkol said President de Gaulle's embargo on arms shipments "damages the prospects of peace in the Middle East."

"This action can be compared to that of binding the hands of one of the disputants in an arena who is threatened by the other, and this by a third party which lays claim to objectivity and to a role of peacemaker in our area. From such a party, the call for peace sounds hollow indeed."

Addressing the same conference, Foreign Minister Abba Eban stressed the idea that Israel would not retreat from the ceasefire lines until she is assured of a lasting peace.

"Never shall hostile armies press against us in a narrow coastal strip," Eban declared. "Never shall international waters be opened to all nations and closed to Israel alone."

POLE EXECUTED FOR SPYING ACTIVITIES

WARSAW (Reuters)—A 28-year-old Pole, Adam Henryk Kaczmarzyk, has been executed for selling Polish military defence secrets to British intelligence contacts, it was announced today.

Polish press reports at the time of his trial June 15 said the secrets were given to British contacts at clandestine meetings in Warsaw apartments.

Pap, the official Polish news agency, announced the execution followed the rejection of his appeal by the military chamber of the Polish Supreme Court and a plea for clemency to the Polish state council.

Kaczmarzyk, a civilian radio telegraph operator in an unspecified military establishment, was convicted at a four-day trial held mostly behind closed doors.

Wire Guild Strikes AP

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wire Service Guild went on strike against The Associated Press today in a dispute centering on wages and a demand for a form of union shop.

Executives, exempt employees and some Guildsmen who did not join the strike maintained the AP's basic news services. Overseas operations were not affected.

It was the first strike by editorial employees in AP history.

The Guild represents 1,313 editorial employees, photographers, and clerical and other employees throughout the United States.

The union has rejected AP's offer of a three-year contract providing for a $250 weekly top minimum for editorial employees, photographers, and certain other employees, beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

SUMMIT TALK GOES ON DESPITE BOMB THREAT

LONDON (AP)—An anonymous caller interrupted proceedings of the 28-country Commonwealth summit talks today with word that a bomb was planted somewhere in the Marlborough House conference headquarters.

Military police immediately informed Prime Minister Wilson, reporters and Commonwealth secretariat officials, and gave them the option of quitting the building or staying.

Wilson consulted his fellow government leaders and they agreed to carry on their meetings.

Military police then initiated their standard procedure for searching every corner of the 18th-century building. They turned up no concealed weapons.

Israel Denies Nuclear Bomb

TEL AVIV (CP-AP)—The Israeli Atomic Energy Commission today denied New York reports that Israel either has a nuclear bomb or will have one soon.

"This is not true," said a commission spokesman.

In New York, NBC News reported Israel "either has a nuclear bomb or will soon have one." It said Israel embarked on a crash program to produce a nuclear weapon two years ago.

The Canadian Press quoted authoritative sources in Tel Aviv in June, 1967, that Israel's next major move would be to make the atom bomb.

The sources said Israel felt it could no longer accept any guarantees for its security from any of the major powers and therefore must build the bomb as protection mainly against the Arab states in the future.

Israeli sources killed the dispatch when CP reporter Dave McIntosh attempted to file it from Tel Aviv. McIntosh filed it later from Cyprus.

Similar reports have circulated from time to time ever since Israel built a nuclear reactor at Dimona in the Negev Desert in 1963. Israel is known to have the technological capacity to produce such a weapon, but there has been no confirmed information that she is using the Dimona reactor for anything but peaceful purposes.

Political circles in Jerusalem called the latest report the product of a "very developed imagination."

JUST FOR RESEARCH The commission spokesman said Israel's atomic reactor at Dimona is solely for "research and development."

Another centre near Rehovoth, south of Tel Aviv, also is "purely for research," he said.

Political circles said reports that Israel now is an atomic power are "completely unfounded."

Premier Levi Eshkol and former premier David Ben-Gurion have said in the past that Israel will not be the first to introduce atomic weapons to the Middle East. But they added that if another country began production Israel would have the capacity and the scientific potential to enter the race.

NORWEGIANS SEIZE SOVIET FISH BOATS

FLEKKEFJORD (AP)—Six Soviet and East German fishing vessels were seized in military waters off the southern coast of Norway Wednesday night, police in the southern Norwegian town reported.

Police said Prize crews boarded four Russian and two East German vessels. Three of the vessels were brought into Flekkefjord harbor and the other three were expected here later today.

Police also reported that two Danish vessels were seized and will be brought into Flekkefjord later.

Police said it was not yet clear why the vessels had violated Norwegian territorial waters.

Renews Pact For One Year

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada will renew its present military commitment to NATO for one year.

He told a press luncheon that the commitment will be renewed when Defence Minister Leo Cadieux attends a meeting of NATO defence ministers in Brussels Jan. 16.

Trudeau added, however, that Canada will not make any long-term commitment to the alliance at this time because it is reviewing policy on whether to pull out of NATO or stay in.

The renewed commitment will endure to January, 1970. Canada has six bomber squadrons and a 5,000-man infantry division in West Germany and 20 warships committed to NATO's Atlantic Command.

Apply Sanctions 'Forever'

Trudeau also said economic sanctions against Rhodesia should be applied "forever—or a little less long than forever."

Trudeau said Canada is "not likely" to become a republic in the next four years. And the parliamentary system of government had the advantage for Canada over the U.S. congressional or presidential system.

Trudeau made a brief speech, familiar to Canadians, about the necessity of minority groups, even the smallest, being heard. (See story page 3)

Then he replied to questions submitted in writing by some of the 500 Commonwealth and foreign correspondents at the luncheon.

Trudeau showed no traces of the "fluffy feeling" which kept him away from the Commonwealth conference Wednesday.

On Rhodesia, the Canadian leader said it is essential that the regime of Premier Ian Smith be given no cause to believe that sanctions against Rhodesia would not last forever.

He said he is not pessimistic about the future of the Commonwealth.

But there was a danger of it becoming obsessed with certain problems and certain solutions to them.

The Commonwealth would always be one generation behind if it invested all its energies in past or present problems at the expense of the future.

The only common characteristic of the Commonwealth was its uncommonness, its diversity. And there had to be a Commonwealth spirit for compromise on second-best solutions.

Want to Recognize China

Trudeau repeated that Canada wants to recognize Communist China. He did not say that it will.

He said Canada is becoming more conscious that it has a ringside seat on the Pacific. It wanted to increase trade, cultural exchanges and diplomatic relations with Pacific Asian nations.

No matter how much one disagreed with an opponent, there must be a dialogue with him.

On the Middle East situation, Trudeau said the basic principle should be that frontiers must not be changed by force.

Israel and Arab states might accept a peace imposed by Britain, France, the United States and Russia if they tired of their brinkmanship.

Trudeau said that though slow moving, the United Nations mission headed by Ambassador Gunnar Jarring of Sweden is "the only way out" of the Middle East impasse.

He was asked whether Canada would become a republic during his term of office.

"It depends how long I'm in office," he said at first.

Then he added a Canadian republic is not likely in the next four years. Canadians did not want to become divided on a largely symbolic issue such as the monarchy, though two-thirds of Canadians had no emotional attraction for the monarchy.

Dines with Intellectuals

He looked fit as he left for the high commissioner's residence Wednesday evening for a dinner with some English intellectuals, including professors from Oxford and Cambridge.

"What's the problem?" Trudeau said when asked about his health while on the way to the dinner in fashionable Upper Brook Street in affluent Mayfair.

Aides said he felt he had to attend the dinner because a number of the guests had come from out of town.

They declined comment on a reporter's suggestion that a number of heads-of-government had come to the conference from out of town and presumably wanted to hear what Trudeau had to say on the world political situation.

Trudeau also cancelled a meeting with Chief Obafemi Awolowo, head of the Nigerian delegation, concerning relief for victims of the Nigeria-Biafra war. The meeting had been scheduled for 7 p.m., one hour before the dinner at the high commissioner's home.

More than 20 of the 28 countries represented at the conference already have spoken, some of them twice. They include Swaziland, Malawi, Lesotho, Jamaica, Sierra Leone and Gambia.

PROFESSOR HITS HARD AT UVIC EXPANSION

By JOHN SLINGER

A former head of the University of Victoria English department today scored the board of governors for its plans to expand the university.

Prof. Roger Bishop who resigned the administrative post to teach, told the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors annual meeting the expansion plans are "a serious mistake."

He said expansion into "a faceless, mechanical multi-university" meant hiring numbers of poorly qualified, inexperienced teachers.

He said monster campuses prevent the growth of teacher-student relationships.

"FIGHT EXPANSION" He said anyone who cares about the quality of Canadian education should be fighting to prevent such expansion.

It represented a fall, real estate proposition but faculty and students who favor it are "selling their intellectual birthrights."

Right now Uvic seems prepared to make all the mistakes of University of B.C., Berkeley and notorious universities elsewhere, he added.

Prof. Bishop was making the keynote address to the annual meeting at Empress Hotel. His theme was The Student, The Professor and The University Today.

He said the violent situation which has developed in universities during the last five years is not likely to quiet down soon.

He said that although the Uvic campus has been quiet, trouble could be "just around the corner" especially if the university English department refuses to accept a student demand for one-third representation on all faculty committees.

Prof. Bishop used as background for the current crisis, "the myths upon which a society bases its day-by-day progress."

He said: "The tremors in our universities are part of, and a reflection of, the shifting, destruction and reconstruction of myths in our society."

Largest purveyor of new myths, many contrary to our traditional beliefs, were television and other electronic media, through which advertisers present instant cures, instant success and instant happiness.

Imparted to a younger generation is an idea that once it has met certain minimum standards such as

32-Foot Waves Buffet Schooner

NEW YORK (CP)—Winds of about 45 miles an hour and 32-foot waves buffeted the Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose II today and hampered a search for a crew member believed to have been swept overboard, the United States Coast Guard reported.

The schooner, a two-masted wooden vessel with auxiliary diesel engines, was carrying 19 persons including a group of Canadian businessmen bound for a vacation cruise in Bermuda.

The Coast Guard, which reported the schooner was "experiencing difficulty," said the seas became worse overnight but slackened slightly after daybreak.

However, a coast guard cutter standing by the schooner was prevented from searching for the missing crew member because of difficulty in manoeuvring in the high seas. A plane flew out to the schooner after daybreak but was not able to search effectively because of poor visibility, the coast guard said. The crew member and two life rafts were lost Wednesday.

Two coast guard cutters had been standing by the schooner about 280 miles southeast of New York but one of them, the McCulloch, had to return to New York because one of its crew members was sick.

The coast guard said a doctor recommended that the man, who was not identified, be brought to a hospital quickly.

The missing crew member was identified as Neil Robitaille, 22, of Yarmouth, N.S.

Among the businessmen on board are Michael L. Davies, general manager of the Kingston Whig-Standard, Gordon N. Fisher, of Toronto, vice-president of Southern Press Ltd., David Oster, a Toronto stock broker, Lorne A. Flower of Kingston, John Rothwell of Toronto and Martin Yeatman, a member of a Halifax engineering consultant firm.

The schooner was taking water in its engine room. However, the owners, Oland and Sons Ltd. brewery, said in Halifax they had "no indication the schooner itself is in any difficulty."

Donald J. Oland, vice-president of the brewery, said the schooner's skipper, Captain Ellsworth T. Coggin of Dartmouth, N.S., probably will start moving the schooner southwards out of the rough seas.

The captain of the schooner also emphasized to the coast guard that there was no danger of the ship sinking.

There was, however, some "concern" about the ship's safety, as indicated by the fact that a cutter, the Vigilant, was standing by, the coast guard said.

"If necessary we could get the people off quite quickly," a coast guard spokesman said.

The Bluenose II is a copy of the world-famous Nova Scotian fishing and racing schooner. It is used part time as a charter vessel, part time to carry cargo and part time as a public relations vessel. It was loaned to Expo 67 in Montreal for six months in 1967. It was built in 1962.

Police said Prize crews boarded four Russian and two East German vessels. Three of the vessels were brought into Flekkefjord harbor and the other three were expected here later today.

Police also reported that two Danish vessels were seized and will be brought into Flekkefjord later.

Police said it was not yet clear why the vessels had violated Norwegian territorial waters.

OFF-TRACK BETS

Ruling Paves Way

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court ruling Wednesday cleared the way for Ontario horseplayers to place bets without going to the track by having paid agents deliver their bets to the parimutuel windows.

The ruling makes possible establishment of off-track parimutuel brokerage firms.

Mr. Justice Walter R. Schroeder upheld the decision of a Welland, Ont., magistrate who last February dismissed book-making charges against two Welland men who operated such a brokerage firm.

The Crown has 60 days to appeal Mr. Justice Schroeder's decision to the Supreme Court of Canada, but Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday he was "content" with the decision and has no plans to appeal.

Robert Gruhl, 36, and his employee, Howard Brennan, 37, operated the off-track-parimutuel office in Welland for three days before the attorney-general department closed it in July, 1967.

EXPECTING RUSH

Mr. Gruhl, who advertised that he would take bets to the racetrack at Fort Erie for a fee, said following Wednesday's decision that he hopes to establish the province's first off-track betting service.

"However," he said in an interview, "it is a gold mine, I won't be alone."

In upholding the decision of Welland Magistrate Joseph Gardner, Mr. Justice Schroeder said there was "no essential distinction" between the Gruhl case and a case dismissed against a Welland taxi-driver who took money to the track for persons unable to get there.

The appeal Court ruled that no bets were made on the premises and that Mr. Gruhl and Mr. Brennan were acting as agents when they placed bets for their clients.

The men charged 10 per cent of the value of the bet placed for the service and the minimum fee was 50 cents.

REACT TO RULING

The ruling drew reaction from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and officials of the Jockey Club Ltd., which holds thoroughbred racing at Greenwood and Woodbine tracks in Toronto and Fort Erie and operates harness tracks at Greenwood, Mohawk Raceway, near Campbellville, Ont., and Garden City Raceway, near St. Catharines.

Mr. Wishart said he would not appeal the decision and added that the reason for the Ontario Supreme Court action was not so much to press for a conviction as to clarify regulations dealing with messengers who carry bets to a racetrack.

"This man was not a bookmaker," Mr. Wishart said in an interview. "He was only acting as a messenger and did not keep the money that was given him to bet. As far as I'm concerned, the matter rests, I'm content."

John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club, termed the decision "very interesting."

Mr. Mooney said the Jockey Club directors will "take a good look at what it means to us."

Meanwhile, Mr. Gruhl said he will set up a high-volume business, placing employees in towns with tracks who will receive information by telephone and lay bets for customers.

Lincoln Minor, sensational 19-year-old, 230-pound running back from New Mexico State University who dropped out of school after his freshman year, has been signed.

Junior Exhibition May Serve as Yardstick

It is being described as "a friendly exhibition," but Victoria Cougars' game with Nor'West Caps in the North Shore Community Centre on Friday could prove to be a thought-saver.

The game matches the first-place team in the B.C. Junior Hockey League (Cougars) against the second-place team in the Pacific Coast Junior "B" circuit. They happen to be affiliated, and Cougars agreed to the game to repay Caps for past favors.

CHECK THAT BREAK!

Uvic Clipped By Maplettes

Both teams showed signs of rust after a three-week Christmas break, but Maplettes hit form "first and fastest" to edge University of Victoria Vikettes 35-31 Wednesday night at Uvic.

This isn't to say, however, that Maplettes will be counting on easy victories in the remaining three meetings with their Uvic rivals in the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League.

The Howie Tooby-coached Vikettes, twice recovering from large deficits, threatened down to the final whistle.

Maplettes shrugged off the effects of the long layoff first by jumping into an 11-1 lead. Vikettes bounced back to narrow the margin to 14-12 at one stage in the first half.

Maplettes pumped in the final five points before the half to restore a good lead. Again Vikettes rallied. Maplettes then ran in eight consecutive points and held off Uvic's remaining threats the rest of the way.

UBC NEXT

Mary Coutts sparked the winners with 13 points, a figure matched by Uvic's Heather Witzel. Jean Robertson dropped in 12 points for Vikettes.

Both teams play UBC Thunderettes at the weekend. Uvic hosts UBC Saturday at 6 p.m., while the visitors face Maplettes at 12:30 p.m. Sunday at Central Junior High School.

And then both Victoria teams tangle again on Tuesday at Uvic in round No. 2 of their cross-town feud.

VIKETTES (31)—Jean Robertson 12, Heather Witzel 13, Rose Witzel, Peggy Robinson, Gail Vaughan, Barb Tyne, Maureen Wills, Lynn Haggard, Jeanne McFattie, Marcia McIntyre 4.

MAPPLETTES (35)—Mary Coutts 13, Doreen Luk 4, Ariene Wallwin 4, Diana Bourne 4, Martin Johnson 1, Judy Bourne, Gail Bonner, Irene Smith 2, Sylvia Campbell 3, Marg Foreman 2, Renate Krueger.

VANCOUVER — Like tenacious terriers, Vancouver-area teams keep snapping at the heels of Victoria Chinooks.

It was IGA Grocers' turn Wednesday. IGA nipped Kilgarney 74-73 to move into sole possession of second place, two points behind Victoria, in Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League activity here.

Grocers have a chance to join Chinooks tonight, meeting last place CYO Saints.

Moe Turner's Chinooks will face another "snapper"—third place North Shore Mountaineers—in a weekend series at Victoria's Central High gym.

Kilgarney was on top 42-34 at the half, but couldn't withstand a strong closing drive by Grocers. At one point in the final quarter, Grocers held a 69-60 advantage.

Dave Marshall, top man for Grocers with 21 points, scored the winning point on a free shot that made the score 74-71.

Rod Noble had 18 points for the winners, as did Frank Rotterling for Kilgarney.

Favell Pays Off As Allen's Choice

Maple Leafs Tie; Bobby's 28th Helps Chihawks

By Canadian Press

Keith Allen has to make a difficult decision before each game involving his Philadelphia Flyers—but other National Hockey League coaches aren't sympathetic.

Allen's problem—one any coach would be glad to have—is to decide whether to use Bernie Parent or Doug Favell in goal. It's a tough one because both goaltenders are 23, competent and improving.

Wednesday night Allen selected Favell, and he must have been satisfied with his choice. The Philadelphia goalie stopped 40 shots to help the Flyers gain a 4-4 tie against Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the only other NHL game Wednesday night, Chicago Black Hawks moved one point ahead of Toronto and into third place in the Eastern Division by downing St. Louis Blues 3-1.

STARTED SLOWLY

Favell, selected by Philadelphia from Boston Bruins in the 1967 expansion draft as was Parent, had a jittery first period against Toronto giving up three goals, but was almost unbeatable after that.

He made 11 saves in the first period, 17 in the second and 12 in the third. The native of St. Catharines, Ont., has given up only 12 goals in his last six starts.

Allen has shown a slight preference for Parent this season. Favell has appeared in 15 games and has a goals-against average of just over 3.00 while Parent has played in 25 games with an average of 2.46.

Scoring for the Flyers, who have four consecutive ties, were Jim Johnson, Dick Sarrazin and Jean-Guy Gendron, with two goals. Toronto scorers were Norm Ullman, Mike Walton, Ron Ellis and Bill Sutherland.

BOWER BOOED

Johnny Bower, in the Toronto goal, was as weak as Favell was strong. He gave up all four Philadelphia goals before being replaced by Bruce Gamble early in the final period. Toronto outshot Philadelphia 44-19.

Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach defended Bower after the game and criticized Toronto fans who booed the 44-year-old netminder.

"Sure Bower was shaky. He was as nervous as hell and I had to get him out of there or we might not have even got one point."

"But you know why he's so nervous? It's because they're giving him such a hard time. This will kill him faster than anything. On the road he isn't nervous. He's a lot sharper."

"I was lousy," Bower said afterwards. "That's all there was to it. I blew four easy shots. What else do you want me to say?"

PROVIDE THE GOALS

Goals by Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita and Pit Martin carried the Black Hawks to their victory before 16,666 Chicago fans. Gary Sabourin replied for St. Louis.

Hull's goal at 18:18 of the second period, his 28th of the season, was the winner. Defenceman Gilles Marotte set up the play by sweeping behind the St. Louis net and laying the puck on Hull's stick at the goal crease.

St. Louis, which has a 14-point lead over second-place Oakland Seals in the Western Division, lost left winger Al McDonald with a broken nose suffered in a scramble with Hawk defenceman Matt Ravlich.

In off-ice activity, Detroit Red Wings recalled forward Hank Monthie from Fort Worth of the Central Hockey League and sent forward Pete Mahovich to the same team.

Mahovich had two goals and two assists in 25 games with Detroit.

Elsewhere, general manager Wren Blair of Minnesota North Stars returned defenceman Mike McMahon to the roster.

McMahon had been sent to Cleveland of the American Hockey League two weeks ago.

Transfer Talk Boiling Again

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's board of governors is preparing for its annual pre-all-star game meeting in Montreal Jan. 21 and already the transfer-expansion pot is boiling over in such far-removed spots as Oakland, Vancouver and Buffalo.

Vancouver newspaper reports indicate the board will discuss expansion possibilities for that city at the one-day session. David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens and a league governor, is quoted as saying the league is committed to Vancouver as the next city either through a franchise grant or the transfer of an existing franchise.

In Montreal, Molson said he had told Vancouver newspaper sources he personally would favor a transfer going to Vancouver, but that the NHL is not committed to his personal view.

Meanwhile, Buffalo moved back into the picture Wednesday again with reports that the failing Oakland Seals franchise would be shifted there.

Similar reports Dec. 23 were heard from Buffalo, but were denied by the Oakland owners, NHL president Clarence Campbell and Reuben Foster, owner of Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League.

Throughout the ensuing confusion, Campbell has maintained that there is "no expansion discussion" at present on the agenda for the Jan. 21 meeting.

Asked Wednesday about renewed reports from Buffalo that the Seals will end up there, Campbell said:

"Anything that develops at this point in Buffalo is their doing and is strictly between Buffalo and the Seals."

Buffalo's bid for an NHL expansion franchise two years ago was passed over in the initial enlargement of the league as a 12-team, two-division setup. But a group of businessmen there have continued their efforts to get an NHL club.

"We're not in the business of promoting transfers," Campbell said. "In order to implement any change based on such a deal it would be necessary for the parties concerned to first gain league approval."

However he did not entirely rule out the possibility of the shift or that the subject of a transfer or further expansion would not be added to the agenda in the next two weeks.

"It is possible that an Oakland application for transfer to Buffalo is within the range of possibility," the NHL president said.

At last June's annual meeting here the owners of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League applied for a franchise in the NHL and were told by league governors that at the next expansion the Canadian West Coast city will be included.

Campbell says that the applicants were not interested in a transfer of an ailing franchise to their city and that no reference was made to any such shift in the dealings of the two parties.

Ashe and Charlie Pasarell of San Antonio, P.R., won two matches over Australians to reach the doubles semi-finals. They stopped John Cooper and Douglas Wright 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, then ousted junior champions Philip Dent and John Alexander, 6-4, 10-8, 6-2.

Also reaching the semi-finals were Australian Davis Cuppers Bill Bowrey and Ray Ruffels, who defeated Frank Sedgman and Neale Fraser, each former Wimbledon singles champs.

ICE CHIPS: Cougars' attack will be strengthened by the return of winger Len Barrie after a bout with flu ... Anderson will recruit another Cap player, possibly a centre, for Saturday's Memorial Arena game with Penitence Broncos ... Cougars will still be going without winger Graham Brown (broken wrist) and suspended defenceman Laurie Moore when they face Penitence. If Anderson secures the services of a junior "B" centre, he'll use Lonnie Miles on defence ... Ed Forslund will be the goalie to face the Caps Friday while Ron Grahame is scheduled to start against Penitence.

Arthur Mayse

About this time last year, I confided to a friend that we'd very much like to take in Expo 70 at Osaka.

"Then you'd better start saving," he said. "For a start here's that quarter I owe you."

We put the coin away, and settled down to save like fury. The months passed with their ups and downs, their income and outgo. Then, on a morning of this present grey January, we decided to check our Expo stake.

It consisted of the original, slightly tarnished two-bits; but being optimistic by nature, we haven't abandoned hope.

Obviously, though, we need a definite target to shoot at. With this in mind, I dropped in at Blaney's Travel Service Ltd. on lower Douglas to pick up some facts and figures.

Several fugitives from our stern Victoria winter were arranging trips to warm places, but experienced Orient traveller Andrew Blaney spared time to brief me.

Asia's first world exposition—"Progress and Harmony for Mankind"—its theme and the cherry blossom its symbol—is already pulling in enquiries at the rate of 30 to 40 calls a day.

Any number of tours are being laid on, I learned, and the prospective traveller to Expo 70 has a wide range of options. Even so, early registration is advisable.

Andy Blaney sped another escapist on his way to Acapulco, then returned with folders and rate-sheets.

The traveller with time and inclination for a sea voyage can choose between two lines—American President from San Francisco, or P and O from Vancouver.

Existing rates from Vancouver, return fare, tourist, range from $147 to $396 in Canadian funds, depending on whether you choose direct or roundabout route. First class passage spires from $396 to a breathtaking $3,492 for the equivalent of a royal suite. If your leisure and funds run to it, stopovers at such waypoints as Australia or New Zealand can be arranged.

Remembering that lone quarter, I explained to Mr. Blaney that travel on the grand scale might be a little too rich for our blood.

He then turned cheerfully to the all-inclusive CPA and Japan Airlines tours for which most Victoria pilgrims to Expo 70 are expected to sign up.

The one I yearned over covers four days at Expo, visits to various Japanese cities, and generous stops at Hong Kong and Honolulu. Time, 23 days. Cost, exclusive of some land meals, $1,275 from Victoria.

It is worth noting that four days at Expo is the limit set by Japan through its travel bureau for a single visit. This is to ensure a brisk turnover of rooms and suites. Accommodation threatens to be tight, and to prevent possible extortion attempts, strictly policed rates must be pre-paid at this end of the trip.

That's another reason why the package tour will be popular. A passport is essential. So are inoculations against smallpox and cholera. Also urged is a "TABT" shot against typhoid (two varieties) and tetanus.

That last struck me as rather grim, but Mr. Blaney disposed of the shots as mere precautions. He likes Japan, and finds that the Japanese resemble Victorians in that they're never too busy to listen and assist. English is Japan's second language, and if in doubt at Expo 70, one need only consult one of numerous policemen who will be wearing linguist armbands.

A fine scenic country with a temperate summer climate much like ours, my informant concluded. He then produced more folders, and suggested that though Expo 70 will run on to Sept. 13 from its March 15 opening, a nice time to go would be in spring when the cherry blossom's out.

I couldn't agree more heartily, but there is still that irksome little matter of finances.

However, we've now added a second quarter to our Expo fund, in hopes that the two will get busy and multiply.

WEATHER WARNING REMAINS

Snow, Cold Wave Here on Friday

The Victoria weather office is sticking to its Wednesday prediction—colder weather and a generous snowfall before the weekend.

Skies will be cloudy this evening with showers occurring in lower levels and snow flurries at higher elevations.

But sometime Friday an ominous weather system which is now just south of the Queen Charlottes, will arrive over Vancouver Island.

Temperatures which will hover tonight and early Friday in the 34 to 38 level (colder at higher elevations) will drop sharply as cold mainland air follows the area of low pressure.

This is a strong indication "we're going to get it" said a weather official.

VANCOUVER REPORTS

Reports by some other news sources, suggesting an easing of the earlier promised bad weather were based on Vancouver weather office reports and were not specifically directed to Victoria, the local official said.

Vancouver got four to eight inches of snow Wednesday following a mainland storm warning which was withdrawn later.

There was two inches of new snow at Nanaimo overnight and also at Comox.

Port Alberni got seven inches, bringing the total on the ground to 23 inches.

The Malahat received three inches of new snow overnight and police were again advising that snow tires or chains are necessary for Malahat traffic.

SEVERAL WEEKS BEHIND

Anticipation of a new wave of wintery weather leaves area plumbers unenthusiastic. A spokesman for the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association, Mike Griffin, said local plumbers are still several weeks behind repair jobs caused by the Boxing Day freeze.

He said emergency jobs were completed and "nobody's suffering" but many ruptured pipes in warehouses are still to be repaired.

A spokesman for Shell Fuel Oils said their distributors were still far behind schedule in home deliveries following the post-Christmas emergency period. They also were worried about another rush.

District garbage collection also is still behind schedule in most areas although extra crews are on the job in some cases.

Seattle Man Still at Large; Jumped off Truck

A 21-year-old man who escaped from Wilks Road prison farm Wednesday afternoon was still at large at press time today.

Allen Samuel Johnson, of Seattle, was serving 21 days for impaired driving. He was convicted at Sidney and had been in prison for only a few days.

The man was being transported back to the institution with a work group when he jumped off the back of a truck and ran away, officials said.

He is described as five feet, 11 inches, black hair, brown eyes and wearing a yellow waterproof jacket. He was last seen on Interurban Rd. heading for the highway. A search with a police dog failed to find him.

His date of release from prison was to be Jan. 23.

PROVINCE WON'T CERTIFY HOSPITAL CLAIMS

The newest status symbol—the phrase "I've got Hong Kong flu"—is still being denied Victorians.

Reports were circulated earlier today that two cases of Hong Kong flu were "definitely diagnosed" during the past month at St. Joseph's Hospital. But the provincial health department has refused certification.

Before anyone can have Hong Kong flu they must pass rigorous blood and throat swab tests in the provincial health department laboratory in Vancouver. It's the only lab in the province with staff and equipment suited to the tests.

TUSOCK MOTHS

by the thousands are reared by the Federal Forestry Laboratory on Burnside as research scientists probe for ways to control the pesky creatures which eat Douglas fir needles. Lab technician Pat Olsen keeps an eye on a brood here. Eggs are refrigerated and later hatched for experiments. The federal laboratory works for provincial governments and industry in battling hazards to forests. While three billion cubic feet of timber were harvested in Canada last year, insects, disease and fire destroyed another two billion cubic feet.

New Lab Ends Doubling Up By Scientists

A new building adjoining the federal forest research laboratory on Burnside Road was officially opened today by regional director Ray Lejeune.

The new facilities will provide accommodation for six fully equipped laboratories and 11 offices for forest insect and disease survey personnel. The building is designed as a preparatory unit for four experimental greenhouses.

"This building," said Mr. Lejeune, "will enable us to supply suitable facilities for the additional staff employed since the erection of the main laboratory in 1965."

Until now, many of the 186 research scientists, technicians, administration and service personnel have been forced to double up on laboratory and office space.

Lecture Series On Town Planning

A prominent urban planner will start a University of Victoria lecture series on city development Friday at noon.

Dr. Arthur Grey, chairman of the department of urban planning at the University of Washington, will speak on "Anticipating the Future of Cities."

The lecture will be open to the public and is to be held at 12:30 in Room 112 of the Cornett (social sciences) Building. Several more lectures will develop the theme of urban growth through the spring term.

The department claims 107 admissions "possibly related" to Hong Kong flu: "definitely diagnosed, 2; diagnosed as influenza, 13; diagnosed as pneumonia, 64; diagnosed as possible complications of Hong Kong flu, 28."

The hospital adds that staff members have had an all-time high in absenteeism—a total of 350 working days lost due to flu and bad weather. But the hospital was able to maintain all services "due to the dedication of those who did report."

Royal Jubilee Hospital, aware of the high provincial standards perhaps, claimed to admissions due to or related to Hong Kong flu.

The hospital did claim 37 admissions since Christmas due to flu complications and a December staff absenteeism of 203 persons.

While Victoria hyphochondriacs are still waiting breathlessly for the first lab-tested case of Hong Kong flu there was little indication of protection when it does arrive.

Provincial health department said only a small amount of Hong Kong flu vaccine has arrived here and it is generally reserved for persons with chest and heart disorders who might be dangerously ill if infected.

The vaccine must be injected eight weeks before the flu makes contact and even then it is considered only 60 to 70 per cent effective.

City Drops Pre-Budget Competition

Victoria city council has decided to abandon its traditional but often interminable pre-budget discussions at the committee level.

In the past various council committees have stretched detailed budget talks over several weeks as they approved or vetoed requests from department heads.

This year a select committee comprised of city manager Dennis Young, comptroller James Bramley and the department head and committee chairman involved, will do all the preliminary spadework.

The first time full council will see the budget for 1969 will be in its completed form some time in April.

TIME CONSUMING

The major switch in budget discussion policy was recommended early in 1968 by Mr. Bramley who noted that the prolonged discussions often proved too time consuming and too arduous for the working alderman.

Mayor Hugh Stephen and council have approved the procedural change.

"For some years now our approach to the development of our current budget has taken the form of a preparation of individual departmental estimates in isolation from the broad priorities of the community and the ability of the city to finance them," Mayor Stephen said.

"The requests of individual departments have been compared financially to the expenditures of previous years and have been placed before the various standing committees without prior co-ordination."

COMPETITION

The mayor said that such a method introduced a competitive attitude to departmental estimates as each department head made a bid for a favorite project under his jurisdiction.

He added that the result was that budget talks often degenerated into an atmosphere of "I'll give up this item if my pet project can remain."

The department of education has granted this latter approval

Fire Department Gets Ambulance Contract

You Can Walk, Jog, Swim or Pedal
A Shiny Silver Spoon

By BOB MITCHELL

The Victoria branch of the YM-YWCA has extended a challenge to this community to get into shape, and is offering a silver teaspoon to anyone who can meet certain standards of physical fitness.

Fitness 69 was outlined Wednesday by Y physical director Art Burgess. It's the hard way to win a silver teaspoon, harder than buying a tank of gasoline, but it may be salvation for local armchair athletes from a health standpoint.

Participants will compete against themselves in one of four activities: swimming, walking, jogging or cycling. In order to qualify for a prize you have to log a prescribed number of miles in your chosen event within six months.

JOG 100 MILES

For example, if you decide to run, you'll be setting your sights on jogging 100 miles (about four miles a week), during the next six months.

If you decide to swim, you'll have to splash 25 miles; if cycling is your bag, then you can look forward to pedalling 750 miles; and walkers will have to stride off 250 miles.

Fitness 69 is an expanded version of the Centennial Mile which was sponsored by the Y two years ago on a nationwide basis. Victoria had the highest per capita participation in Canada during the 1967 event, Burgess said, and due to popular demand it is being revived and revamped in 1969 by local Y organizers.

The program will become effective next Monday, Jan. 13, if you want to get in on the action, it will cost you a dollar to register. Just drop it to the YM-YWCA building, Quadra and Broughton where you can pay your fee and pick up a performance card.

HONOR SYSTEM

From then on it's up to you to run, walk, swim or pedal the miles, tallying the daily or weekly distances yourself. The honor system will be used, Mr. Burgess said, and the Y will make individual participants responsible for the success of Fitness 69.

However, organizers have stipulated maximum and minimum distances to be covered by participants during a given outing. A runner should go at least one-half mile, but not more than three miles at a time—you can swim up to one mile, but not less than one-eighth of a mile; walk at least one mile, but not more than ten; and cycle a minimum of two miles, but not over 20.

KEY FACTOR

"Duration" was the key factor in determining the distances to be covered in each activity, the physical director said. For example, it takes about the same amount of time and energy to swim one-quarter of a mile as it does to run one mile.

Likewise, running a mile is roughly equivalent to pushing a bicycle four miles.

The most available swimming pools in Victoria are at the Y and the Crystal Garden. There are also pools at Royal Roads, HMS Naden and in Colwood.

Running courses with distances marked off have been provided by the Y at the following parks: Carnarvan,

ART BURGESS
... six-month limit

Windsor, Reynolds, Hampton and Bullen.

Cyclists are advised to connect a speedometer to their machine.

The walking event was included mainly for the benefit of middle-aged and elderly persons who may not be up to the more strenuous activities, Mr. Burgess added.

WOMEN WELCOME

If Fitness 69 sounds somewhat masculine in portent, the physical director would like to stress that women are more than welcome to take part. He takes pride in pointing out that in 1967, during the Centennial fitness program, the fastest mile clocked on the Y's rooftop track was a 6:42 performance by a local woman school teacher, Bis Whitby.

He also underlines the incentive value of tokens of achievement, such as the silver teaspoons he will be awarding six months hence:

"I used to think businessmen were too blasé to care about getting a crest for being able to swim a hundred yards, but I changed my mind when I saw how much pride they took in wearing their crest on their jacket."

Service To Start In Spring

Victoria city's fire department will move back into the emergency ambulance service business this spring.

Estimated cost of the move has been set at $184,416 of which $6,000 will be spent on equipment.

The decision to hire eight extra men to provide round-the-clock emergency service was made at a full council committee meeting this morning.

Four private firms bid for the job in addition to the second low bid from the fire department.

Tenders were called in December after Garden City Ambulance, the firm now operating the emergency service, informed the city that it was in grave financial difficulty.

The private company has been operating the service for 18 months and has a further 18 months to go on the old contract. But it informed the city some weeks ago it would require substantial financial aid to avoid bankruptcy.

FRIM WAS WARNED

The plight of the company came as no surprise to city officials who had warned at the time Garden City submitted its first and winning bid that the tender was too low to be realistic.

The company insisted that it could run the operation and make a profit.

Garden City was low bidder again on the re-tender call, but said city manager Dennis Young, "their current bid is no more realistic than the previous one, even though their total cost is almost 100 per cent higher."

Garden City came in at $173,750 compared with the minimum cost from the fire department of $178,416 plus the $6,000 for a new ambulance.

Other bids were from CPS Service, a new company not in the ambulance business but willing to purchase equipment and hire staff if successful with its tender, at $215,540.

Victoria Ambulance Service asked $270,000 for the job and Capital City Ambulance $313,431.

COST CHALLENGED

While all aldermen agreed that the fire department should get the contract and its eight extra men, Ald. Clyde Savage challenged the estimated annual cost of $178,416.

"I don't think that is a realistic figure at all," he said. "I'm in favor of the fire department doing the job, but I think we may as well face the fact that it is going to cost a lot more than stated here."

The city manager said the cost estimate was based on union pay rates plus all fringe benefits for eight men.

Train Wreck Cancels Show

Showing of a three-hour silent film, "Tolerance," by the Uvic student film society tonight has been cancelled because of a train wreck.

Society director Stein Gudmundsen said today the CNR had advised him delivery of the film has been delayed by a derailment at Chase Wednesday.

The 1916 film will now be shown next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the university's MacLaurin auditorium.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you give me the latest population figures for these cities: Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver? I refer to the metropolitan area.—N. W.

A. The following figures are listed in the McGraw Hill Canadian Almanac, 1968: Ottawa, 390,000; Hamilton, 283,345; Windsor, 187,418; Montreal, 2,436,817; Toronto, 1,825,000; Winnipeg, 499,218; Edmonton, 381,230; Calgary, 335,806; Vancouver, 292,286.

Q. Where can I get the address for the Ontario apprenticeship board?—P. W.

A. Write to J. D. Burge, Manpower Services Division, 74 Victoria St., Toronto 1A, Ontario.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to advise on legal or medical problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Ancient Culture Blends With New

LONDON (CP) — The Japanese, renowned for their artistic and industrial skill, now have put the two together in an attempt to evolve a new art form expressing the age of plastics and electronics.

The result, as seen in an avant-garde gallery here, is a long way from willow-pattern prints. Canadians will have a chance to sample the experiment when it moves to Vancouver Art Gallery next month.

The exhibition, Fluorescent Chrysanthemum, takes its title from the fact that many Japanese artists work with fluorescent plastics and paints, while the chrysanthemum is the traditional imperial flower of Japan.

More of a happening than a straight art show, it includes sculptures, graphics, mobiles, electronic music and flashing light formations—everything, in fact, but paintings. The visitor is riveted by such curiosities as a miniature pair of shoes in a cage which change color between white and blue depending on the angle of vision and a tiny fountain made of glass tubes which jets foam into the air.

It all seemed to baffle the London art critics. One who liked it was Norbert Lynton of The Guardian, who described it as "very entertaining" but expressed disappointment that few of the objects seemed particularly Japanese, or even Oriental.

Nigel Gosling of The Observer saw it as a blend of traditional Japanese austerity and a "playful engagement with current metropolitan fantasies... an ancient culture coming to terms with a young one."

The show includes the work of 61 artists, designers and composers, and is sponsored by two Tokyo galleries which specialize in contemporary Japanese art.
